WASHINGTON, March 6.—Food prices in the United States reached the highest level in [illegible] years on November 15, 1913. Since that date there had been a slight decline in prices, though the average still is well above that of a year ago.

The Department of Labor today made public a report showing the retail prices of the principal articles of food as observed by the government's agents in forty of the most important industrial cities of the country.

"Throughout the whole of 1913 high prices prevailed," said the report, while the last quarter of the year showed a period of decline in the prices of the fifteen articles of food [illegible]." It further points out that there "was more than counterbalanced by an advance in the price [illegible] to a level never before [illegible]."

In three of the articles, eggs, beef and milk, the highest prices reached in November. For the remaining seventeen articles—butter, lard, flour, sirloin steak, round steak, rib roast, bacon, ham [illegible], pork chops and potatoes—

Battle Creek Food Manufacturer Is Taken from Los Angeles to Rochester in Sixty-one Hours by His Special—Is to Be Operated Upon in a Few Days.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ROCHESTER (Minn.) March 6.—C. W. Post, the millionaire food manufacturer of Battle Creek, Mich., arrived in Rochester at 9:25 this morning on a special train, making the journey from Los Angeles in the record-breaking time of sixty-one hours. A consultation of physicians and surgeons was held this afternoon and it was not considered necessary to perform an immediate operation, although Mr. Post will submit to the knife after he has spent a few days in regaining strength.

The patient stood the long journey from Los Angeles well and was in good condition upon arrival here, walking from his car to the waiting conveyance. He enjoyed a good day's rest after arrival and was in a happy frame of mind tonight.

An immediate major surgical operation is not necessary, although it is deemed advisable to operate within a few days. The operation will prove a serious one, but with a good vitality it is believed he will be restored to normal condition. There is no cause for alarm, said a member of his party.

DEMOCRATS IN CONGRESS RUSH TO WILSON'S AID.

West Virginia Senator Offers to Save the Panama Plank of the Baltimore Platform from Further Disgrace by Authorizing the President to Fix All Charges on Vessels Using the Great Waterway—English Editors Are Already Saying "Thank You."

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, March 6.—President Wilson's plea to Congress to uphold him in his foreign policy "is to be answered promptly by the repeal of the dead-head provision of the Panama Canal Tolls Act.

The first step in this direction was taken today by the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, which, by a vote of fourteen to four, reported favorably the Adamson bill.

The report amplifies the views expressed by the President in his brief address. It contends that it is "proper now to consider the international situation and our obligations and policy in relation thereto."

It contends we cannot afford "in a matter of national honor to occupy debatable ground on a question involving our performance of treaty obligations."

It asserts that our position of discrimination in favor of American coastwise shipping legally is unsound. Finally it declares that no benefit will accrue to the shippers, to localities, or to the people from the exemption, but that the benefit will be enjoyed by the coastwise ships and nobody else.

The Senate Committee on Interoceanic Canals will hold a meeting in a few days to consider what action to take upon the President's recommendation. This committee has not favored the repeal of the existing clause. The President's strong reasoning, however, has operated upon the committee to such an extent that unquestionably it will make a report, perhaps adverse, upon the proposal. Once the measure is before the Senate there is no doubt of its passage. There is only one stumbling block in the way of complete response to the President's demand. That is that if there should be complete repeal of the clause, the canal will be open to the warships of a possible enemy.

Senator Cummins of Iowa has prepared an amendment which will forbid the use of the canal in time of war by the naval ships of an enemy of the United States. It is extremely difficult, however, to insist upon this prohibition when equality of treatment for vessels of war as well as commerce is provided in the treaty as interpreted by President Wilson and foreign governments.

WHAT THE TREATY SAYS.

The treaty says:

"The canal shall be free and open to the vessels of commerce and of war of all nations observing these rules, on terms of entire equality, so that there shall be no discrimination against any such nation, or its citizens or subjects, in respect of the conditions or charges of traffic, or otherwise."

It further forbids the blockade of the canal or the committing of any act of hostilities within the waterway. Also it prescribes that the vessels of war of a belligerent shall not revictual nor take any stores in the canal except so far as may be strictly necessary. Belligerent war vessels cannot remain in the waters of the canal for more than twenty-four hours at any one time except in case of distress, nor shall the warship of one belligerent depart within twenty-four hours from the departure of a warship of another belligerent.

WILSON'S STAND.

President Wilson will not consent to any amendment which fails to carry out what to him is the plain intent of the treaty. In other words, the principle of equal treatment is to be observed in every respect. He feels that as the United States has fortified the canal, no belligerent would dare place its ships in the canal. For this reason, it is certain he will disapprove the Cummins amendment.

Inquiry today developed a number of reasons for the action of the President in addressing the Congress with respect to the canal matter. There was the division of sentiment in the Democratic party in Congress. There was the international situation. There was the firm belief which the President finally came to hold that the national honor required honest interpretation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

WILSON ON RECORD.

Congressman Knowland of California inserted in the Congressional Record the speech made by the President when he was a candidate for the office he now fills and which advocated exemption of American coastwise shipping from the payment of tolls. This speech, added to the plank in the Baltimore platform in favor of the exemption, made passage of the repeal bill difficult, if not doubtful.

From foreign countries both in Europe and the Far East came objections to the attitude of the United States and it was feared that a community of interests had developed which might reach a point dangerous to the United States. Finally, the President received a letter from Ambassador Page in London urging repeal of the canal tolls law on the ground that feeling in Great Britain was running strongly against the American interpretation and that the international situation would be clarified for this government if the principle of no discrimination should be adopted.

CONDEMN RETROGRADE POLICY OF WILSON.

FOLLOWING is the text of resolutions adopted yesterday at a special meeting of the board of directors of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce against the repeal of the act to exempt American coastwise shipping from Panama Canal tolls as urged Thursday in an address to Congress by President Wilson. Copies of the resolutions have been sent to the members of the California Congressional delegation. The resolutions:

"WHEREAS, The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, in association with the principal Chambers of Commerce of the Pacific Coast, for years advocated the passage by Congress of a bill to exempt American shipping engaged in the coastwise trade from the payment of tolls for passing through the Panama Canal, and conducted an active and effective national campaign in the way of presenting the facts to the people and to Congress; and

"WHEREAS, Congress in prescribing rules to be observed by shipping in the use of the Panama Canal, as provided in the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty, has enacted into a law a provision making such exemption, which act was approved by the President and is now a law; and

"WHEREAS, Subsequently the government of Great Britain entered a protest against such exemption from tolls to American ships engaged in the coastwise trade as a violation of the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty; and

"WHEREAS, President Wilson has delivered an address to Congress advocating the repeal of the law making such exemption from the payment of tolls;

"THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, By the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, that while we entertain for the President of the United States the profound respect which is due to his exalted official position and to his high character as a man, we are unable to find in his address any sufficient reason for the retrograde step which he advocates, and this body is still of the opinion, in view of the fact that American vessels have for a hundred years enjoyed the exclusive right of traffic between American ports and the shipping of Great Britain or of any foreign country has never been permitted to engage in such traffic, that Great Britain nor any other government has any interest whatever in the rules which may be laid down by the American government for its shipping passing through an American canal in a territory admittedly within American sovereignty.

"RESOLVED, That we are unable to agree with the President that the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty has been violated for the further reason that this treaty was framed to facilitate the building of a canal through foreign territory, either Nicaragua or Colombia; its construction finally through American territory, the Panama Canal Zone, in our opinion, changed the conditions vitally and the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty should be construed in accordance with those changed conditions.

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, That while the commercial interests of the Pacific Coast and of the entire country would suffer from a repeal of the law exempting American shipping from the payment of such tolls, a more serious national objection to the course advocated by the President would be the admission, which is also contained in the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty, that the United States would have no further military right within the Canal Zone than that of maintaining a military police along the canal to protect it against lawlessness and disorder, and the further construction which might be placed upon the Hay-Pauncefote Treaty that the vessels of a nation at war with the United States would have the same rights in the canal as those to which war vessels of this country might be entitled.

"RESOLVED FURTHER, That this chamber earnestly urges the Senators and Representatives of the Pacific Coast and of the entire country to stand firmly against the proposed recession from its former position, and in favor of the American policy towards its own shipping of freedom from foreign control and of the right to pass freely through American waterways with entire freedom from payment of tolls or tribute of any character."

"Chaire."

VANDERBILTS IN MOURNING.

OWNER OF BILTMORE DIES AFTER AN OPERATION.

Youngest and Least Known of the Sons of William K., Who Hid Himself Away on His Magnificent North Carolina Estate Most of His Life, Passes Away in Washington.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 6.—George Washington Vanderbilt, multi-millionaire philanthropist and sportsman of international renown, died today of heart failure, following an operation for appendicitis last Tuesday. His death came suddenly, caused indirectly through the development of pulmonary embolism which affected the heart, preventing blood circulation. He was 52 years old.

Although seriously ill for some time, Mr. Vanderbilt had sustained the operation and continued to show signs of improvement, until complications unexpectedly arose. Previous to their appearance no alarm had been felt for his recovery, and physicians said his condition was improving. Mrs. Vanderbilt, formerly Miss Edith Dresser of New York, had been continuously in attendance at the bedside. She was almost prostrated by her husband's death.

At the palatial residence which Mr. Vanderbilt occupied here as his winter residence, it was said tonight no announcement would be made until the wishes of Mr. Vanderbilt's relatives had been ascertained. It was understood, however, that the funeral arrangements would be announced tomorrow, when Frederick Vanderbilt, a brother, will reach Washington.

LITTLE IN LIMELIGHT.

NEW YORK, March 6.—George W. Vanderbilt was the youngest and probably the least known of the sons of William K. Vanderbilt. He never took an active part in the business and financial world, where other members of the family gained wealth and distinction. He was a student and a traveler, and his chief interest was his magnificent estate at Biltmore, near Asheville, N. C., where he spent the greater part of his time.

Vanderbilt was born in the old Vanderbilt home at Newdorp, Staten Island, November 14, 1862. In 1885 he became interested in the wild mountain region of Western North Carolina, and by successive purchases he accumulated an estate of 100,000 acres on the French Broad River, and laid out there a vast park and erected buildings on a scale which has seldom been equaled in this country.

Vanderbilt devoted most of his time to the personal supervision of this estate. In the valley he built a model town and called it Biltmore. His farms were filled with blooded stock and he devoted thousands of dollars to the scientific conservation of the forests which covered the greater part of his property.

George Vanderbilt's fortune was never a factor in Wall street. He was supposed, however, to be one of America's wealthiest men. He had a number of charities and he spent money without stint on the development of his mountain estate. He seldom came to New York, but spent part of his summers at Bar Harbor, Me., where he had a handsome home.

In 1898 Mr. Vanderbilt married Miss Edith Stuyvesant Dresser. Mrs. Vanderbilt and one child, a daughter, survive him.

War Declared Between Rival Factions and Actual Fighting Is On.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, March 7.—Late tonight Miss Mary Judge, registrar of Associated Charities, was ordered by the Supervisors to supply foodstuffs to the "unemployed armies." Miss Judge, accompanied by a corps of assistants from the ranks of the "armies," obtained a motor truck, and calling upon various merchants, had them open their stores and load the truck with supplies. Twenty sacks of flour, cases of canned goods, cartons of coffee, salt, pepper and other eatables were taken to the camping grounds and distributed to the various companies.

SACRAMENTO, March 6.—With 400 "unemployed" men encamped in factions on a twenty-acre tract of land adjoining the Southern Pacific Depot, 440 more due at 10:45 p.m. and another division of 900 scheduled to arrive tomorrow morning, Sacramento is confronted with a problem that the City Commission refuses to solve.

In reply to overtures for food and transportation to Ogden, Utah, by a committee of three from the "insurgent faction" of the "unemployed," the Commission refused to extend aid.

The city will not recede from this stand, the Commissioners said.

The factions are camped under the eyes of a squad of forty policemen and ten deputy sheriffs. The authorities have made no attempt to disperse the men. Chief of Police Johnson's only orders were to prevent them from escaping from the inclosure, which is surrounded by a high board fence. Despite their vigilance about 200 scaled the fence and got into the city tonight.

The men are divided into two factions. One is known as the "insurgent" army, and numbers approximately 500 men. The other, led by a man named Kelley and recruited largely from the ranks of the Industrial Workers of the World, numbers about 1300.

The "insurgents" arrived here 470 strong at 4:15 p.m. today. Their transportation from Richmond to Sacramento was paid proportionately by Contra Costa, Solano and Yolo counties. At 8 o'clock tonight the vanguard of Kelly's band arrived. It numbered 180. At 10:30 p.m. another portion of the Kelley followers got off the train. This brigade numbered 500. A man named Webber, in command of the first faction of the Kelley army, said Kelley would arrive in command of 900 more men tomorrow morning.

The City Commission told the "insurgent" committee it would do nothing but provide for the safety and health of the men and maintain order. The visitors were told the city has no indigent fund and advised to go to the county authorities.

"We need supplies as soon as possible for our supper," said the committee.

"As indigents, these men are county charges. The city's problem is purely one of maintaining health, peace and order," said Commissioner Wilder.

Sheriff Ahern and Dist.-Atty. Wachhorst said they could do nothing and the Supervisors have not been approached for aid.

"I do not believe the railroad company had any right to ship these men in on us," said Commissioner Carragher. "What ought to be done is to ship them back where they came from. Just because other cities have dumped them here is no reason why we should continue the dumping process."

Chief of Police Johnson was authorized to appoint as many special patrolmen as he thought necessary and immediately selected twenty-five.

Commissioner Wilder provided the men with spades to make the necessary sanitary provisions and gave them hose to bring water into the camp.

Through the efforts of Supervisors Mahoney and Callahan, 250 loaves of bread were distributed among the two factions late tonight. The bread was distributed under the direction of the police.

It was said that the county authorities would make further provision to feed the men tomorrow.

Leaders of the two "armies" said tonight they wanted to remain in Sacramento for two days and rest.

GIVES CARRANZA LOTS OF ROPE.

Wilson Waiting and American Public Is Watching.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The Cabinet meeting today developed a discussion of the importance of the future attitude of Gen. Carranza, Mexican Constitutionalist leader, toward the United States. The American government, however, intends to suspend further development of its policy toward Mexico until the Constitutionalist commission appointed by Carranza has investigated and reported on the execution of William S. Benton, a British subject.

High officials of the administration believe the fortunes of the Constitutionalist cause hang upon the report and that only a clear explanation of the Benton incident and adequate reparation will regain for Carranza and his followers the prestige they had acquired as persons desiring to restore constitutional government to Mexico.

Administration leaders assert the political future of Carranza seems dependent on the Benton incident, for should the Constitutionalists triumph and Carranza be elected, there are strong indications that Great Britain would refuse to recognize him unless the Benton incident had been settled.

There have been assurances from some of Carranza's friends that the attitude of the Constitutionalist leader that he need not supply information to the United States concerning a British subject will be modified.

Open discussion of the Mexican situation began in the Senate today with a speech by Senator Works of California, Republican, who attacked the administration policy. His remarks brought no reply from administration Senators.

Senator Fall, Republican, of New Mexico, will speak tomorrow on the resolution introduced last fall pledging protection of this government to Americans in Mexico. He plans to make public a mass of information he has gathered on the Mexican situation.

Senator Shively plans to defend the attitude of the administration. Other Senators also will speak if the free-for-all discussion, which has been suppressed in the Senate hitherto, is opened up.

It was stated tonight an effort might be made to go into executive session when the Mexican issue comes up. Gen. Felix Diaz has made indirect overtures to arrange a hearing before the Foreign Relations Committee, but it was said tonight no meeting of the committee had been called for that purpose.

RESPITE FOR TERRAZAS.

Father Given Until Sunday by Villa to Produce Immense Sum or Life Will Be Forfeit.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EL PASO (Tex.) March 6.—The case of Luis Terrazas, whose life has in effect been declared forfeit unless 500,000 pesos are forthcoming by Sunday, was at a standstill tonight.

The ransom has not been paid, as Gen. Luis Terrazas, father of the prisoner, says that out of his vast fortune no such sum is available.

Felix Martinez, prominent politically in this section, is reported to have telegraphed Secretary Bryan inviting him to use his good offices in behalf of the younger Terrazas. Many friends of the latter declare that Villa's threat of taking his captive south with him, which is regarded by the father as a death sentence, is all but empty, as with Luis alive he may extort money from the family, if any is left, while Luis dead would no longer be a weapon in his hands. With Luis still in the land of the living Villa also may hope to control to an extent alleged political activities of the aged father, who is accused by the rebels of financing recent filibustering movements, particularly those of Jose Orozco and the Ouevedo brothers.

George C. Carothers returned today from Nogales, where he had a satisfactory interview with Gen. Carranza. He expects to leave for Chihuahua within a few days.

THE VERGARA CASE.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Secretary Bryan informed Gov. Colquitt of Texas today that the State Department was not disposed to attach undue importance to the question of formal recognition involved in obtaining the extradition of those responsible for the murder of Clemente Vergara, an American citizen.

Mr. Bryan wired that the recovery of the fugitives was a question affecting the ordinary courts of justice and not diplomatic relations. Gov. Colquitt was told that the success of his efforts to obtain extradition probably would depend on the ability of the local authority to whom he appealed to exercise control over the region where the fugitives were supposed to be. The Texas Governor also was reminded that action by Mexican local authorities was subject to review by their Federal government.

BENTON COMMISSION BALKED.

Will Probably Not Go to Chihuahua to Exhume the Body of Gen. Villa's Victim.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 6.—From the British point of view, which will doubtless be adopted by the State Department, no useful purpose can now be served by dispatching to Chihuahua the American-British commission to exhume the body of William S. Benton to discover the manner in which the man met death at the hands of Gen. Villa. Time has probably destroyed any physical evidence for the legal case that ultimately will be presented.

The case ultimately will be presented for settlement by the British government in accordance with the pledge of Sir Edward Grey, and reliance will be placed entirely on testimony already collected.

It is expected that British Consul Perceval, ordered to El Paso in the early stages of the case to co-operate with the American commissioners, will soon return to Galveston.

OLD TREATY WITH MEXICO ALLOWS INTERVENTION.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, March 6.—After having lain in the secret archives of the Senate for more than half a century, the details of a treaty negotiated in 1859 with representatives of Benito Juarez, the "George Washington" of Mexico, and successful contender against Emperor Maximilian, was made public by vote of the Senate in secret session today.

This treaty gives the United States the right to intervene in Mexico for the protection of the lives and property of Americans.

The significance of today's action lies in the fact that this treaty probably will be openly discussed in the Senate at an early date in connection with the possibility of armed intervention.

The treaty was never ratified by the United States because of the confusion incident to the outbreak of the Civil War. It was signed in Vera Cruz on December 14, 1859, by Robert M. McLane, representing the United States, and M. Ocampo, representing the United Mexican States. Article 5 of the treaty reads:

"The Republic of Mexico agrees that should it become necessary at any time to employ military forces for the security and protection of persons and property upon either one of the routes aforesaid, it will employ the requisite force for that purpose, but upon failure to do this, from any cause whatever, the government of the United States may, with the consent, or at the request of the government of Mexico, or the Minister thereof at Washington, or other duly-appointed legal authorities, civil or military, employ such force for this but for no other purpose. # INTERVENTION IS THE DRIFT.

Senators Predict It Will Be in Northern Mexico.

Declare It Inevitable Result of Wilson's Policy.

Call Raising Arms Embargo an Absolute Failure.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, March 6.—Senators familiar with the foreign affairs of the United States today advanced the opinion that the ultimate destination of the present Mexican policy is intervention. Believing it is inevitable, they are in favor of intervention in the northern states of Mexico now. They say this will not be war on Mexico, that President Huerta will be helpless before a restoration of peace in the northern states and that upon the successful conclusion of such intervention by the United States the administration will be in a position to demand the retirement of Huerta at once with some hope of success.

In view of the policy of President Wilson, the above outline of the plan in the minds of conservative Senators sounds like bombast. The fact is this suggestion is seriously entertained in the minds of many conservative statesmen, and it has been discussed in the executive sessions of the Senate. There is strong reason to believe the President foresees that unless something unexpected turns up in the next few weeks or months intervention will be difficult to avoid.

To Senators of long experience in foreign affairs the situation appears to be a deadlock. Disinterested citizens of Mexico—that is, disinterested as between Huerta and Carranza—have told the Senators that there is no hope of a solution of the problem by either of the forces now in the field in that country. They say that should the Constitutionalist army attempt to march to Mexico City the southern provinces of Mexico will rise and repel them. Huerta has been driven out of the northern provinces and to all appearances both sides have about reached the end of their geographic rope.

While Huerta is maintaining a semblance of order in Southern Mexico, the conditions in Northern Mexico are admittedly those of anarchy and chaos, for the reason that the Constitutionalists have been unable to control any independent bands of marauders, who, while operating with them for purposes of personal salvation, are not co-operating with them for law and order.

It is into this territory and for this reason that the Senators would pour the forces of intervention. They say that if the United States owes any duty to humanity and civilization at this time it is to put an end to the anarchy in Northern Mexico. They assert that Huerta is in no position to resent such an intervention in that territory for the reason that he has no control over it and that the best he could hope to do would be to protest from a national standpoint against the presence of foreign troops on Mexican soil. The Senators believe such an intervention could be made successful in three months and peace and tranquillity restored in Northern Mexico.

Having concluded the initial step, they ask whether or not the United States would not be in a better position to deal with Huerta than it is and then proceed to answer that question affirmatively. They believe that with the northern provinces under the control of the United States and with the certainty of his own fall, if he failed to yield upon the promise of the United States to restore those provinces to a constitutional government in Mexico, Huerta would be far more inclined to quit his office as provisional President than he would under any other form of pressure that could be brought to bear upon him.

In fact, they assert that at the present time they cannot see where Huerta is any weaker in his position in Mexico, so far as the domestic conditions are concerned, than he was at the delivery of the President's ultimatum to him last August.

BILLS CARTRIDGES AS NAILS.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Sending 300,000 cartridges to the revolutionists in Northern Mexico cost George Nordenholt, a local ammunition dealer, $1000, not because the cartridges were contraband, but because they were billed as nails. Nordenholt pleaded guilty today in Federal Court to violating the interstate commerce laws and paid his fine.

By shipping the cartridges in 400 kegs covered with a top layer of nails and describing them as nails, Nordenholt saved $500 in freight charges. The shipment probably would have reached its destination without interruption had not one of the kegs broken open in the freight station at Naco, Ariz., just as the consignment was to pass into the hands of Carranza, the Mexican Constitutionalist leader.

President Wilson had raised the embargo on munitions of war a few days before this happened, but the United States authorities immediately made an investigation and arrested Nordenholt for misbranding interstate freight.

PROMISE REDRESS TO TEXAS GOVERNOR

DALLAS (Tex.) March 6.—Gov. O. B. Colquitt of Texas will make requisition on both Federal and rebel authorities in the States of Nuevo Leon and Coahuila, Mex., for the return of the four men held responsible for the kidnaping of the missing American ranchman, Clemente Vergara. The Governor made this announcement tonight, after he had received a telegram from Secretary of State Bryan saying the question of requisition was one of justice and not of diplomacy and concerned only local authorities.

Gen. Joaquin Maas, Federal commander of the northern zone, notified the Governor yesterday that he had ordered the arrests of the men wanted.

Four Mexicans, including Capt. Apolonio Rodrigues, have been charged with horse theft in Texas, on which the request for requisition is based. The alleged theft led to kidnaping of the owner of the stock, Vergara, and later to his alleged execution by the Federals.

CHINAMAN'S WEATHER TIPS BOON TO ORCHARDISTS.

Laundryman of Santa Clara Has Saved Thousands to California Fruit Growers Who Have Taken Advantage of His Storm Warnings, Whose Correctness They Attribute to a Sixth Sense.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA CLARA, March 5.—Sing Kee, known over the State to weather watchers as Mr. Sing Kee, by reason of the publicity he has had under that alias, is a Chinaman with a weather sense. His sixth sense is the ability to forecast weather simply by the "feel of things."

In his own estimate of his weather-predicting ability, Sing Kee says, "I takee look; I know 'em weddah. No keep flog (frog.) No need 'em. No sabbe telescopem. Me tellem weddah; me feel 'em."

Sing Kee knows nothing of heredity and less of weather maps. But he has been the most successful weather prophet in Central California for three years. His "career" began three years ago when it began to be rumored about that the predictions he was making to customers of his laundry here and hereabouts were more certain than the scientifically-based forecasts of the United States Weather Bureau. A newspaper "took him up" and featured his predictions.

Although Sing likes to make day-to-day predictions best—probably on account of the continuous publicity the laundry gets as a result—he has really saved orchardists who took his "tips" thousands of dollars by predicting the drought of the last two years and enabling them to irrigate more copiously than they otherwise would in time to get good crops where their neighbors had failures. He foretold the dry year of 1912 and warned against the drought of 1913. Late last fall he hung out his storm warnings and no irrigating was done except with flood waters, the orchardists saving the expense of pumping.

An enthusiastic rancher offered last fall to build and equip an observatory for Sing Kee, but the celestial would have none of the scientific. He did not need it in his business, he said.

Sing Kee, like other celestials, is a long-suffering man. He kept serene when dishwater from the back porch of a neighbor ran the columns of his rain gauge up to thirty-nine inches for January and the early part of February, although only thirteen inches of rain fell; he was calm when cigar stores hung alleged Chinese posters captioned "Weather Forecast" on the arms of the Indians that adorn the fronts. But let any one suggest that a toad, or a telescope, or a sunspot, or a groundhog, or even a corn, has anything to do with the accuracy of his prognostications and he becomes a terrifying figure. In this condition he could be inveigled into a fist fight—and the Chinese are notoriously ineffective at fisticuffs.

There is a story going the rounds that Sing Kee gets his sixth sense from a race of ancestors who lived in a river bottom where they had to forestall the coming of the rains or be overwhelmed. When their intuition told them to "get out; the rains are coming," and with them the floods, they got. And they saved their families and their baggage. Thus is Sing explained by his friends by the theory of heridity.

DOUGLAS (Ariz.) March 6.—"Let the Chinese wash for each other, and not compete with Mexicans," is the slogan which the washerwomen of Cananea, Son., are reported to have adopted. The members of this Women's Protective League of Cananea, who caused an anti-Chinese riot there last week, are said to have dropped their militant tactics and to have determined to bring pressure to bear on the city officials. Their object was to have the Chinese segregated in one quarter of the city or in a separate settlement.

I.W.W. FOMENT LABOR TROUBLE IN NORTH SONORA.

Driven out of Cananea, Sonora, by labor troubles instigated by I.W.W. agitators believed to have been sent out from Los Angeles, Miss Annie L. Braubach, until recently private secretary to Charles L. Montague, American Consul at the big copper camp, is a refugee in this city. Her departure from Mexico was on the advice of Montague, who believed Cananea unsafe. It followed a mob demonstration which the Constitutionalist government was unable to quell.

Labor troubles are a new offshoot of political turmoil. They were the outgrowth, in Cananea, of a propaganda by a Mexican Socialistic agitator, who was followed in the field by American I.W.W.'s. The latter were apprehended at Buena Vista about February 10, and deported by orders of Frederico A. Platt, prefect. Their Los Angeles connections are surmised because of an article on the subject that appeared in a Spanish Socialistic sheet printed here.

The seed the reds sowed, however, led about two weeks ago to a violent demonstration by employees of the Cananea Consolidated Copper Company, an American concern employing about 2000 men. They demanded of Platt the removal of a commissario stationed at Buena Vista and made their point good, because troops to aid Platt were refused by the commandante, Gen. Ignacio L. Pesquera. Platt is an adherent of Jose Ma. Maytoreno, Pesquera's rival for the Sonora governorship.

The "Four C" employees are now demanding better wages, a change in hospital service and other concessions, and even the women of the camp are rioting. The latter are very bitter against the Chinese, who have taken over the laundry business of the place. This feeling has been carefully fanned into flame, to such an extent that a repetition of the Chinese massacre horrors of Torreon are daily feared.

This condition, which the divided Constitutionalista government has been unable to handle, led to the removal of Miss Braubach because it was considered unsafe for her, though an American citizen, to remain.

Anti-American sentiment has also been fostered by the agitators, Miss Braubach says, but it is not violent.

"Mr. Montague is a good consul," she said. "He has been kept very busy getting Americans out of jail. Many of them, including two officials of the Cananea Consolidated Copper Company, have been arrested for refusal to accept the Constitutionalist money. Mr. Montague has managed to keep them clear of the carcel.

"You see, Carranza is attempting to force the acceptance of the Constitutionalist currency, which has been issued in immense amounts.

"Before that there was no small change to be had, nothing less than a $5 bill. To meet the situation the Mercantile Banking Company of Cananea, of which Mr. Montague is manager, issued scrip in denominations of from 25 cents to $2. This was the best money we had. However, its retirement was ordered. It was redeemed with checks on the Bank of Bisbee, Ariz. These bank checks were in demand then, not only in Cananea, but in all north Sonora. But they have also been ordered retired, and the use of Constitutionalist money is being enforced rigidly."

Miss Braubach, before the outbreak of the Madero revolution, was a teacher of Spanish shorthand in the Internado Nacional, a government school in Mexico City, acting under an appointment from Porfirio Diaz. She continued to hold this position till just before Madero entered the City of Mexico, when she left on the advice of American officials. She is a native of San Antonio.

CHICAGO BOARD INVITES INQUIRY

Officers Tell Congress to Start Investigation.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Asks exhaustive investigation of grain changes, preferably by a joint commission of members of Congress and business men selected by the President, would be welcomed by the Chicago Board of Trade. Officers of members of the board so declared today before the House Rules Committee in answer to charges that the board is involved in a monopoly to combine which arbitrarily fixes the price of wheat on the farms. The committee will conclude its hearings on the Manahan resolution, urging investigation tomorrow, when officials and members of the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce will be heard.

President C. H. Canby, Vice-President J. P. Griffin and former President H. N. Sager of the Chicago board were before the committee today denying that there was even a possibility of monopoly and describing the present system of marketing farm products as the best that human ingenuity had yet evolved. Trading in futures, they said, was the backbone of the system, the method that made it possible to give the grower a ready day a market for his products. President Canby argued that since the grain crop was harvested in a few days, although its consumption was spread over an entire year, some method of carrying the crop along was called for by consumers had been provided. This was done, he said, through the future trading and hedging orders.

CANBY'S EXPERIENCE.

"It was my experience in three years of wheat trading," he said, "that this speculative dealing does not influence the price of grain. The fact that trading in the wheat pit of Chicago is furnished free, open competition, grain, the thing the President has been preaching so long. The system is working out the system, the 1-cent per bushel commission on futures might well be termed the premium for the insurance."

Mr. Canby compared conditions in the grain industry of the United States with those in Argentina, where he said a few large interests dominated the business and gave producers the lowest possible prices because there was no open exchange.

ELEVATOR MAN'S VIEW.

John S. Stream, of a Chicago elevator company, declared that he had not been a dollar's profit in the elevator business in the last three years. His company would go out of the business, he said, but for the fact that its trading in futures has to be protected with that of its capacity. He denied that there was or ever had been a monopoly or combination among warehouse men.

DISTRIBUTOR'S IDEA.

James Simpson, a New York grain distributor, defended future trading as vital in an economic sense, and incidentally he declared that the removal of duty on corn had cost American corn producers $65,000,000 in the Argentine competition.

SCORE BOOKS OF ST. PAUL.

Irregularities Charged in Its Accounting System.

Interstate Commissioners Say Public Is Misled.

Declare Figures Intended to Bolster Its Securities.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Charges that the books accounts of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway Company and of its subsidiary, the Chicago, Milwaukee and Puget Sound Railroad Company, have been manipulated so as to mislead the public and lead to create a more favorable market for the securities of the companies were contained in a report made public today by the Interstate Commerce Commission after an exhaustive examination of the financial affairs of the roads.

While criticising and condemning the accounting methods followed by the companies, however, Commissioner Harlan, who prepared the report, declared:

"We do not mean to be understood as implying here said as intimating that the St. Paul company is not a valuable property and is not achieving results reasonably anticipated from the extension of its lines to the Pacific Coast."

The discoveries by the investigation of Chief Commissioner Harlan described in the report as "serious irregularities" in the accounting system of the roads, were regarded by the commission as indefensible, although officials of the St. Paul company declared that they "resulted from inadvertence and a lack of attention on the part of the company controller and those under him with the requirements of the law."

BASIS OF CRITICISM.

"There is no sufficient basis of record," says the commissioner's report, "to enable us to condemn or acquit the controller either of full responsibility or of his share of responsibility for the entirety of the accounts of the companies, but there are grounds for thinking that his responsibility was materially qualified and limited by the instructions and direction given him by the executive and other officials. Whatever may be the fact in that regard, the commission feels that a more careful system of our rules and regulations is required for the future. This we confidently anticipate will be done."

A general admonition contained in the report made it clear that the commission hereafter will hold to strict responsibility all common carriers for accuracy and truthfulness of statements contained in the reports of their financial operations.

In some instances, today's report stated, "a financially strong road with large net earnings would not attempt to conceal the facts by adding to its operating expense accounts moneys disbursed in improving its property. On the other hand, a financially weak road, seeking to enhance its credit by a good showing of operating results, would include in its property accounts sums expended in operation.

The result was that a carriers' annual and monthly statements of revenues often reflected nothing more than the particular showing desired by its executive. These reports were used for speculative purposes and the stockholder and the general public were left without any means as to whether the dividends declared were paid from income or from or out of capital.

Under the accounting rules of the commission, the St. Paul company was permitted to include in its accounts a proper revenue for the transportation of men and material, of equipment and other of its assets used in the construction of the Puget Sound, and interest on the money advanced. That course, however, was not pursued. On the contrary, the St. Paul company included in income accounts for the year all the interest, rents and revenues assignable to the period prior to January 1, 1909, the sum total amounting to over $4,000,000. In the same year it has decreased its operating expenses by crediting thereto more than $500,000 on account of the damage of corn destroyed previous to the year 1907.

By means of these entries the income of the Chicago, Milwaukee and Puget Sound Railway Company for the year 1913 was overstated by more than $1,000,000. As a result of this treatment of income, the report says, the St. Paul company for the succeeding year showed an apparent increase of 1 per cent in revenue and income of more than $1,000,000. In its report to its stockholders for the year 1911, the dividends offered by the officers of the company was that 'the large decrease in the net operating revenue is accounted for by the inability to obtain increased rates and the great increase in the cost of labor.' This statement was not in accordance with the facts. So far from being an increase in the expenditures for labor during the fiscal year 1911, the expenditures on that account were about $50,000 less than in the previous year, according to the company's own reports to the commission.

"The delinquencies in the accounting of the Puget Sound company are, however, of even greater significance. A large traffic was offered to the Puget Sound line as soon as it was opened, and the evidence before us leads us to think that a correct showing of the operating results for the first year would have been most satisfactory. Not content, however, with a statement of the facts, the income of the Puget Sound was greatly overstated, a variety of expedients having been resorted to for this purpose.

"The general public interest demands that the financial reports of carriers shall be true records of the facts that they purport to show. Public confidence both at home and abroad in the financial statements rendered by our carriers is very necessary to the further development of our transportation facilities, and to the degree that the accounts of any carrier are tainted with the suspicion of untrustworthiness, to that extent they will tend to impair confidence among investors."

EARLING EXPLAINS.
SAYS SYSTEM WAS REVISED.

CHICAGO, March 6.—An explanation of conditions on which were based the charges made today by the Interstate Commerce Commission against the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad, was made tonight by A. J. Earling, president of the road. Mr. Earling gave the reason for the apparent over-valuation of the investment in the Puget Sound extension and asserted there had been "no intention to make other than accurate statements of its operating or financial condition, for the purpose of promoting the sale of its stock or for any other purpose."

The statement says that the $3,000,000 original stock of the Puget Sound company was raised to $100,000,000 because a mortgage for $200,000,000 was needed to complete the construction, and under the laws of the State of Washington, in which the Puget Sound line was incorporated, bonds issued by railroad companies must not exceed double the amount of the capital stock.

"Certificates representing this amount of stock," says the statement, "were delivered to the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway Company January 2, 1909. This company has ever since held these certificates. It has never parted with a single share of this stock and never will.

"About a year ago the commission called attention to the accounts of the Puget Sound company in connection with its construction and early operation. After several conferences with a member of the commission it was arranged that the accounts which had been questioned should be revised. Practically all the accounts have been revised in conformity with the requirements of the commission.

"These differences in accounting occurred during the transition of the Puget Sound lines from a construction to an operating condition, covering three years or more. Construction and operating work was carried on simultaneously, necessarily leading to accounting discrepancies in auditing reports of large numbers of new men who were not familiar with the classification of accounts as prescribed by the commission."

Picks up for the Month of January, But Seven Months' Loss Is Ninety-eight Per Cent.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Directors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company discussed the Boston and Maine situation at a special meeting today, but Chairman Howard Elliott said that no definite announcement of plans could be made at this time.

"General conditions surrounding the affairs of the road," Mr. Elliott said, "were discussed, but I cannot at this time make any announcement, except that before any settlement with the government is accepted by the company the whole question will be submitted to the stockholders."

It was announced that the net corporate income of the New Haven system for January, exclusive of the Boston and Maine and Maine Central, from which the New Haven management has withdrawn, was $899,187, against $349,542 in January of 1913.

In the seven months ending January 31, last, the net corporate income was $152,216, against $4,542,342 in the corresponding period of the preceding year a loss of approximately 98 per cent.

All of the New Haven subsidiaries, including the New York, Ontario and Western Railway Company, the Merchants' and Miners' Transportation Company, the Connecticut company, the Rhode Island company, the New York and Stamford company and the New York, Westchester and Boston Railway Company, show heavy losses for the current fiscal year.

WOMEN FEAR DEFEAT OF SUFFRAGE MEASURE.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont served notice on Senator Ashurst today that militants would declare war on any who permitted the woman suffrage constitutional amendment to come to a vote in the Senate at this session if there is doubt that it could command the necessary two-thirds.

"If you allow the woman suffrage amendment to go to a vote now," Mrs. Belmont telegraphed, "I shall consider you false to our interests and will not hesitate to make the women in important places. We have asked you to push the amendment to a vote now are sincerely interested in its immediate passage. They are progressives who are using you. Beware of their influence. We expect you to represent us."

Senator Ashurst is one of the leaders, if not the leader, of the whole movement. He volunteered Senator Ollie James' opinion that Senator Ashurst added "a very excellent woman."

Mrs. Belmont's but futile attempt to get unanimous consent to bring on the resolution and have a vote next Tuesday, the discussion will be resumed Monday.

Mrs. Medill McCormick, chairman of the Congressional Committee of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, in a statement commenting on the remarks of Mrs. Belmont to Senator Ashurst, said:

"Mrs. Belmont holds no office in the National American Woman Suffrage Association and can not speak for its 462,000 members. As representing the national association, we deem it for the best interests of our cause to have a vote on the pending amendment immediately upon the close of the discussion in the Senate."

SUFFRAGE WAR IN SOUTH.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, said today she would be unable to participate personally in the suffrage campaign which the association is about to undertake in the South. An accident which Dr. Shaw suffered several weeks ago compelled her to remain at home.

It was announced that Miss Jane Addams, first vice-president of the association, had given up her plans to take a vacation and decided to take Dr. Shaw's place in the southern trip.

WORKS ATTACKS WILSON'S POLICY.

Declares It Spineless in Relations With Mexico.

Senator Thinks Intervention May Be Necessary.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—An old-fashioned partisan debate on one year of Democratic rule almost completely side-tracked consideration of the woman suffrage constitutional amendment in the Senate today. Senator Works hurled a broadside of criticism at the administration's record, while Senator Simmons, chairman of the Finance Committee, defended his party's legislative career. He drew from Senator Smoot a counter attack on his tariff remarks, the Utah Senator basing his statements largely on treasury statistics.

Senator Works's arraignment of Democratic rule culminated in an attack on its Mexican policy as hopeless. Senator Simmons avoided stirring up this delicate question by limiting his reply to legislative accomplishments. He resented particularly the remark that Congress had been deprived of its function by executive dictation and caucus rule.

"There was a time when caucuses defeated the will of the people," Senator Simons said, "but that was when Wall street and the special interests controlled them. The greatest achievement of Woodrow Wilson lies in the fact that he has restored representative government in this country; that he has taken the government out of the hands of those special interests and laid it once more in the hands of the people; that the people rule not only at the ballot-box but in the United States Senate."

DEFENDS NEW TARIFF.

Senator Simmons suggested that Senator Works's statements about the American markets having been turned over to foreign countries were an exaggeration due to a disappointment on his part that the lemon and raisin industries of California had not been given a prohibitive duty in the Democratic tariff bill. He insisted the California Senator had overlooked something in stating in one breath that the cattle, wheat, lemon and raisin industries had been turned over to foreigners, and in the next that there had been no reduction in the price of these articles.

The Democratic party expected there would be a falling off of duties under its tariff law, the Senator said, adding:

"We intended to relieve the people from the high taxes of the Republican rule."

Turning to the Republican side of the chamber, Senator Simmons asserted that the only importation that was injuring American labor was the admission into this country of ignorant foreigners in response to the demand of American manufacturers who had for years appealed to Congress for high protective duties to enable them to "keep up the American standard of wages."

He defended the currency bill, stating that it had met general favor, particularly with country banks that had felt the enslaving grasp of the Wall-street pirates.

WORKS'S SPEECH.

"We may be forced yet," said Senator Works, "to intervene in some form in Mexico. If we do, it should not be for the aggrandizement of our country, the acquisition of territory, or any other advantage to us, but in the interest of the Mexican people and other residents there, the restoration of peace and order and the establishment of a stable government for our sister republic."

To speak of the relations of the United States with Mexico, Senator Works asserted was an unpleasant task.

"It is a dark page in our history," he continued. "Unless the American people shall have lost all virility, courage and patriotism, it would be read in the years to come with sorrow and shame. For three long years American citizens have been murdered, their wives and daughters outraged, their homes pillaged and their property destroyed, and this administration has done nothing more than enter occasional mild protests and submissive appeals and to whom? To Huerta, whose government we had refused to recognize and, who, according to our view, had no power nor authority to act. To Villa, not recognized as a belligerent; not even a soldier, but a brigand and murderer of innocent people. To Carranza, a weakling dominated by Villa and equally without authority. What had we a right to expect from protests and appeals made to such as these?"

Senator Works outlined the events in the history of Mexico, leading up to the present difficulties and the refusal of this government to recognize Huerta after the assassination of Madero, "doubtless by Huerta, who succeeded him, or with his knowledge and connivance."

After the withdrawal of Ambassador Wilson from Mexico, Senator Works declared, referring to the sending of John Lind to Mexico City, there "commenced a series of conduct of a kind wholly unknown to diplomacy and so absurd as to make us ridiculous at home and abroad."

The demand of the President in his message to Huerta, that there should be an armistice, could not have been complied with, the Senator continued, and the demand that security be given for a free election in Mexico was impossible of fulfillment, because of the ignorance of the Mexican masses. Such an election, he declared, probably would have brought about the "election of a bull fighter for President."

"Naturally, Huerta refused to consider these proposals," continued the Senator. "What else could have been expected? His refusal put our government in a most unfortunate position. It could not enforce its demands. It might go to war, but the refusal to comply with the demands could furnish no justification for declaring war, because we had no right to make them. So we had to submit tamely to the position of Huerta, bear the derision and sneers of the Mexican people and the indulgent smiles of all the nations of the world. And, sir, whatever may be said of Huerta in other respects—and I have no disposition to defend him, he did bear himself with courage, wisdom and moderation in this whole matter.

"At last a prominent British subject was brutally murdered by Villa or by his orders. Public indignation ran high. The people were aroused, but the State Department maintained its usual degree of composure. I do not know why the murder of a citizen of Great Britain should have created more feeling than the assassination of hundreds of our own people, except that we have assumed to be the protector of the citizens and subjects of all other nations and insisted that such nations should leave this duty and responsibility to us. It therefore involves the question of our good faith toward other nations when we allow their people to be slaughtered in Mexico.

"This case was one to put our good faith and our courage to the test. The poor widow asked for the body of her dead husband, buried on Mexican soil. What did our government do to secure this right? It humbly petitioned Villa, his murderer, to allow the remains to be removed. The State Department spent days in trying to find out whether this man was shot by Villa or put to death by order of a drumhead court-martial, called not by a soldier, not by a belligerent, but by a brigand and professional murder. What possible difference did it make whether he lost his life one way or the other? For this the sorrowing widow was left waiting for her dead. What should have the government done in the case? Just what it should have done for one of its own citizens—sent our soldiers into Mexico and brought out the body. What right has Villa to say that the body of the victim of his wrath and cruelty should be removed or not? What has become of our courage and manhood that we could leave it to him to settle such a question?"

Congressman Stephens Declares the President's Message Has Stirred Democrats, as Well as Republicans.

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, March 6.—Representative Stephens said today he had talked to numerous members of the House on free tolls and he had found the message of the President had resulted in much bitter feeling. He found this to be the case among Democrats, as well as others. Stephens believes the appeal to surrender on free tolls in order to help international relations is decidedly unpopular in Congress, despite the fact most of the Democrats will do as the President wants them to do.

FIFTY MILLIONS BY INCOME TAX.

Revenue from the New Law Delights Democrats.

Final Figures Expected to Show Larger Returns.

Many Schedules Delayed by Absence or Sickness.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The income tax law bids fair to live up to the expectations of the administration by producing about $50,000,000 annually in revenue paid by close to 425,000 individuals. Although treasury officials decided tonight not to make public, for the present, reports of internal revenue collectors on the income tax, it became known that more than 400,000 individuals had made returns up to Monday midnight, when the time limit expired. From these individuals it was understood the government probably would collect more than $40,000,000.

It has been the opinion among officials that thousands of individuals would take advantage of the thirty days' extension of time granted in case of absence and sickness and they expect the final figures to show at least 25,000 more reporting than were given in the preliminary lists from collectors.

Including the incorporation tax as amended in the present law, it was estimated that the annual revenue from this source would amount to about $85,000,000.

"N. G." GOETHALS'S VERDICT.

Canal Builder Declares It Would Not Pay to Use Panama Machinery on Alaska Job.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Suggestions that machinery and equipment used in the construction of the Panama Canal be brought north for service in Mississippi Valley flood-prevention work, or in building the proposed government railroad in Alaska, were stamped as impracticable today by Col. Goethals. The canal builder was before the Senate Commerce Committee at the chairman's request to discuss the Ransdell bill proposing an appropriation of about $60,000,000 for Mississippi River improvements.

He said it would not pay to bring any of the machinery except perhaps some of the dredges to the United States for use in any kind of work, and that it was more economical always to start in with new equipment. Machinery in the Canal Zone has not been kept in condition, he added, parts of many machines no longer needed having been used to repair others.

Beware of Boils—THEIR Very Appearance Denotes a Blood Condition That Requires Prompt Action

At the first appearance of pimples and boils the blood should be given a good searching internal bath with S. S. S., the greatest blood purifier known to man.

This remarkable remedy has the peculiar action of soaking through the intestines directly into the blood. In a few minutes its influence is at work in every artery, vein and tiny capillary. Every membrane, every organ of the body, every emunctory becomes in effect a filter to strain the blood of impurities. The stimulating properties of S. S. S. compel the skin, liver, bowels, kidneys, bladder, to all work to the one end of casting out every irritating, every pain-inflicting atom of poison; it dislodges by irrigation all accumulations in the joints, causes acid accretions to dissolve, renders them neutral and scatters those peculiar formations in the skin that cause boils and other skin eruptions.

And best of all this remarkable remedy is welcome to the weakest stomach, in a very brief time S. S. S. has the reconstructive process so under control that remarkable changes are observed. All eruptive places heal, mysterious pains and aches have disappeared, and from head to foot there is a conscious sensation of renewed health. That strange moody, morbid feeling of depression is lifted and the entire system responds with surprising energy.

How to Have Red Lips

The girl with red lips and pink cheeks may be thankful, for both denote health—vigorous, forceful, magnetic health, and while it may be impossible for some to attain owing to morbid states of health, yet a vast majority of seemingly healthy young women and men are almost colorless, because of a lack of red blood corpuscles. When the blood is improved and enriched with these red corpuscles, the weight increases and a beautiful tint appears on the cheeks, while the lips assume a healthy red color. Many physicians and beauty doctors prescribe three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets which are said to invariably increase the red blood corpuscles after a course of treatment lasting several months. The nervous system and general health also improve rapidly. The best physicians and apothecary shops supply this tablet in sealed packages. —[Advertisement.

Democrats in Congress.

urge the compromise bill offered by Senator Chilton of West Virginia, a member of the committee, which would authorize the President to regulate tolls and assess charges at his discretion, wherever exemption is provided in the Canal Act.

"I believe more Senators would vote for my amendment than will support a flat repeal measure," said Senator Chilton tonight. "Although the amendment would accomplish repeal of toll exemption indirectly, it would not repudiate the Democratic platform plank endorsing toll exemption and Senators who flatly refuse to go back on that plank could vote for it."

In the House there was quick response to the President's address, the committee voting 13 to 3 to favorably report the Sims repeal bill. Absent members who were recorded made the vote 17 to 4.

Chairman Adamson had ready a draft of the report when the committee met. It based approval of the Sims bill on the same two broad grounds set forth in the President's message, general international comity, and the immediate foreign situation confronting the country. Representative Knowland of California, who led the opposition in the committee, was given three days to file a minority report and Chairman Adamson was authorized to urge the Rules Committee to report a special rule to hasten the bill through the House. The subject will be pressed at once and it is expected a rule will be brought into the House, probably by Thursday of next week.

Representative Adamson will take charge of the situation in the House as Majority Leader Underwood, for the first time during the administration, finds himself on the anti-administration side of the question. Representative Underwood has announced his intention of not only voting against the bill, but also of making a speec hagainst it. Despite this, however, the leaders of the repeal forces asserted today they were assured of a substantial majority to carry out the President's will.

In its report today the committee, which provided for uniform tolls in the canal act as originally reported, reiterates its position.

"We deem it proper now," said the report, "to consider the international situation and our obligations and policies in relation thereto. True, there has been as yet no friction, nor even strained relations with foreign governments, but we are advised the opposite party to the principal treaty under which the canal was constructed fails to approve our action in providing for the exemption or to concur in our construction of the treaty. Other maritime nations hold the same dissenting opinion, and in the whole family of nations we stand alone in our contentions. In such a situation it is not always necessary or wise to urge our contention, even though convinced of our abstract right. We are not disturbed by the taunt made for a purpose, that repeal would be truckling and yielding to foreign demands. A similar taunt could be lodged against any man or nation honorable enough to promote friendly relations by according respectful consideration to views of the opposite party."

After a discussion of the provisions of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty and the declaration that the coastwise trade of the United States does not need the assistance of free tolls, the committee report said:

"The foreign governments objecting to our construction of the treaty can find a hundred points in the world's commerce to retaliate and discriminate, where we may blunder into using one. Our resources, genius and geographical position equip us to defy the world to outstrip us on fair and equal terms. As a nation we cannot afford to rest under the imputation whether just or unjust of disregarding our plighted honor, nor should we hold a debatable position far enough to arouse friction, resentment or retaliation.

"It is folly to refuse to do right because a foreign nation, party to a treaty, complains that our course is wrong. We might in any kind of a contest with other nations win by sheer strength and skill, and in winning we might save all except honor. Far better to abolish the canal itself than even to permit our national honor to remain in question."

UNITE CALIFORNIA ON TOLLS REPEAL.

The following telegram has been received from the Associated Chambers of Commerce of the Pacific Coast, in response to an inquiry sent to that body by the Los Angeles chamber with reference to Panama Canal matters:

"Have requested California delegations to oppose amendment free-toll bill. C. W. BURKS, "Secretary."

The True Case.

UNITED STATES SHOULD CONTROL PANAMA CANAL.

Comprehensive Survey of Diplomatic Negotiations Clearly Shows that England's Demands Are Not Fair. No Limitations Should Be Placed on Our Supervision of the "Big Ditch."

A COMPREHENSIVE survey of the diplomatic negotiations relative to the Panama Canal is given in the current number of the American Review of Reviews, which clearly shows not only that the demands of England to the effect that we repeal the law exempting vessels of this country engaged in coastwise traffic from the payment of tolls at the canal are unfair, but that the question is a pure quibble; that the United States could easily circumvent England's demands by giving a bounty to all American ships engaged in coastwise commerce while charging them tolls. The giving of bounties or subsidies is extensively practiced by the English government, and it would have no ground upon which to establish a protest if the United States gave the ships of this country passing through the canal a subsidy instead of exempting them from the payment of tolls.

The Review of Reviews also shows that the time the United States began the construction of the canal "no maritime power in the world imagined" that it had any right to interfere with the uses and purposes for which our government would operate the canal.

Says the Review of Reviews:

There has been a very sincere difference of opinion upon the question of Panama Canal tolls. In August, 1912, Congress enacted a law providing for the future administration of the canal and of the ten-mile-wide zone through which the canal passes. One of the sections of that law gives free passage through the canal to the coastwise ships of the United States. The British government objected to our favored treatment of our own shipping; but Mr. Taft, who was then President, emphatically agreed with Mr. Knox, who was then Secretary of State, in upholding the legislation. In a treaty drawn by the late Mr. Hay, and signed by Lord Pauncefote on behalf of England—known as the Hay-Pauncefote treaty—our government had stated that it was going to give equal treatment to the ships of all countries in the canal. The British government holds that in allowing our coastwise ships to use the canal without paying tolls we are violating that treaty and doing a harm to Great Britain.

Our coastwise trade has always by law been confined to American ships. The intention of the American people in constructing the canal was to make it an extension of our coast line. The public was not at any time aware that the late Mr. John Hay was signing away our right to apply our policy regarding domestic trade to the canal which we were building at the national expense, on territory under our own jurisdiction, with the express object of extending our coast line and uniting our seaboards. This magazine gave particular attention at the time of their promulgation to the treaties known as the first and second Hay-Pauncefote conventions. Both of them were so drawn as to be bound to raise troublesome questions. There was not the slightest reason for drawing or signing, or ratifying either one of them. But at that time the Senate of the United States was preoccupied, and it seemed to be wanting in its usual intelligence and foresight; and Mr. Hay, who was the sole author of both treaties, happened to have a point of view quite different from that prevailing in this country.

No maritime power in the world imagined that it had any right whatsoever to place limitations upon the United States as respects the uses of a waterway constructed by the government itself. It is not true that the old Clayton-Bulwer treaty of sixty-four years ago was generally regarded as being in effect, or as having any bearing upon the canal projects which Congress began to discuss at the end of the Spanish-American War. That treaty of 1850 was related in the most specific way to a project of private capital then on foot to open a canal through Nicaragua. The project failed, all the conditions changed, and the Clayton-Bulwer convention had for a generation been regarded as a lapsed arrangement, and had been so treated by both countries in a number of actual instances. The circumstances under which John Hay, singly and without suggestion, brought to life a treaty that had passed into history as completely as any old instrument between Athens and Sparta, or between Carthage and Rome, constitute one of the most curious episodes in all the history of diplomacy. It is not much to the discredit of Mr. Hay, whose motives were of the highest, but who was not an authority in the subject-matter. Nor is it to the discredit of Lord Pauncefote and the British government, who accepted with ill-concealed astonishment the position in which the United States had placed itself wholly of its own accord. But it is decidedly to the discredit of the Senate of the United States that it should, a dozen years ago, have ratified a treaty the meaning of which it is disputing about today.

Since there was no possible reason for our making any treaty at all with England regarding canal tolls, any more than with Japan or with Norway, it might seem both quibbling and ungenerous on the part of England to insist that we must construe the treaty against ourselves on a point that is open to construction in two different ways, and which amounts to nothing substantial when closely analyzed. Since nearly all governments subsidize their shipping, and since England is at liberty to remit the tolls of British merchant ships passing through the canal by the simple plan of paying them in the form of a subsidy, it is not denied that the United States may collect the tolls from its coastwise ships through one officer and pay them back in the form of a subsidy five minutes later, through another officer. Mr. Taft and Mr. Knox, together with a majority in both houses of Congress in 1912, held that "equal treatment" meant that we should treat all foreign nations alike, because we could have had no reason for subjecting a purely domestic policy regarding our own shipping to agreement with foreign countries, any more than those countries would have thought of subjecting their subsidy policies to negotiations with us.

There has been, on the part of many newspapers and periodicals of this country, an eager acquiescence in the view that the treaty is open to only one possible construction, and that we have plainly violated it in the legislation which provides for free passage of our coastwise ships. The discussions that accompany these expressions of view disclose no background of acquaintance with the facts necessary to an intelligent understanding of the question. In this comment we are dealing with the theoretical rights of the government and people of the United States as respects the use of their own canal. It is our opinion that the rights of the United States are as complete and as unqualified as are its rights in any of the harbors and ports of the country, or in the Mississippi River. It is naturally our policy to treat all nations alike; but we are under quite as much obligation to Germany as to England, and under no less obligation to Japan. Our treatment of our coastwise ships in the Panama Canal is a local and domestic matter, of no real concern to Japan, Germany or Great Britain.

It does not follow, however, that it is the best policy to exempt ships from payment of toll, even though it may be within the right of our government to subsidize its coastwise ships in one way or in another. President Wilson strongly recommends that Congress repeal the free tolls provision. He made this view plain in a letter published early last month, in which he took the ground that "the exemption constitutes a very mistaken policy from every point of view." He thought that it would not be a real benefit to American shipping, but would at present benefit only a monopoly. Furthermore, it seemed to him to be "in clear violation of the terms of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty." On this point President Wilson made the following interesting remarks:

"There is, of course, much honest difference of opinion as to the last point, as there is, no doubt, as to the others; but it is at least debatable, and if the promises we make in such matters are debatable, I for one do not care to debate them. I think the country would prefer to let no question arise as to its whole-hearted purpose to redeem its promises in the light of any reasonable construction of them rather than debate a point of honor."

This is a very high-minded position, and it claims and holds our sympathy. If, indeed, a question of our honor is at stake, we must uphold our honor and not quibble on our side. Unhappily, the quibbling seems rather to be on the other side. We are precisely in the position of a farmer who, without compensation and through sheer generosity, tells his neighbor in a letter that he is going to allow that neighbor to enter his gates and take a short cut across his land to avoid a long detour by the public highway. The neighbor begins to construe his privilege, wholly unpaid for, as a legal right, and proceeds to question the man's use of his own land and his own private roads for his own purposes. Our treatment of our own shipping in our own canal does not in any way curtail or obstruct the privileges in the canal which we have freely accorded on equal terms to all other nations. The point of honor seems to us to belong wholly on the other side. We have conferred a great boon upon the world in the construction of the canal and British trade will share in our great work more than that of any other country. The people of Great Britain cannot afford, in a material sense, because of their liberty, as no one does, to pay the tolls in the form of a subsidy or equivalent amount.

It has not seemed wholly sincere on the part of Great Britain to make an issue on this point, for what the homely old adage terms "looking a gift horse in the mouth." Such assertiveness does not add to her credit upon the British record. Nor does it seem quite dignified to raise a point of treaty construction apart from a downright statement of the real trouble. Nobody doubts that the British government would have raised the point of law if it did not count or that it attached any importance to it. The whole trouble is the fact that our Panama Canal legislation is disagreeable to Canadian and British railroad companies that own ships, and who want to enjoy privileges in the canal which are not even accorded to railroad-owned ships of the citizens of the United States. Only one thing is clear, and that is that the American press and people were too hasty in reflecting the views of our own government in international relations. A careful study of international relations and diplomatic affairs during recent times leads us to the view that American standards of honor and of things have been considerably higher than those of most nations with which we have had negotiations, as respects the matters involved in the Hay-Pauncefote treaties. The attitude from the first has been that of a nation laboring under the obsession of a quixotic hallucination.

It has been stated, rightly and crudely at Washington, that the proposed repeal of the exemption clause is simply the proposition of paying for England's friendship at a time when the Mexican situation and some other matters of international relationship are causing anxiety. There can be no particular objection to repealing the criticised clause, but unless such action should result in deeper misunderstandings in the future. The people and government of the United States have just completed a great engineering triumph at Panama and a still greater triumph. What they have done practically makes Panama theirs in a sense. These achievements, for which the treaties or leases or agreements having to do with them gave the original right of way, have given America its present position. Quite regardless of any technical opinions of lawyers or diplomatists, the American people will regard the control of the Canal as coming under the head of sovereignty in an unqualified and permanent way. In times of peace they will welcome the ships of all nations, but they will fortify the canal and have far clearer sense of ownership and control than that by which Great Britain fortifies Gibraltar or Malta. The real motive in constructing the canal was to double the efficiency of the navy in the protection of their Atlantic and Pacific coasts. If the Hay-Pauncefote treaty is so construed as to be inconsistent with the sovereignty of the United States, and with the fundamental objects of the canal, the treaty will in due time be denounced. Japan denounced the commercial treaties which in effect limited her sovereignty and denied her the right to deal freely with things pertaining to her own welfare and prosperity.

With these fundamentals clearly and well understood, so that false and fantastic conceptions may be avoided, there can be no objection to treating our neighbors as much as possible on the basis of the use of our property. It is, after all, a trifle disconcerting to have a neighbor exacting and unreasonable to have him attempting to dictate to you about the use of your own property in ways which are unrelated to the privileges which you have accorded him. The fact remains that we have no controlling interest in foreign policy, and no control whatever over even ordinary information. We have kept alive and made available a deliberately creditable body of public opinion that it is entirely upon points of international law, but it should be intelligent enough to be easily victimized in the future by the belief that our own rights are wrong. So far as this particular question is concerned, our rights were made fourteen years ago, the treaty was duly signed and ratified, and it must be recorded that the world does not agree with us in the meaning of a particular clause which we ought to do one of these things: First, change our minds about England's claim, which we regard as rather unfortunate as a matter of principle; second, submit the difference to arbitration; or, denounce and abrogate the treaty, substituting for it a declaration to the nations of our purpose to guarantee the impartial use of the canal to all. If we had been governed by the principles of common sense, we should have made such an announcement of policy when we entered upon our policy, but we would have no treaties except with nations whose sovereignty was not disputed by our project.

Calamity.

CALL STAND OF WILSON CONFESSION OF FAILU

PORTLAND, March 6.—That it would be a national calamity if the United States repeals the toll exemption clause of the Panama Canal law, is the view which practically all of Portland and Oregon takes from the Governor down to the lowest citizen who pretends to know anything of marine conditions here.

Norman F. Titus, manager of the Pacific Steamship Company, a graduate of the University of California, and one of the most progressive steamship men on the Coast, was determined in voicing his sentiment against President Wilson's belief and request made yesterday to Congress.

SAYS IT SPELLS CALAMITY.

"It would be the worst thing that could happen to Pacific Coast as well as Atlantic steamship conditions if Congress acts favorably on the President's message," said Mr. Titus. "Practically every business man and marine man with whom I have talked on the subject is of like belief."

GOV. WEST'S VIEW.

Gov. West, now in New York on his way to Washington, tonight expressed himself in the same tone of voice and sentiment, asserting the repeal of the law would mean disaster to Pacific Coast shipping.

AGREES WITH GOVERNOR.

A. H. Averill, president of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, and who is conversant with situations as the business man sees them, is of like mind, and said the chamber long ago went on record favoring free tolls for coastwise shipping.

In Portland and Oregon the sentiment might be summed up as expressed by a prominent citizen today:

"President Wilson's message to congress for repeal of the free toll exemption clause of the Panama canal law is a confession of failure to the agreement of our foreign treaties. What other conclusion can be drawn from his asking this government to surrender of a right we have always claimed and a policy which every party has indorsed? What else is meant by this sentence in his address?

"'I shall not know how to deal with other matters of international delicacy and nearer concern if you do not grant it to me in this grudging measure.'

"This is the language of a man who is bewildered by the developments in which he has involved himself.

"The surrender of Mr. Wilson's purposes will not increase our respect for us as a nation. The spectacle of Uncle Sam as a repentant sinner on the mourner's bench will excite secret derision in the foreign Offices of Europe and open laughter."

FEDERALS RACE TO MEET SHIP.

Magnates Dash Down in a Revenue Cutter.

NEW YORK, March 6.—Organized baseball scored heavily today in the struggle with the Federal League for the services of the players who completed their round-the-world tour early today. The Boston Americans signed Tris Speaker for two years; the Detroit Americans closed a contract with Sam Crawford, and the St. Louis Americans kept Pitcher Leverenz in line with a considerable raise in salary.

Although the Federal League magnates were in conference with all these players, they were unable to procure their service and the best they could do with Mike Doolan of the Philadelphia Nationals and Dick Egan of Brooklyn was to obtain a promise to consider the propositions made by the new organizations. "Steve" Evans and Lee Magee of the St. Louis Nationals also were reported to be comparing the offers of the two forces.

It was a day of propositions, counter propositions, conferences and contract-dashing, but at midnight organized baseball still was holding the lead which it gained when several of the National and American League magnates boarded the steamer Lusitania down the bay, while the Federal Leaguers were forced to wait for several hours at the pier before they could communicate with those among the returning players they desired to sign.

The Federal League representatives were unable to obtain passes to board the Lusitania to greet the travelers down the bay. Organized baseball was more fortunate in having obtained revenue-cutter passes in advance and a delegation was able to board the ship before she came to her pier.

Their consolation, if it might be termed so, was the knowledge that they had forced the magnates of the two major leagues to pay to those players who signed salaries which surpassed their most exalted anticipations.

The climax of the day's doings in the realms of high finance came when President Joseph J. Lannin of the Boston American League club announced that he had obtained the signature of Outfielder Tris Speaker to a two years' contract at the "largest salary ever paid a professional baseball player," in addition to a bonus for signing.

It was reported the amount was to be $18,000 per year.

EBBETS DISAPPOINTED.

Probably the most disappointed magnate outside of the Federal Leaguers was President Charles H. Ebbets of the Brooklyn club. He made the early trip to Quarantine to sign Dick Egan as shortstop for the Superbas. After a conference with Egan aboard the ship he offered two forms of contracts to Egan to fill in his own salary figures. Egan stated he was satisfied with the proposition offered and Ebbets announced that he had signed. Later Egan was in conference with the Federal League promoters and denied that he had signed with Brooklyn. He admitted, however, that he was still carrying Ebbets's contracts and might sign unless the Federals could show him better inducements.

All the club owners, together with major and minor-league officials, will remain here for the banquet to be tendered the Giants-White Sox world-touring party tomorrow night. Although the Federal League promoters have not been invited to attend, they will also stay in New York, it was announced by President James A. Gilmore, with the idea of coming to terms with those players who show a desire to consider their offers.

Both Comiskey and McGraw declared the trip had been a pleasant experience and the only regret they had was that the teams were unable to play in Rome or Paris, owing to inclement weather.

"The Australians treated us well," said Jimmy Callahan, the White Sox manager, "but the Japanese surprised us with their knowledge of inside baseball. No matter where we went in Japan, the crowd followed us after the games were over. American fans have nothing on the Japanese as rooters.

"Schaefer was the 'big noise' in the far East, but Mike Donlin was the 'whole works' in London. He was at home with the big crowd behind center field at the Chelsea grounds, and right here let me tell you that King George proved to us all that he is a thorough sport. He seemed to catch on to the line of play after a couple of innings, and when we reached our hotel after the game, we received a royal message in which King George said he enjoyed the game almost as thoroughly as the day on which his father's horse won the English derby."

WHEN THEY LANDED.

The players scattered after landing and will remain here until Monday, when all of them will go south for training.

Ban Johnson and club owners, Farrell, New York, and Ebbetts, Brooklyn; Lannin, Boston, and Baker, Philadelphia, were the only representatives of organized baseball who climbed aboard the Lusitania from the revenue cutter. None of the magnates attempted to have a contract signed on board but as soon as the vessel reached the dock, Ebbetts introduced Egan as his new shortstop.

"I've just signed a three years' contract with Brooklyn," said Egan, "and the terms offered are satisfactory to me."

Though none of the Federal League representatives came aboard, President Gilmore, with other Federal League officials, was on the pier, anxiously to know whether any of their wireless messages had brought results. Among the players who received such messages were Schaefer, Doolan, Magee, Speaker, Egan, Wingo, Crawford and Leverenz. The signing of Speaker, Doolan and Egan promptly eliminated them from any possibility of entering the Federal field, and none of the other players mentioned would admit that they were taking the offers seriously.

A LITTLE HISTORY.

The Giants-White Sox baseball touring party gathered in Cincinnati on Saturday, October 18, where the first game of the long schedule was played against the Cincinnati club. From there players traveled in a special train by easy stages to the Pacific Coast, playing frequent games en route. Doubts regarding the financial success of the trip were early removed by the unexpectedly large attendance.

During the foreign part of the tour the largest attendance was recorded in Japan, Australia and England. The biggest gate receipts were collected at the game played in London, on February 26, when 30,000 spectators, including King George, witnessed the defeat of the Giants by the White Sox. This game officially closed the tour, the party sailing from Liverpool on February 27.

More than seventy games were played during the trip and the list would have been larger but for rain. Financial returns were in excess of expectations and the profits are estimated at nearly $100,000. A generous dividend is assured, not only for the promoters, but for those players who entered on the trip on a sharing basis. Tentative plans have already been made for foreign tours during the winters of 1914-15 and 1915-16.

The ferry boat Niagara, chartered for the occasion and laden with fans, steamed down the bay to greet the tourists. The men and boys on board, dressed in baseball uniforms, lined the rails and waved flags as the band played. A light snow was still fall-

THE PRIZE FIGHTER WHO TRAINS ON IBSEN'S PLAYS.

BY HARRY CARR.

THE conversation turned instinctively to plays and books.

"The last time I saw you," said the young man in front of me, "we were both talking to a young lady who was mad over Ibsen. Since then I have become quite an Ibsen fan myself. I have been reading Ibsen plays for a year or so.

"I have just finished studying Hedda Gabler, and I am going to tackle 'Ghosts' again after I get through fighting Joe Rivers."

This little conversation in The Times office the other night, just after he arrived from the East, is the essence of the character of Freddie Welsh.

He is easily the most extraordinary character in the ring—and certainly the most charming.

One of his pals is Elbert Hubbard, who not long ago devoted an entire number of the Philistine magazine to him.

In the dreary waste of rough necks and low brows who inflict the life of a sporting writer, Freddie Welsh is the one real haven of rest and comfort.

His period of training for the Joe Rivers fight will be a delightful interlude. The men who will be found hanging around Jack Doyle's while he is there will be clean young business men. One can pleasantly anticipate seeing young Britishers motoring in from their orange ranches to look him over and ask him with heavy solemnity if he feels "fit." And if really nice women ever had a sneaking curiosity to see a fighter in training, now is the golden hour.

A SKETCH OF FREDDIE.

For the benefit of those who may not happen to know Freddie Welsh, this little explanation of the "prize fighter who reads Ibsen."

His real name is Fred Thomas. From Pontypridd, a little Welsh town among the mines, he went to London and then to New York to seek his fortune. He was a skilled machinist of prosperous family, but he also was a boxer. Every young British boy seems to learn to box as he learns cricket.

Coming to New York, he got a small job around a gymnasium where business men were taught to box. Freddie says that this was his winter of hardpan. The money that he got from his boxing lessons was so diminutive in quantity that he had to help himself out by doing odd jobs.

He saw that a lot of young fellows were making change by shoveling snow off the sidewalks, so he started out shoveling.

"I lost more than I made," says Freddie, "because I hadn't come from a snow country, and did not understand how the stuff packs. It looks soft on top and I would take the contract to shovel off a sidewalk on that basis. Then I would get down underneath the top layer and find it all packed ice that would take me all the rest of the day to work."

HIS FIGHT NAME.

He finally was asked to fight a short bout in Philadelphia, and did well. Then, as I remember, he was asked to substitute for some disabled fighter in a fight with Hock Keyes, and went West for his first real professional match. For some reason, this match does not appear in the records of his career as given in the "dope books."

Fred Thomas's mother was unwilling that he should become a fighter, so he took the name of Freddie Welsh to save her feelings.

He began fighting in 1905, but his real career as a top notcher began in Los Angeles in 1908. That was a year of triumph for him.

He began the year by a six-round fight with Kid Locke in Philadelphia. That same month he won from Maurice Sayers and drew with Charley Nearly in Milwaukee. The next month in the same city, he lost to Packy McFarland.

In May of that year he came to Vernon and fought Phil Brock twenty-five rounds. This Phil Brock fight was a great exhibition of pluck. During his training he got blood poisoning in a blistered heel, and was in bed until the morning of the fight, when he got up and went into the ring in such pain that he could hardly stand.

DUEL WITH PACKY.

July 4 of that year he fought one of the most wonderful battles that has been seen in the ring—that twenty-five-round draw with Packy McFarland. This was the flashing rapier duel of the modern prize ring.

The two contestants were very much alike . . . Packy, the brilliant young Irishman; Welsh, the brilliant young Welshman.

Both Packy and Freddie were boys instinctively superior to their trade. Many professional men are devoted fight fans and like to meet fighters. Both Packy and Welsh cultivated the friendship of this type of fight fan and learned all they could from them; got books from them and added in every way to their education and manners. The result was that two courtly young knights of the ring met that July day in the Vernon arena.

The result was a draw, and those who saw the fight will talk of it until they can no longer talk of fights or anything else.

In August of that year he fought and defeated Johnny Murphy and knocked out Harry Trendall in September. One rainy night in November, slipping around in the puddles on the canvas, Freddie Welsh unhorsed the great Abe Attell, then considered to be the most wonderful boxer in the world. Freddie unspeeded the speed marvel. Abe can't talk of that defeat to this day without acting like a spanked boy.

HIS JINX YEAR.

Although he has won several championship belts since then, those two fights against McFarland and Abe Attell were the summit of his career. A man hasn't but a few such fights in him.

His jinx year was 1911, when he began by losing to Matt Wells in London his lightweight championship of Great Britain, and wound up the year by losing his chance to fight Ad Wolgast for the lightweight championship of the United States on account of Ad's operation.

Since then, he won back the British title and his fights during the past two years have been as follows:

TIGERS CLEAN UP THE GOOFS.

Chelette and Hitt Too Swift for Sully's Squad.

White Sox Accumulate Six Large Errors.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

As baseball players, the Chicago Goofs yesterday loomed up as the best soccer team seen here in a long time.

They made an even half-dozen "boots," batted the ball with all the fury of an elderly lady darning socks, and were in other ways held up to public ridicule by the Tigers, who were still peeved as a result of Thursday's disgrace.

The sublime totals were: Venice, 7; White Sox, 1. This comes under the head of effacing an insult.

HANK SOME PITCHER.

The best thing about the game was the line which it gave on Hank Chelette, a runt party from Omaha. If li'l Hankus isn't a pitcher, then no guy ever had a right arm dangling from his shoulder.

"Bring 'em on faster," was Hank's plea for five innings. He then quit, leaving the Goofs without any batting average at all. Roy Hitt waddled out in response to Hogan's managerial chirp. Roy, being fat and good-natured, hit one of the Goofs in the seventh, walked another and gave up a brace of singles. This burst of playfulness netted the only Goof tally.

Billy Sullivan, the only known survivor of Valley Forge, who is running the Goof institution, disported himself behind the bat as youthful-like as possible under the circumstances.

Sullivan sought to keep the damage within reason by resorting to only two pitchers. Had he not cared what happened he might have used four or five, that being the general average for spring exhibitions.

INTRODUCING WOLFGANG.

Wolfgang worked for four innings, always earnestly but sometimes unwisely. This stranger has bangs like "Red" Held, and a complexion of remarkable splendor. Wolfgang, failing to blind the Venice batters either with his speed or his hair, Sullivan switched in the fifth to Timmersman, a bleached, colorless individual. It was Stockholm over again; a distinct victory for the American athletes.

BUM SUPPORT.

Both of these pitchers would have been justified in pointing an accusing finger at their support.

The Tigers tore off a total of nine hits. In doing this they subjected their bats to a needless strain. That combination of eight passes and six fielding misdemeanors would have won for them without a safe lick.

Johnny Kane was the leading stick-smith, fashioning a single and a double. Johnny also let out a few links on the bases, making a clean, unequivocal theft of third, and delivering a brace of runs.

PASSED UP TRIPLE.

The first inning is mentioned solely to point out the fact that Wolfgang refused to treat the gang to a triple play when he could have done so without the slightest inconvenience to himself. Carlisle singled to center with all his old-time vigor, and stole second, avoiding Sully's precise peg by a slide that raised a large blister on the bosom of his bloomers.

Leard walked. Borton attempted to bunt, and the result was a pop-up that Wolfgang scooped six inches from the grass. The Goof pitcher, unmindful of the great opportunity which had been presented, threw to Halstein, doubling Leard. Carlisle had almost reached third when Wolfgang made the catch, and all three men could have been retired had he made his play at second base. Bayless ended the inning with an infield grounder.

KANE THIEVES THIRD.

Kane opened the second with a single to left, and trotted to second when Halstein neglected to catch Wolfgang's throw. Johnny felt mischievous and took a burglar's lead off second. This drew a throw to that base. Instead of turning back, Johnny scampered safely to third.

Hosp singled infield, Sheehan using only one hand to pluck the ball out of the clover. This stop had a discouraging effect on Kane, and he discreetly remained at third. Litschi

BEAR CAPTAIN HURT IN GAME.

California Beats Pomona, but Cost Is Great.

Rubke May Never Be Able to Play Ball Again.

Sage Hens Make Poor Show in Fielding.

CLAREMONT, March 6.—The University of California baseball team defeated Pomona here today in a slugfest, the final score being 9 to 4 in favor of the Northerners. An unfortunate incident of the game was the injury sustained by Capt. Rubke of California. While sliding to second base in the ninth inning he fell in such a manner as to dislocate his left arm. It was at first thought that the limb was broken, but later investigation by doctors proved it to be a very severe dislocation only. That Capt. Rubke will not be able to play ball again this year is the opinion of the physicians who attended him, and it is extremely doubtful if the arm ever returns to its former strength.

The game was featured by some rather poor baseball on the part of the Huns. Becker pitched a good game, but was given poor support, the team making seven errors behind him, and failing to field many easy chances. With one possible exception, the reverse was true of the Bears, who showed good team work and fast fielding. Chapman, on the mound, was in a bad way several times, but always managed, with the help of his teammates, to pull himself out of the holes.

The Sage Hens were unfortunate in driving many hard swats into the hands of the fielders. Elliott, the new Hun catcher, slammed out a four-base drive which bounced through center-field fence, but unfortunately for his teammates, no one was on at the time. Capt. Rubke laid down three hits out of five times to the plate, while Sebastian made four out of five, two of them going for extra bases.

LAST CHANCE FOR DEFEAT.

CALIFORNIA TO PLAY U.S.C. LAW SCHOOL TODAY.

Invaders from North Have Tied Occidental and Beaten Pomona, and South Must Look to Its Laurels—Field Work of Local Boys May Decide Contest.

The California varsity will play its last game in the south this afternoon at Washington Park, when it meets the U.S.C. Law School team. The game will be played after the Venice-White Sox battle. The Bears have tied Occidental and walloped Pomona 9 to 4, and it is up to U.S.C. to give them the only defeat on the trip.

At 10:30 the varsity takes on the College Alumni team at Baer Park and they will run up against a strong team, including many old college stars and Art Shafer of the New York Giants.

Coach Wheeler has worked hard to get the U.S.C. team in shape for the U. of C. game, and Wheeler has a way of doing what he starts. His outfield is a wonderful trio, ranking close to the Coast League standard. Pat Milliken in center is a splendid player who has attracted the attention of several Coast League managers. He is a sweet long-distance hitter and a sensational fielder. Rush Meadows ranks along with Pat, the pair forming a stone wall on the defense and powerful slugging offense. Canope or Patterson will cover right and either one can do it well.

Holloway is shortstopping all over the field and hitting the ball hard. This fellow is a cracking good player and a man who holds the infield together well. Wright at second fits in with Holloway's play like the cog in a machine, making a great pair around the keystone base. Young is a basket-like first sacker with an uncanny ability to flag heaves from his fellow-basemen. Young's bat produces the big hit at the right time and that is when they count. Reeves and Hearst, two rattling-good men, are after the third-base job, but their work is so good Wheeler is having a hard time in making the final selection.

Sylvestine or Welch will do the backstopping and both are strong throwers, handle the pitchers well, and crack out the ball.

Wheeler's big trouble has been in locating a pitcher with the same class as the rest of the team. "Do" Barkley, Counts, Hansen and Benson are being considered, but Benson seems to be the choice of the staff. He is a veteran twirler and a man with a lot of good stuff backed by plenty of baseball sense. He will probably be Wheeler's choice. If he falls down on the job three other first-class heavers will be anxiously waiting on the bench.

Capt. Rubke may be unable to play with the Bears today on account of dislocating his arm in the game with Pomona yesterday. His absence would leave a big gap in the California line-up. Dodge is slated to pitch, and if he is as good as he was with Redlands University two years ago the Lawyers will have their hands full.

GREAT WEATHER HELPS BEAVERS.

DERRICK ARRIVES WITH NEW RECRUITS.

Pretty Race Between Bancroft and Davis for Shortstop Laurels. Buddy Ryan Plays Prank on Doc Schmeider—Regulars Play Santa Maria Sunday.

BY WINNIE CUTTER,

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MARIA (Portland Training Camp) March 5.—"Gee, ain't this great weather?" piped Harry Krause, as he slammed the ball between Kores and Bancroft and raced for the clubhouse, at the end of practice this afternoon. And truly, Krause's sentiments have been ably and unanimously seconded by his team-mates, including the "big chief" himself.

Each player on the club is getting full benefit from workouts, and kinky muscles are fast becoming supple under ardent rays of the sun. The grounds are in fine condition for fast work, and yet are not hard enough to bring about any disagreeable cases of "Charley-horse."

Derrick arrived this morning and with him came two recruits drafted from Cedar Rapids. The two latterly mentioned are Milligan, an outfielder, and Brown, a pitcher. With the arrival of Krapp and Pape the roster of the Portland training squad will be complete.

Already a pretty race is on between Bancroft and Davis for the honor of holding down shortstop position. Davis has all the earmarks of a rising "phenom," but he will surely have to go some to beat out the clever and agile Bancroft. Dave is faster than ever this year, and is stepping into the ball nicely — free swing, too. McCredie says Davis is a second Herman Long. Anyhow, Davis has the bowlegs for a starter in the resemblance stunt.

"Buddy" Ryan is as kittenish as ever. Yesterday he pulled off a prank on "Doc" Schmeider, and the boys are still "kidding" the genial trainer. It seems that Schmeider has a ring with a large-sized chunk of glass in it, of which he is mighty proud. Yesterday morning, in his hurry to beat the last-lap gong for breakfast, he left the spark on the dresser. A few moments later "Buddy" happened along, and seeing the ring lying there, slipped it on his finger.

About an hour later Schmeider sent out a distress call and a search began for the jewelry. Proprietor Moore of the hotel questioned everybody, from the chambermaid down to the Jap who peels potatoes in the basement. Even the local laundry came in for its share, as every bit of laundry which had been sent out from the hotel was looked through carefully. In the interim, "Doc" strolled over to the pool hall, and seeing "Buddy" playing a game of 5-cent pea-pool, confided his loss to him. Ryan, with the ring still upon his finger, put on his soberest look and condoled with the downcast Schmeider. So engrossed was the trainer with the enormity of his loss he failed to take note of the hunk of glass that glinted every time "Buddy" turned his hand over.

Finally, after "Doc" had curled himself up on a chair in the far corner of the hall, ruminating, dejectedly, upon the pleasures of home, and the worries of being a diamond king, Ryan finished his game and walked over to the down-hearted German. "Here, 'Doc,' keep this for me while I go get a pint of gum-drops," said Buddy, slipping the ring from his finger and handing it to the trainer.

"Gwan!—why—why, you Irish son-of-a-gun!" gurgled Schmeider, leaping from his chair as if it were loaded with pins. But Ryan was already out of the door with a laugh that had "Casey the Fireman" backed off the boards.

On Sunday afternoon the Portland Regulars will line up against the Santa Maria club, after which the "Tannigans" will open up a session against the Final club, from the near-by oil fields.

In the evening the entire club has been extended a personal invitation to attend the Christian Church and hear Pastor Kennedy deliver a Billy Sunday baseball sermon. Pastor Kennedy has, surely, very few of the stiff-necked orthodox ideas of some of his fellow-craftsmen, as he was about the pool hall yesterday shaking hands with the boys, and a good many of them have promised to attend the sermon.

Picks 1914 Winner.

SEER SEES PENNANT ON FLAGSTAFF AT SACRAMENTO

MARYSVILLE, March 6.—The Sacramento Wolves have already cinched the 1914 pennant. Prof. St. John, the man who lives in the baseball future, and who, last spring, sent Bill Rodgers of Portland a written guarantee of the 1913 Coast League pennant, has conferred with the spirits and declared that Sacramento will finish in a walk with the flag safely in tow.

St. John has a Portland newspaper clipping to prove that he guaranteed the 1913 pennant to Portland before the race started last year, but he goes farther back than that with his claims, declaring that he has picked the winner for five years, picking Oakland in 1912, Portland in 1911 and 1910, and even delving into ancient history when San Francisco was the home of a real honest-to-goodness winning ball team.

Capt. Wolverton trotted out another of his discoveries in the brush today when Southpaw Lang, the Los Angeles youth, took the mound for three innings with the regulars in the daily practice game. And in those three innings young Lang showed himself a veritable find. Lang showed some wide benders and sharp hooks that have not been seen in these parts since the days of Herb Byram, the miner curvist, who worked with the port arm. But Lang was woefully wild, walking five men, hitting one and perpetrating one wild pitch, all in the short space of three innings.

Bill Keegan, the Sacramento recruit pitcher, who achieved his fame in pitching the Yreka club to the Northern California League championship last year, will get his first chance to start on the mound in a professional game when he goes to the slab Saturday for the opening game of the St. Mary's series. Harry Hannah will be on the receiving end. Recruit Pitchers Kremer and Colwell will also be given a chance in the Sunday game.

WEEK'S BOWLING MIXED DOUBLES.

Bowlers competing in the mixed doubles tournament for State championship ended their first week last night, with matches at Majestic and Pearne-Weber alleys, in which Mrs. Lapham and Hayes won four games to one against Mrs. Graham and Fisher; Mrs. Cowger and Pearne won three to two from Mrs. Turner and Bowron, and Mrs. Johnson and Meador won five straight from Mrs. Prior and Jenkins, the last-named having substituted for Blume. Mrs. Johnson's game of 244 was high for the tourney.

Teams stand as follows:

Mrs. Johnson-Meador—Won 5, lost 0; Mrs. Ballard-Ballard, won 4, lost 1; Mrs. Lapham-Hayes—Won 4, lost 1; Mrs. Cowger-Pearne—Won 3, lost 2; Mrs. Taylor-Taylor—Won 3, lost 2; Mrs. Scott-MacKenzie—Won 2, lost 3; Mrs. Turner-Bowron—Won 2, lost 3; Mrs. Graham-Fisher—Won 1, lost 4; Mrs. Prior-Jenkins—Won 0; lost 5.

The schedule for next week calls for games on four nights:

Monday — Mrs. Pearne-Harris against Mrs. Johnson-Meador, on Pearne-Weber alleys; Wednesday—Mrs. Ballard-Ballard and Mrs. Cowger-Pearne, on Ballard-Season alleys; Thursday—Mrs. Taylor-Taylor and Mrs. Lapham-Hayes, on same alleys, and Mrs. Turner-Bowron against Mrs. Graham-Fisher, on Pearne-Weber alleys; Friday—Mrs. Scott-MacKenzie and Mrs. Prior-Jenkins, on Majestic alleys.

Mrs. Cowger defaulted to Mrs. Scott the Pacific Coast woman's championship and trophy on the latter's challenge. Mrs. Scott has therefore accepted as champion the challenge of Mrs. Pierce, the first two rounds of the match being set for tonight at Ocean Park, and tomorrow night at the Majestic. A week later the two rounds are to be repeated in the same order.

PASADENA MEETS L. A. HIGH SCHOOL.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, March 7.—The Pasadena and Los Angeles High School baseball teams played until after dark here today before Pasadena won with a score of 7 to 6. Up to the eighth inning the score stood 6 to 4 in favor of Los Angeles. The Los Angeles team wanted the game called on account of darkness, but Pasadena insisted on playing it out. With two men on bases, Bront Guard of Pasadena knocked a home run, winning the game. The game ran for three hours and the ball could scarcely be seen at its close.

TO SETTLE CASE OF EVERS.
MAGNATES LEAVE IT TO TENER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 6.—The National League as a whole was not as successful in settling up the Chicago-Boston club deal for the service of Johnny Evers or in finding a new owner for the Chicago club. After lengthy sessions the board of directors announced that the final settlement of the Evers trade had been left to President John K. Tener. The National League executive said in a statement:

"I don't expect to reach a final decision in the question for a week or ten days. As the matter stands now Evers, Sweeney and Purdue are all the property of the Boston Club, but an equitable and satisfactory arrangement will be made for the adjustment of the final transfer of property rights."

Charles P. Taft, the owner of the majority stock of the Chicago club, was present at the meeting, but would not say what had been accomplished toward the sale of his stock. President Tener said that no arrangement had been made for the sale of the club, but intimated that Mr. Taft was considering several offers.

It was persistently rumored during the day that the Chicago club would be purchased by John T. Connery of Chicago, who came East with the party of Chicago fans to welcome the returning White Sox and Giants. Late tonight Mr. Connery denied that he intended to buy a controling interest in the club either for himself of a Chicago syndicate.

OFFICIAL OPENING OF GUN CLUB.

Next Sunday, March 8, the Los Angeles Gun Club will hold its official opening tournament. This shoot was originally scheduled to take place on last Washington's Birthday, but the rain prevented it, therefore the postponement.

The shoot will consist of six regular fifteen-bird events, sixteen yards rise.

After the regular programme is through, the Pastime Gun Club of San Diego will have a ten-man team shoot with the Los Angeles Gun Club. The race will be 100 targets per man, shot from sixteen yards rise.

A first-class barbecue will be served and every one in attendance will be sure to get a full stomach, as well as a first rate time. All visiting shooters, together with anyone who is at all interested in the trap-shooting game, are cordially invited to attend.

DEL HOWARD'S MEN TAKE CHICAGO MEN INTO CAMP.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 6.—On Thursday afternoon, last, the White Sox entered our transbay section and allowed the Oaks to trounce them to the tune of 7 to 5. This afternoon it was San Francisco's turn, and just to prove there was no mistake, the Seals, after getting off to a good start, wound up with a 7 to 2 score, thereby eclipsing Devlin's men from across the bay.

All around, it was a case of the coasters playing far better ball than the Chicago recruits, who are masquerading under the title of the "No. 1 team." At the bat the Seals poled out ten hits as against seven, and in the error column, the visitors were charged with three bad boots as compared to a single injudicious bit of throwing that was made by Del Howard himself.

Kid Gleason got along very nicely until he switched from "Reb" Russell after the fifth inning. Then he started parading "bush league" talent, before the eyes of the peevish crowd, and when they had finished, there was nothing left but a Chicago defeat.

San Francisco made a thoroughly presentable showing for its introductory game of the 1914 season. Bill Toser and Pop Arlett divided pitching honors and held the enemy to seven hits. Three were grouped off Toser in the fourth inning, the last by the way, that he pitched, and were responsible for the two runs that came to the visitors.

To Arlett was left the task of twirling the last five innings of the game and be it remarked that the youngster looked in good form. There were four scattered hits, and in only one inning did he look to be in the least danger. His fielding of his position was the best thing he did and evidently he is going to be one of the pitchers for the local fans to reckon with in the months to come. The score:

BUD'S COMING BACK.

PORTLAND (Or.) March 6.—There is a possibility that Bud Anderson may return to the ring. He has received an offer to appear in an exhibition bout at Raymond, Wash., and will leave in a day or two to investigate conditions at the Washington town before definitely deciding whether or not he will accept. Bud states that if he can make a match with a light middleweight or welter he may accept.

His "Comeback."

WALSH DENIES THAT HE IS THROUGH PITCHING.

Objects to Being Discarded, at Least Until He Is Consulted in the Matter—Says His Arm Is Improving and that He Has Every Reason to Feel Encouraged. Federals Depart Today.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

HOD WALSH strenuously objects to what he believes being construed as a failure on his part to "come back."

The famous "spitballer" showed up at the park yesterday morning, to get that a regulation meal of corn beef and cabbage, or some other food calculated to nourish the ligaments of the pitching arm, had developed into a violent attack of indigestion.

He who found the sun entirely too much for him, and after lobbing a few retired to the clubhouse to nurse his ailing stomach.

This gave rise to a dark, mysterious rumor that Walsh was done as a pitcher; that his celebrated whip was about to drop from its socket, and to other doubtful things.

Walsh is plainly peeved that he should be discarded in this free and easy manner, and feels that he should at least be consulted before being sent to the scrap heap.

"I was astounded to hear that I was through as a pitcher; that my 'comeback' had been a failure," declared Walsh last night, speaking straight from the shoulder.

"I have been pitching major league ball for eleven years, and feel that I have a good many more. It is true there is a slight soreness in my arm, but that is a common ailment in the spring. Nine-tenths of the pitchers in the country are probably complaining of the same thing. Further I was not feeling entirely right, and for that reason did not go to work as usual.

"I do not want my friends here or elsewhere to get the idea that I am through as a pitcher. I am not making any brags, but I believe that I will be able to 'come back.'

"It would be foolhardy for me to take any chances, and for that reason I am nursing my arm along carefully. I feel greatly encouraged by the improvement in my arm since arriving on the Coast, and have every reason to hope for a successful season.

"Just tell them that Ed Walsh doesn't think that he is through for a few years yet."

Griffith's Party Leaves Today.

The special, the California delegation to the spring convention of the Home City branch of the Federal League will depart from this city on the Santa Fe at 9 a.m. today.

The delegation is Wichita Falls, a place never before heard of in baseball parts until George Stovall decided to train his men there in a business way. Comprising this hardy little band of adventurers are Art Nehf, Chester Chadbourne, Lord Baltimore, Hoyt Stone and Ted Easterly. All of these are well known baseball men, with the possible exception of Easterly. This pitcher was turned back by the St. Louis Browns last season after a short session with Oakland, and refused to serve out his sentence. Griffith Stadium is in charge of the party, and it will be his duty to point out the places of interest on the way down. All their pockets are bulging with advance money, which means that they are perfectly satisfied with the deal. They also are going into the future with hope, fortitude and courage, and a stiff upper lip.

Stovall Reading "Rookies."

Nehf, Chadbourne and Chadbourne were seen at the Washington Park grand stand both yesterday and Thursday. To all outward appearances, they were wholly without guile, but there was a dreadful rumor abroad to the effect that they were looking over the Cubs' "rookies," and will make a report to Stovall on the things which they have observed.

The Federal League aspirants are also visiting the northern division of the Orange club, and will endeavor to pick up "future greats" whom Callahan may be figuring on for "farming." This may result in their topsy-turvying the plans of minor league clubs who are looking to the White Sox surplus for the necessary talent.

Manager Stovall declined to make any comment on his findings, but he can hardly deny that he was impressed by the work of one Quarders in Thursday's performance.

Rookie Caught Snoozing.

The Feds certainly skidded yesterday when the powers of organized baseball chartered a tub, paddled down Hampton Roads, boarded the Lusitania by means of grappling irons and rope ladders, and corraled the globe-trotting stars.

Had the Federals snagged Speaker and Crawford, the move practically would have assured them of recognition as a major league. This reverse, coming close on the announcement of Joe Tinker's Chicago line-up, has tended to flatten the advance claims of the Federal backers that they would flash enough class at the start of the season to compete with the American and National leagues.

Wilson, Brennan, Hendrix, Killifer and Zelder give a major league twang to Tinker's club. They are the genuine article. But around them are festooned an array of semi-pros, rah-rahs and "little knowns," or "unknowns" calculated to leave the fans in a "show-me" frame of mind.

• • •

Tesreau Is Dissatisfied.

Jeff Tesreau's willingness to flirt with the Feds is believed to be due, not so much to dissatisfaction with the terms offered him by the New York Giants, as to the attitude of some of his mates toward him.

Some of these, it is said, "rode" Jeff rather vigorously last season, and this tended to make him very unhappy.

That all is not harmony on the New York club is indicated by an incident in the second game here between the Giants and White Sox in the second game last fall.

Tesreau was having trouble holding runners on first, and finally, after a few of these had taken a lead that made it a waste of energy for Meyers to try and nail them at second, Larry Doyle picked up the ball and heaved it rather violently at Jeff's devoted head.

Since that little unpleasantness, Tesreau's dissatisfaction with his present surroundings is said to have been extreme.

• • •

Timmerman's Strange Record.

This Timmerman party here with the White Sox is an ex-Federal Leaguer.

He made a unique record with the Chicago club of that organization last season, pitching one no-hit game and two one-hit contests, and losing them all.

That is a series of misfortunes calculated to drive a pitcher to poker or some other legitimate line of endeavor.

• • •

Country Again Safe.

"Buck" Weaver is back, and the country is sure to survive for at least another six months. Not only do the newspapers tell us that Weaver yesterday got past the immigration official at Ellis Island, but "Buck" himself had no sooner felt the pave of dear old Broadway than he wired P. Gene Doyle to that effect.

• • •

Weaver Is Well Paid.

Incidentally, Weaver will draw down $4000 for his season's work with the White Sox, having signed a document containing a statement to this effect. "Buck" could have signed for three years at the same figure, but decided to sit back and await results.

The Federal League satans were after "Buck" good and warm, but he, being a man of strong baseball character, demanded that they get behind him, at least for the present.

• • •

Young Agnew Looks Good.

Sam Agnew's little brother seems to be quite a catcher. He has now appeared in two games against the Sox and in each instance his work was right up to snuff. In Thursday's game he picked Barbour off first. Yesterday he was up twice, walked the first time, singled the second, stole a base and scored a run. He listens good.

• • •

Maier Visits Ranch.

Ed R. Maier pressed the self-starter along about 4:30 p.m. yesterday, meaning after the game, and disappeared in the direction of his ranch. He carried with him a cargo consisting of "Babe" Borton and Mr. Doyle. They will return today.

Sox Clean Up Goofs.

Foster to center. Schreiber took Walsh's throw and Kane would have come in, and Kane would have made no move to score had not the Venice centerfielder tried to hit Schreiber, who was sitting in Hen Hoop's private box, and not saying anything. Kane scored on this unique play, and Hoop went to second, claimed third by virtue of the confusion in the shape of a passed ball. Elliott fouled his fair, but it was all over. Hank Chelette then showed his all-around worth by singling home.

That was about all that happened except Hoop's strawberry blonde.

THREE MOLEST TIM.

Three men took to Timmerman right from the moment of his appearance, using it as an excuse for batting up three runs in the first inning.

Kane walked, and a wild pitch sent him to second. After Leard and McDonnell had failed to inflict any damage, Bayless walked. Kane looked a likely looking spot out to the left of Ed Walsh, and placed the ball safely for two bases. This scored Kane and put Bayless on third. Foster started for second on Bayless with a hit to Meyer. There wasn't a Goof within twenty feet of that base, but Meyer fired the ball down there just the same. I have a hunch that he did it by way of impressing Mr. Griffith with certain important technicalities of the game. Hoop scored on a throw to third, whereupon Litschi was out.

FINAL CLEAN-UP.

In the last half of the eighth, after an outburst of wildness, a single by Agnew, a single by Foster and some daring base-running by the entire party, who went from first to third on an infield out, gave the Goofs one more in the sixth.

Agnew scored the only Goof tally, Venice in the seventh being supplied with singles by Mayer and Hitt.

CLABBY-MURRAY MATCH.

Jimmy Clabby and Bill Murray were matched yesterday to fight twenty rounds in San Francisco on April 3. Bill Murray is a Sacramento fighter who has been putting up some great scraps lately.

After this bout Clabby will return to Los Angeles, where he will scrap Bob McAllister, the 'Frisco speed boy.

Clabby had a match with McGoorty scheduled in Australia, but McGoorty made his getaway from the big island and Manager Larnay Lichtenstein claims he ran away to avoid meeting Clabby.

FREDDIE WELSH UPSETS TRADITIONS OF TRAINING.

BY DE WITT VAN COURT.

JOE RIVERS laid off boxing yesterday afternoon at the Vernon arena. He did some skipping rope work and shadow boxing only, but is rounding into good condition.

Babe Picato, who is working at the same place, did his usual amount of training and boxed several rounds each with his brother Charlie and Charlie Dalton. Bebe is very confident that he will beat Steve Ketchell next Tuesday night, although this will be his first twenty-round contest.

Ketchell worked only a short time at Doyle's, but sweated out freely and is also rounding into condition. The warm weather has been a help to him so far and he has not felt any ill effects from it as yet. It is some change for him to come right out of the cold eastern weather and find it so warm, but it has been a help to reduce some of the extra weight he carries. He has had three twenty-round contests and many ten and fifteen. He will have somewhat of an advantage on Picato in this respect, but Babe and his manager, Easton, claim that if he can go ten as he did with Dalton, they have no fear over the longer route.

Ketchell boxed three rounds with Mike Doll and did some shadow boxing and pulley weight work. Larnie Litchenstein says he is near the required weight and will have no trouble whatever in making it.

Joe Walling boxed three rounds with Mike Doll and showed up in good style. He won the last two contests he has had by a knockout and modestly said:

"The last one I had was with a tough fellow and I did not think I could knock him out, but I did, much to my own surprise. I know all about Dalton, as I have followed him in the papers. I also know he is tough and strong. But will leave it to the fans to decide on my ability after the contest is over."

Freddie Welsh started to work about 4 o'clock and went faster than any day since he started. He is a most consistent trainer and knows himself like a book. Freddie has upset all the ideas of the so-called up-to-date trainers by his methods of eating and drinking.

On many occasions he has placed himself on a vegetarian diet during his training spell and also, much to the astonishment of many trainers, drinks his fill of water while working. For many years trainers have been under the foolish belief that water puts on weight. It surely does when drunk with meals, but at the right time helps greatly to remove fat.

It is a common thing around training quarters to see boxers break out with fever sores from the lack of water, and suffering greatly from the desire for it. But Welsh has proven that this is not the right thing for a man training.

He boxed three rounds with Danny Mathews, and a couple each with Young Duffy and Ben Palmer. He is putting a little more speed each day into his work and by another week will be at his best. Then it will be possible to compare his stamina and speed with that of three years ago, when he met and defeated Willie Ritchie.

Huntington-Maryland Tourney.

TENNIS STARS FIGHT FOR PLACE IN SEMI-FINALS.

SWELTERING under red-hot sun, some twenty-five tennis players slammed their way into oblivion or the semi-finals at the Huntington-Maryland tournament yesterday afternoon. Splendid sets and brilliant play featured the games throughout.

The strong Griffin-Young combination climbed well up into the finals by their great work in two matches. They eliminated the Morris-Jones pair in straight sets by scores of 6-4, 6-2. The losers put up a great game, and had Peck Griffin and his fellow-perspirer going full speed in the first set, Morris's bullet serve and Jones's drives forming a good combination.

In their second match the favorites put Warren and Huntington out of commission, 6-2, 6-2. Griffin and Young should win the doubles championship if they keep up their present grand work, but the Mace-Freeman and McCormick-Barber syndicates expect to give them a battle.

Miss Florence Sutton and Mrs. Kearns played a sensational game in their doubles match with Mrs. Carpenter and Miss Early. This was by far the most interesting match of the day, with both pairs getting in some beautiful tennis. The greater endurance of Miss Sutton and Mrs. Kearns brought them out winner in two great sets by scores of 6-4, 6-1. All four players deserve special credit for their well-placed drives from the back lines.

Horace Donnell sprang a surprise when he eliminated Gerald Young in two hard-fought sets, 9-7, 6-3. Young made some terrific drives, but Donnell pulled out both sets by his steady game, mixed with a good serve and splendid placing of his long shots.

Frees advanced well toward the front when he beat Freeman 6-1, 6-3, and later won over Barker 6-4, 6-2. Freeman seemed to be taking it easy, saving himself for the doubles matches today. In both sets Frees displayed splendid form, and it will take some fast tennis to put him out of the tournament.

Winnie Mace won his only match of the day when he defeated Sindorf, the young Hollywood High School star, 6-3, 6-3. Sindorf came through in great style, and shows promise of becoming a mighty good man.

Mrs. Widdowson cut down Miss Charles, 6-0, 6-1, and Miss Florence Sutton won from Miss Freeman by default. This will probably bring these two together in the ladies' singles, final round, and one of the best matches of the tournament is expected.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE.

At 9 o'clock—McCormick vs. Mace, Warren vs. Griffin, Mrs. Kingcade vs. Miss H. McCall, Miss Grieve vs. Miss E. Henry.

At 10 o'clock—Barber vs. Donnell, winner of Kingcade-McCall match vs. winner of Green-Henry match, and winner plays Miss Raymond; Griffin and Young vs. Barber and McCormick.

At 12 o'clock—Mace and Freeman vs. Donnell and Gorham.

At 2 o'clock—Finals of men's singles and games for ladies' doubles.

At 3 o'clock—Finals of ladies' singles and doubles.

At 4 o'clock—Finals of men's doubles and more doubles.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY (Cal.) March 6.—The University of California basket ball team defeated Stanford, 32 to 13, here tonight. California opposed perfect team work against the loose and disorganized play of the Cardinal quintette.

WATER POLO.

The Y.M.C.A. water polo team defeated the crack Bimini Baths team in an exciting game played at Bimini last night, the score being 4 to 3. At the start of the game Bimini made three goals as against the Y.M.C.A.'s one. In the last half the Y.M.C.A. team made three goals.

MANUAL ARTS AND POMONA ON TODAY.

The biggest high school track meet of the early season, between Manual Arts and Pomona high schools, will come off on the Manual Arts field this afternoon.

Pomona High won the Southern California championship last year and they still have a great squad representing their school. They have lost Nichols, Parker and Clark, but several strong runners and field men have been developed to replace the stars who have passed on to higher ranks. Stone, Maurer and Baker are three of the greatest high school sprinters in the State and Redpath must run his best race to beat this trio of stars. Both teams are exceptionally strong and a splendid close meet should result.

SANTA MONICA IS HARVARD'S VICTIM.

The Harvard School baseball team played the first game of the season on their diamond, beating the Santa Monica nine 5 to 2. Both teams played good ball, but the great work of Hidden, McGregor and Wood upset the beach boys.

Shiffert started the game for the military boys and was replaced by Taylor in the fourth inning. Santa Monica could do but little with either twirler's delivery.

RIVERS AND WELSH.

Sunday afternoon the training camps of Rivers and Welsh will be busy spots. Rivers will spar with Len Lauder and Solly Burns, while the preliminary boxers working out at Rivers's camp are lined up for several bouts. Freddie Welsh, located at Jack Doyle's Camp, takes on Eddie Patten, Eddie Duffy and a big fellow named Tommy McCarty. Steve Ketchel boxes several clever boys in preparation for his match with Babe Picato.

ARRIVE TODAY TO BUY SITE.

Western States Heads Will Close Theater Deal.

Billy Rock Cuts Rehearsal to See Ball Game.

Pantages Holds Up Rival Magnate's Wife.

BY GARDNER BRADFORD.

Managing Director Sam Harris of the Western States Vaudeville Association, and Treasurer Charles H. Brown are both due to reach Los Angeles from San Francisco today, and it is believed that the deal will be closed for the site of the new Hippodrome in the southwest part of town for which Mr. Ramish, owner of the Main-street Hippodrome, holds options.

Also the magnates will be on hand to witness the christening of the mammoth tank which hereafter will be a feature of the Hippodrome, and which will be introduced to the public Monday through the medium of Dr. Carver's diving horses, which will make their first appearance on an indoor stage at the Hippodrome.

Final rehearsals will be held today for "Rita's Romance," which goes on at the Burbank tomorrow afternoon. It promises to be one of the best "made in Los Angeles" productions which Morosco has produced and will, in all likelihood, take Selma Paley to New York.

Dropped down to the Morosco yesterday afternoon just in time to see Billy Rock start for the ball game. Now he is lamenting the fact that "The Candy Shop" will have a Saturday matinee, as he is a diamond fiend of the first water, and would rather see a ball game than earn money.

I take it Sid Harris, the manager, would too, but he was in the clutches of a buxom brunette, who was trying with tears in her eyes to extract an advance. By the time Sid had convinced her that the treasury was locked there was nothing left for her to do but go to work.

Little Mary Pickford, who is to be featured in a film at Tally's next week, is going to go down to the theater this morning and superintend the incidental music that will accompany the film. She believes that this is one of the essential features of the movies, and as far as possible, arranges the music which goes with her own pictures.

They had a sell-out matinee at the Majestic yesterday and as a recompense for the fact that the house is to be turned over to the movies, they announce that Evelyn Thaw will play the house in two weeks.

Andrew Robson of the Little Theater Stock Company has been engaged by Bert Levey to play the leading masculine role next week opposite Florence Stone in "Mercury," Richard Barry's dramalet, dealing with the deadly bichloride.

Manager Al Watson of the Republic is mightly peeved at "Vice," the white slave drama at Pantages, being held over a second week. Not that he is afraid it will hurt Miss Stone's showing at his theater, but because it means the postponement for one week of "Twenty Minutes in Chinatown" at Pantages, in which his wife appears. He hasn't seen her for three months, and was counting on her being here next week until it was decided to hold over "Vice."

SLIM LOVE JOINS ANGELS.

LANKY TWIRLER FROM WASHINGTON JUMPS INTO FRAY.

Calvo, the Mysterious Cuban, and Harry Meek, the Gigantic Pinch Hitter, Both Due Today—Soccer Game Shows Players Have Plenty of Ginger.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN BERNARDINO, March 6.—The Angels' training squad at Urbita Springs drew an addition today in the appearance of "Slim" Love, the lanky twirler from the Washington club. Love got into action with the rest of the players, who are fast getting into condition under conducive influences of excellent routine and favorable weather. Jacinto Calvo, the "mysterious Cuban," is expected by Capt. Dillon sometime tomorrow, the outfielder being due to arrive at Colton about noon. He will be too late, however, to participate in the workout.

Harry Meek, the 220-pound pinch hitter, is on his way from Spokane, according to Pop Dillon, and was expected to show up around headquarters tonight. Meek has been catching up north, and is said to be in fine condition.

At the end of the strenuous fielding and batting practice the teams, captained by Charley Check and "Pol" Perritt, lined up for the most exciting soccer game yet. Both sides got the ball across twice, but Chech states that he has Perritt's winning streak broken, and tomorrow will make good on that promise of a game. The men worked under a hot sun, and the thermometer stood around the 90 mark.

There were several near-calamities. Tom Hughes fell right athwart Sawyer, and the two plowed up the grounds for yards before they stopped to take an inventory of the skin and garment damage. Bill Abstein made a spectacular kick from a difficult angle for the first score from the field. The men are getting their vocal chords up to concert pitch, and the soccer game is one round of good-natured wrangling.

Dillon may work Love and McKenry for a spell in the Sunday game with the Stars, although he has announced that Hughes, Chech and Perritt will have a turn.

To star in "Rita's Romance."

New pictures of Selma Paley, who makes her return to the Burbank stage tomorrow in "Rita's Romance," the new "made-in-Los Angeles" comedy with music.

GOLF AT ANNANDALE.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

E. S. ARMSTRONG and young Carlton Wright are the finalists in the club championship contest at the Annandale Country Club—a proud day for the boy even if he is ultimately defeated, which is not at all sure.

Carlton Wright defeated T. R. Brem in the 36-hole semi-finals yesterday by 3 up and 2, with a medal score of two 79's. He was playing unusually well, with a calm assurance that would have done credit to a seasoned player. And to so exactly repeat his excellent score in the afternoon was an achievement that even the best of players can rarely accomplish.

E. S. Armstrong defeated Nate Mears by 6 up and 5. Mears made a dashing start and was 6 up at the tenth hole in the first round. But after that his skill was less apparent and he finished the first 18 but 1 up.

By the time they reached the tenth in the second round Mears was five down and from thence on it was merely a case of making the defeat as light as possible.

If Carlton Wright maintains the standard of golf he was playing yesterday he will prove a formidable opponent even for Armstrong. The keenest possible interest is being taken in the match and they will certainly enjoy the distinction of a good gallery on the Annandale links this morning.

Today's Events.

The Los Angeles Country Club team goes to the Midwick today for their league match, a match of peculiar interest just now. The team will include Norman Macbeth, R. D. Lapham, Jack Jevne, E. H. Seaver, Arthur Braly, Judge Frederickson and F. H. Edwards—just about as strong a contingent as Southern California can muster in one team.

The San Gabriel team goes to Midwick tomorrow, and Redlands will be down for their match on that course on Tuesday—the day before the Midwick invitation tournament opens.

New Administration.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY THE AUTOMOBILE CLUB.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made yesterday of the appointment of Standish L. Mitchell to the secretaryship of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

The appointment of the new secretary of the club was to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Miss S. C. Geary, who, owing to ill health, has found herself unable to continue the activities in connection with the Auto Club's work.

The meeting of the directors was held Thursday evening, and the officers for the coming year were elected at that time, but the result of the election was not made public until last night.

Fred L. Baker was again elected president. W. L. Valentine was made first vice-president and H. T. Miller, second vice-president.

E. G. Kuster was reappointed as the attorney for the club.

"Anyone Will Do."

WOLGAST DENIES BEING INTERESTED IN REFEREE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MILWAUKEE, March 6.—Ad Wolgast took a rest today, doing no afternoon boxing, but continuing his road work. He was willing to talk, however, saying:

"I see it is also stated that I am haggling over the referee. I wonder where this stuff comes from? If Ritchie wants to name a referee and is very anxious to have him, why, let him name the individual, as long as he is a licensed referee. I have no favorites, nor do I expect any one to favor me. All I want is a square deal."

Just now there is no question of the Dutchman's condition. He is in the best of health and physically he has not a sore spot. Freddie Andrews and his corps of assistants have taken great care of Wolgast, and, if anything, he will be in better shape than when he fought Rivers, which, to most fans' belief, was some contest condition.

Anent the proposed purchase of the Cubs, Wolgast confirmed the report that he has instructed Coffroth to use $100,000 of his money in the event that he could make a buy.

After his battle with Ritchie Wolgast states he will take a pleasure trip to the Coast. While there he will also give out a contract for the erection of six flat dwellings on a city block he owns in Venice. While West he does not intend to engage in any battles.

Tough Luck.

APPENDICITIS STOPS THE CAREER OF STAR ATHLETE.

MORRIS BERGER, one of U.S.C. crack quarter-milers, and a man upon whom Coach Comstock counted heavily in the relay, has been forced to quit running on account of appendicitis. He will be operated on early in June.

Berger is a former Los Angeles High track star, and lately a hope of the Trojan team. He is one of the best quarter-milers in the State, but injuries have kept him out of competition for practically all of two seasons. Morris is good for close to 51 seconds and would have cut his time down near the 50-flat mark this season if he had not been forced to quit.

Berger's absence will make quite a hole in the U.S.C. relay team, and although Franklin has helped plug up the hole, Berger will be missed badly. If he feels strong next spring he will try the come-back stunt and the students of the U.S.C. hope he will make good.

SANTA ANA MEETS LONG BEACH TEAM.

The Santa Ana High track team will mingle with the Long Beach team on the latter's field this afternoon and they have a fair chance of bringing home a victory. The peatlanders are especially strong in the distances and several of the field events. Long Beach, with Wark, Lupher and Wilcox, in the sprints figure to make a clean sweep of the points in the short distances. Wilcox is clearing the low hurdles in splendid form and should be an easy winner. King looks good in the high sticks. Long Beach is also strong in the pole vault.

Santa Ana has a star high jumper in Anderson, who is a consistent six-foot man. The Peatlanders figure strong in the field events and there they will have a good chance to pull up on the Long Beach squad.

To Step Out.

CONTEST FOR SOUTHERN TRIP.

CALIFORNIA TRACK MEN TO MEET PASTIME ATHLETES.

Best Men in This Struggle Will Come to Los Angeles to Battle U.S.C. Stars—Plenty of Distance Candidates, but Dash Stars Are Lacking.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, March 6.—Real muscle-straining competition is expected tomorrow, when the Pastime Club from San Francisco meets the varsity on the California oval. The meet will mark the first official appearance of an outside team on the Berkeley cinder path this season. But more important is the fact that upon the showings made at this time will depend the personnel of the team which is to journey southward March 12 to engage U.S.C. in a dual meet.

"Walt's" bulletin board, the old oak tree near the south end of the track, this afternoon had tacked upon it a list of names long enough to seem as the roll list of a cadet company. Everyone who has shown even moderate cinder sense will have a chance to demonstrate his claims to the varsity squad, and incidentally his right to be included in the number privileged to go to Los Angeles.

Only in the hundred is the entry list weak in point of numbers, and at that three are entered. "War-Horse" Stanton has again had trouble with his leg muscles and will not run. Unless Trainer Volz can beat old mother nature in easing strained muscles, Stanton's chances of getting into strenuous early-season competition are slim. It would not cause a great surprise if he did not go south, for he is the only five-spot man that the Blue and Gold can count upon for the Stanford meet. Just now he is too valuable to go into the "game-leg squad," which might occur should he run in Los Angeles.

If Stanton does not round into trim by the time of the U.S.C. meet, "Jimmie" Threlkeld, another Angel City product, will stand in line for the hundred. "Jimmie" has made his hundred in 10 1-5s., and he has an opportunity to land upon the southern team by his performance Saturday.

THE DISTANCES.

In the mile and two-mile a host of candidates are bidding for stop-watch favor. Freshmen are numerous, and a good supply of old-time endurance men are jogging off the laps. If a dressing-room full of the long-winded species could be transformed into middle and short-distance sprinters, a better-balanced team would ensue. To somewhat lighten the distance side of the scales Earl Crabbe has been put over from the two-mile into the mile and half-mile division, where he finds plenty of fast company.

In the other events of the field day entries are also large, and this will offset to some extent the withholding of the best performers in the high sticks and in the quarter-mile. MacCliss is not to run his favorite event, and George Clarke is not in shape to negotiate the fast quarter that will be necessary. Both of these boys will have to do duty in the U.S.C. meet.

Manager Minto of the Pastime Club expects to enter about a fifteen-man team against the Bears. The clubmen will be greatly outnumbered, but what they lack in quantity they possess in quality. In the sprints Gates, the P.A.A. champion for two years, is mainly counted upon. His running mate is to be Meillette, who took second in the last P.A.A. contests.

Dick Hoenish is to bear the brunt of the burden in the quarter. The task will not be overheavy, for his time in the distance is close to 50s. Bennison, a former Santa Clara half-miler, is far from being slouchy in getting around the oval; he will cause California runners to more than warm up. Morton, holder of the P.A.A. ten-mile record, is to uphold Pastime honor in the longer distances.

Two weight men of ability will compete. Pat Donovan, American champion 56-pound weight thrower, is counted on for something close to 45ft. in the 16-pound event. Mahoney has a record of 160ft. in the hammer throw. First places in both of these events should go to the clubmen.

The actual scoring strength of the Pastime aggregation cannot be definitely estimated, as the meet will mark their initial appearance for the year. Track men at California are figuring on the club scoring at least forty points, possibly more.

But, whatever be the results of the meet, it is certain that they will furnish the material for estimating the strength of the Blue and Gold squad, which will battle on Bovard Field a week from that day. Each year the U.S.C. meet looms bigger and bigger. The present constellation of record-holding U.S.C. stars makes the southern horizon especially bright when viewed from the north.

VICTORS HAVE TIRED FEELING.

VICTORY OF OAKS OVER WHITE SOX FOLLOWED BY SLUMP.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PLEASANTON, March 6.—The entire squad hopped into harness again today to resume work, which was temporarily discontinued for the White Sox game Thursday. Devlin is naturally pleased over the Oaks' good showing, but attaches no great significance to the victory, contenting himself with pointing out serious mistakes pulled during the contest.

The work today consisted of the daily routine, the pitchers in rotation cutting loose, while the regular batting order swung, bunted and ran the bases.

Middleton, while hitting, received a nasty jolt from one of J. Killilay's fast ones. This will surely interfere with his work for a week or more. Quinlan is shy several cubic inches of skin from the palm of his right hand, preventing his gripping the bludgeon with any degree of power. These two minor afflictions may necessitate a switch in Sunday's line-up. Barrenkamp's stomach was in a turmoil, on account of which he drew a one-day leave of absence.

Geyer was unanimously appointed to lob the leather for the regulars in the daily scrimmage. At no stage did he attempt to drive the hitters. After five innings of desultory action Devlin called a halt with the score 3 to 0 in favor of the understudys. The entire day was characterized by a general let-up, even the worthy leader himself falling into the rut. Deal, the youthful infielder, has received an offer from the Modesto State League club, but will not decide definitely until consulting with some older member of the Oaks.

The club has an opportunity of placing Musky with the Butte (Mont.) club, but will permit the lad sufficient time to improve his throwing arm, which is absolutely useless at present.

The Times is the only newspaper in Los Angeles that does not make a practice of permitting agents, newsboys and dealers to return unsold copies of its issue. Neither does it misbrand or predate its editions, or inflate its circulation by printing more copies than are actually necessary to supply its patrons.

The Times' entire circulation is practically net, and it is more genuine and superior in every respect to that of any other newspaper.

WITH JOE RIVERS.

In Joe Rivers Welsh is facing one of the most dangerous opponents of his career. It is said that they have never fought and the record books do not show the name of Rivers on Welsh's record. But I have seen them fight, and a savage and vicious fight it was.

Rivers was training for a fight at that time—I do not now remember which one—and Welsh had been engaged to teach him some of the fine points of boxing. Stung by being treated like a trained super, Welsh hit Rivers pretty hard and Joe tore into the little Welshman like a wild tiger. The skin drew back from his teeth until he looked like a wolf with rabies, and Joe never fought harder in his life than during those four rounds which followed.

To tell the truth, Welsh made a fool of him. He twisted and turned and ducked until Joe, in his rage, made one final rush and fell flat on his nose.

But Joe has learned a lot since then. It will be a wonder among fights. Welsh is illusive and clever and fast, but Rivers is fast, too, and has the ferocious aggressiveness of the real fighter.

Rivers will probably be at his best and it seems doubtful if that can be expected of Welsh. Freddie is a little haggard and with overwrought nerves.

Too much importance is being attached to the supposed "yellowness" of Joe Rivers. In my opinion Rivers is not yellow and is not a coward. The more one thinks about Rivers the more inevitable is the conclusion that he has been the victim of timid and cowardly match-making and coaching.

Rivers is liable to sudden and appalling depths of discouragement, but he is not afraid of being hurt.

Champ Clark Says It Was Bill Jones' Fault!

"The Bill Joneses" were the little fellows who sat tight holding on to their cash that brought about the lull in business that is fast coming to an end. It was the reluctance of the little corporations to separate themselves from their money that really caused the disquieting talk, all of which causes Speaker of the House of Representatives Clark to write a very interesting editorial on the result of the new Tariff and Currency laws.

So many of our readers have made known their keen enjoyment of these Lord Stranleigh stories that we feel the last of them, which is published in this number, will be finished with regret. "The End of the Contest" is a fitting climax to these unique adventures. It hinges on a Wild West auction sale punctuated with pistols and excitement, and the other happenings make it the best of them all.

We are making no demands, just requesting aid wherever we stop," the leaders said.

Almost half of the personnel of the two "armies" now encamped in Sacramento is foreign.

Feeling is intense between the "insurgents" and the Kelley following. Several fights in embryo were stopped by the police tonight between members of the two followings. A few feet separate the two camps.

HOW BENICIA SOLVED PROBLEM.

BENICIA, March 6.—Benicia handled its unemployed problem today by transporting 1376 jobless men of the rank and file of the two factions headed by W. A. Thorne, and Charles F. Kelley, to Sacramento by the expedient of paying full fare for each man on trains of the Southern Pacific company. The last contingent departed in seven cars tonight, and as the tail lights of the departing train vanished in the direction of the capital city the entire population of this little town gave a sigh of relief.

With the task confronting them of providing the necessaries of life to the large number of uninvited guests for an indefinite period, the citizens of Benicia awoke this morning and prepared to meet an unusual situation. Food was gathered in large quantities and sent to the camps of the men while the city and county officials met in conference. The State Railroad Commission was appealed to for permission to grant a reduced railroad rate in order that the visitors might be sent a part of their way toward their announced goal at Washington, D. C. The commission declared its willingness to grant the lower rate, but the Southern Pacific company refused to be any party to an agreement that would put it in the position of dumping undesirable visitors into the community of another county.

The only other alternative of the city and county was accepted. Full fare for the two unemployed outfits was paid and the transportation of the visitors began late today.

No disorder marked the presence of the men and the extra deputy sheriffs had little to do other than keeping the crowds confined in their respective camps.

Adjt.-Gen. E. A. Forbes arrived today from Sacramento to observe for himself conditions at first hand.

LUMBER TRADE FOR FREE TOLLS.

SHIPPERS SAY REPEAL WILL HURT THEIR INTERESTS.

Declare Action Advocated by President Will Give British Vessels the Advantage, Although They Agree With Wilson's Interpretation of the Terms of the Treaty.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) March 6.—Sentiment among the business men here is generally against the stand taken by the President in the matter of Panama Canal tolls. Lumber shippers, however, say the effect of the repeal of the House bill would be disastrous to the lumber interests of the Northwest by destroying the advantage which free tolls would give American products shipped through the canal to the east coast of the United States.

"I am in favor of free tolls for American ships," said Lewis Schwager, president of the Seattle lumber manufacturing firm of Schwager & Nettleton, Incorporated.

"I am in favor of free tolls for American ships for the simple reason that British Columbia lumbermen have the advantage of being able to charter tramp steamers for the trade between their mills and the Atlantic Coast, while we must engage American ships, manned by American crews at much higher charter rates. It costs between 40 per cent. and 50 per cent. more to operate American ships than vessels under any other flag, and canal tolls for American ships would only add still greater expense, and place us in unfair competition.

"Personally, I believe that President Wilson is right in his interpretation of our treaty with Great Britain. The blunder was made long ago."

I. W. Bert, president of the Commercial Club: "The President's action will save our country from an awkward situation before the world. At the present time we have so few ships to be benefited by the remission of tolls and there are so many other ways by which the merchant marine can be assisted without creating international complications, it is possibly the better thing to do, under the circumstances."

RIO JANEIRO QUIET.

Brazilian Embassy Declares There Is No Ground for Alarm and American Citizens Are Safe.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Advices to the Brazilian Embassy today from Rio Janeiro said the capital was quiet and that there was no ground for alarm on account of the disturbances which caused a proclamation of martial law. The government, Ambassador da Gama announced, was in control of the situation, and the state of siege proclaimed until the end of the month as a precautionary measure might be raised before that time.

Today's dispatches to the State Department said that the American Embassy does not regard that the lives or property of American citizens either in Ceara or in the cities under martial law are endangered.

"When the price of each of the fifteen articles is weighed according to average consumption in workingmen's families," the statement shows, "retail prices were at a higher level on November 15, 1913, than at any time during the twenty-four years preceding, when they reached a maximum of 72.8 per cent. above the average for 1890 to 1899, 9.0 per cent. above the price on December 15, 1912, and 14.50 per cent above the price on December 15, 1911."

A further comparison of retail prices on December 15, 1913, with prices on the same date in 1912, shows that twelve of the fifteen articles for which quotations are given were higher and three were lower in prices. Potatoes had advanced 93.7 per cent.; fresh eggs, 21.9 per cent.; pork chops, 16.8 per cent.; round steak, 13.1 per cent.; rib roast, 10 per cent.; sirloin steak, 8.9 per cent.; ham, 7.9 per cent.; hens, 7 per cent.; corn meal, 6.6 per cent.; bacon, 4.5 per cent.; milk, 1.9 per cent., and lard ,0.7 per cent. Sugar, however, declined 8.6 per cent.; butter, 2.9 per cent., and flour, 0.6 per cent.

According to a statement issued by the Department of Commerce today importations of foodstuffs show a remarkable increase during the decade 1903-1913. Breadstuffs and meats each quadrupled their imports, and imports of fruits and nuts rose from $25,000,000 to nearly $50,000,000. Cocoa, crude and prepared, rose from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000, and coffee from $61,000,000 to $105,000,000.

ASKS WILSON TO EXPLAIN.

Senator Poindexter Wants Him to Make Himself Clear on Matters of "Greater Delicacy."

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Senator Poindexter ("Progressive") introduced a resolution today calling on President Wilson to explain what matters "of even greater delicacy and nearer consequence" he referred to in his address to Congress yesterday as depending on the repeal of the Panama tolls exemption.

The resolution, with a similar one by Senator Jones (Republican) of Washington, went over for a day under the rules.

At the White House yesterday the President, when questioned about that feature of his address, explained that he meant to say that it was very awkward to deal with foreign nations which took the position that the United States did—not to live up to its treaty obligations. That particular phrase of the address, however, was widely discussed in official and Congressional circles and many constructions were applied to it.

Republican Leader Mann told the House that, after reading London dispatches giving the British view of the President's Panama tolls address, he now understood that the President meant by saying that unless Congress ungrudgingly supported the administration's foreign policy, "I shall not know how to deal with other matters of even greater delicacy and nearer consequence."

Mr. Mann read from a London dispatch, headed "Thinks United States Fears Japan."

"After reading that dispatch," said Mr. Mann, "I can appreciate the significance of the last remark of the President in his message calling for protection of this government from a war with Japan and for this government to act at the behest of Europe. I do not court, but I am not afraid of war with Japan or any one else, and I would not yield what I believe to be right through fear, whatever else I might do."

"Heart Songs"

Refreshing as a Drink at the Old Well

ANOTHER HEART SONG

That Will Live Forever

The Old Oaken Bucket — Samuel Woodworth

WRITTEN by Samuel Woodworth, the son of a poor Massachusetts Farmer. His fame rests on his exquisite portrayal of the old-fashioned well on the home farm at Scituate, Mass. "The Old Oaken Bucket" was composed one summer day when living on Duane street, New York. He came home one afternoon overcome with the heat and draining a glass of cold water said to his wife, "That is very refreshing, but how much more refreshing it would be to take a good long draught from the old oaken bucket I left hanging in my father's well at home." Thus inspired, he gave the world that matchless poem and song, "The Old Oaken Bucket," one of the "heart songs" which will live as long as the English language is spoken.

HEART SONGS is not a mere collection of music and words! It is a book compiled directly by more than 20,000 people, who, in sending their favorite songs, told why they sent them.

Every song in this wonderful book has had some sacred memory—some touching experience—some sweet and hallowed association — connected with it in the hearts of thousands. It is their song of joy —of sorrow—of thanksgiving —of love—of bereavement— of home-coming—of reunion —of all the tender sentiments that lift the human heart in worship to its Maker. It is for this—by inspiration—that this unique volume is entitled "HEART SONGS!"

Long Beach Gas Rates.

Charges for natural gas delivered at the limits of the city of Long Beach will be considered today by the State Railroad Commission on its own initiative in a hearing in the Supreme Court rooms in the Bullard building. Commissioners Thelen and Gordon will conduct the hearing, which will begin at 10 o'clock.

"Pay" Entertainment Pays.

Prof. Clark, head of the elocution department of Chicago University, yesterday inspired the student body of the Los Angeles High School with a reading of Victor Hugo's masterpiece, "Les Miserables." The large assembly hall was crowded and the enthusiasm served to indicate that "pay" entertainments are not without supporters.

Up for Repairs.

The revenue cutter Bear has reported at Los Angeles Harbor, to take the place of the Manning, that, after two months' service chasing smugglers along the coast, has limped into Mare Island Navy Yard for repairs. The last service of the Manning was an effort to capture a smuggling fleet that got out of Ensenada, and went north unmolested, the lack of power of the revenue cutter making her unequal to the smuggling outfit.

Wireless Troubles.

Louis R. Krumm, the radio expert, connected with the wireless telegraph bureau of the United States Treasury Department, left last night for San Francisco, where he will pursure his quest of amateur wireless operators, who have neglected to take out a government license. It is expected that the Federal grand jury will make a report Monday involving a well-known employee of the city, who, it is alleged, has been violating the law in this regard.

Approves Settlement.

In Judge Rudkin's United States District Court, yesterday, an order was made approving the settlement of the claim of Ray W. Chenoweth, by R. W. Chenoweth, his guardian, against the Stone & Webber Construction Company of Fresno, for $2500. Young Chenoweth, while engaged in operating an electric mixer, was seriously injured. His guardian brought an action for damages in $40,000, in the Superior Court of Fresno county, but the case was transferred here, because the defendant is a Massachusetts corporation.

Dr. Hutchinson Here.

Dr. Woods Hutchinson of New York was in Los Angeles a few hours yesterday and then went farther south. While here he took time to motor to Exposition Park and inspect the fossils from La Brea Rancho. Dr. Hutchinson has recently been in the Wyoming Bad Lands, inspecting fossiliferous discoveries there. ## THE WEATHER.
[Official Report.]

LOCAL OFFICE, U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, March 6.—[Reported by Ford A. Carpenter, Local Forecaster.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 30.08; at 5 p.m., 29.96. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 65 deg. and 80 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 46 per cent.; 5 p.m., 28 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., north, velocity 2 miles; 5 p.m., southwest, velocity 5 miles. Highest temperature, 85 deg.; lowest, 62 deg. Rainfall for season, 22.08 inches. Barometer reduced to sea level.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.—The Missouri River divides the regions of high and low pressure. The eastern low area is now central over Illinois, and moderate precipitation is consequently general over the eastern half of the United States. The greatest amount, .62 of an inch, is reported from Jacksonville. The temperatures were likewise affected by the decrease in pressure, so that it is warmer in the Eastern States. The western area of high pressure forms a well-marked ridge extending from Washington into Texas, and the weather is fair and dry west of the Rocky Mountains, generally cool, except in Southern California, where, in conjunction with the area of low barometric pressure there was a general rise in temperature along the southern coast. The fair and dry weather in Los Angeles and vicinity shows no present indication of change.

LOCAL FORECAST.

WHAT'S THE USE. SAYS THE LAW.

IF KILFOIL'S RELEASED WILL ARREST HIM AGAIN.

Habeas Corpus Bound to Fail in Keeping Him at Liberty, Say Officers—Grand Jury May Listen to Complaint and Evidence—Family Hampers, Says Ford.

The fight to obtain the release of Philip A. Kilfoil from the County Jail where he is confined, charged with a statutory offense against Miss Lillian Palmer, a minor, he being also under suspicion of poisoning his sister, Mary Kilfoil, was started before Presiding Judge McCormick yesterday by Attorney Dysert and Briggs, who applied for a writ of habeas corpus.

Kilfoil is under $20,000 bonds and the attorneys are seeking to have this reduced so that their client can be set at liberty. To forestall his possible liberty Deputy District Attorney Ford, who was asked to be present, stated his intention of laying the Kilfoil case before the grand jury on Wednesday for investigation.

Judge McCormick issued the writ returnable before him on Monday. Dysert alleged Kilfoil's detention is illegal on the technical ground that when the latter was arraigned before Police Judge Chambers the latter refused his demand for an immediate hearing, setting his preliminary examination for March 16. Dysert also held that the $20,000 bail is excessive.

While Ford admitted Kilfoil's constitutional right to a hearing six days after arraignment, he stated that if he is released on habeas corpus proceedings he will file immediately another complaint and rearrest him. If Kilfoil is indicted the case will come at once before the Superior Court, doing away with the preliminary examination.

Ford fought hard against a reduction of the bonds. He informed Judge McCormick frankly that he had strong reasons to believe Kilfoil guilty of the murder of his sister. He believed that if Kilfoil is freed on a reduced bond that he will skip out to escape prosecution on a murder charge.

Miss Palmer, who is only 14, is so sick that she cannot testify against Kilfoil at this time and this was advanced as a reason why Ford opposed an immediate hearing.

Ford stated that he had been hampered by certain members of the Kilfoil family to get at the bottom of the poisoning of Miss Mary Kilfoil. On the advice of Dysert, Julia Kilfoil had refused to talk to him and he said she would take the same course probably before the grand jury.

Dysert thought that her interests would not be endangered if she was interviewed by Ford and it is possible that Ford may send for her.

MOTHER IS PROSTRATED.

Funeral Held of Daughter Who Could Not Decide to Accept Husband or Babies.

Funeral services over the remains of Mrs. Margaret Trego, the young mother who took poison because she could not decide to accept either her husband or her babies, were held at the home of her mother, Mrs. Julia Hgue, No. 750 Gibbons street, yesterday.

The shock of the tragic death of the daughter was so great that the mother is prostrated. The dead child had always been her favorite, and the devotion between child and parent was unusually intense. The sightless sister, who first discovered the suicidal attempt of the dead woman, will assist the mother in caring for the babies that were left orphans by the tragedy. The grandmother has cared for the infants the greater part of their lives.

LIFE'S VEIL OF SILENCE RENT.

Deaf-Blind Girl Exults in Miracle Wrought.

Yesterday saw the working of a miracle for Helen Keller. Into the silent world in which she has lived and blackened the sweet, high notes of a song penetrated, and Helen Keller for the first time in her memory heard sound. Not by means of her sensitive fingers, which the singer placed on the lips and throat of the woman whose words she wishes to hear, but exactly as normal people hear, the beautiful, full, high notes of the selection from "Die Walkure," sung by Mme. Saltzman-Stevens of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, reached the long-dormant auditory apparatus and the sound of the highest notes reached the girl's brain. With clasped hands and heaving bosom she listened over and over at the completion of the song: "Oh, I have heard! I have heard! I could weep for joy."

Dr. J. A. Macy, to whom Miss Keller owes her ability to speak, was present and eagerly questioned the girl. Miss Keller repeated over and over the marvelous fact that she had heard.

Dr. Macy stated that a test had been made some time ago by means of bell whistles and, while the sound seemed to penetrate to the girl's brain, it caused her extreme pain and was not actually audible to her.

VOICE-WROUGHT MIRACLE.

Helen Keller met Mme. Saltzman-Stevens by chance in the office of Alexander Bakhmeter, yesterday. She learned that she had never "heard" her voice. Mme. Stevens answered that she would do so at once. No one knew she would "hear" except as to the other songs or ordinary conversation—by means of her fingers and by means of vibration. No one of the company that drew interested around the grand piano, realized that a miracle was to be performed. All eyes were turned eagerly on the faces of the two women. Mme. Saltzman-Stevens put one arm around the slender waist of the girl, who smiled at the touch; then with Helen's fingers on her throat and the song "Ich Grolle Nicht" from Schumann's Dichterliebe. The expressive face of the beautiful blind girl told that she knew the words and felt the thrill of the magnificent voice. When the singer soared into the splendid full notes of the opera, the girl's fingers trembled and she clutched her bosom with her free hand.

Then came the selection which Miss Keller had especially requested, Brunhilde's announcement to Sieglinde and her reply, from "Die Walkure." This selection, possibly because of tone placing, seemed to reach a greater tone altitude than the other, although the highest note Mme. Saltzman-Stevens touches in this song is "a" natural. This is many times repeated. Or it may have been the perfect sympathy between the singer and the girl. Whatever the reason, the wonderful voice cleft the unanswerable silence which has long encompassed Helen Keller, and her soul knew the thrills of a song.

SHE HEARS.

Something of what the song meant to the blind girl must have crept into Mme. Saltzman-Stevens's heart, for her glance left the music it had been following and, looking into the blue eyes so close to hers, she threw all the magnetism and vibrance she possessed into the last triumphant bars of the melody. The face of the girl lit up marvelously. She withdrew her fingers from the singer's lips and raised her hand to her left ear, her expression one of awe. Then a dark crimson tide of blood swept up into her cheeks and her eyes brimmed with tears.

Mme. Saltzman-Stevens, for perhaps the first time in her brilliant career, lost the ending of her song. A catch came in her throat and she let the last note remain unsung as the blind girl clung to her.

Both Miss Keller and her teacher were much excited. "I have always said that I believe I could hear very high sounds, but when they made the test with shrill, high whistles, it pained me so I did not wish to hear," said the former. "Now I know that hearing is different. The sound I heard was like what I have thought water falling from a height must be like—a sweet tinkling. I am sure I heard."

HORSEBACK-RIDING CLASS.

Believing that no other sport equals horseback riding, no matter what kind of a horse one rides, providing a cross saddle is used, a bevy of very happy girls from the Young Women's Christian Association will this afternoon take the first of a series of lessons which are to be conducted by the association during the spring months.

There are to be beginners' classes and advanced classes, and as the students progress feature work such as hurdle jumping and fancy riding will be given. Long, interesting trips into picturesque mountain retreats will be taken by the advanced students during the spring. It is also planned to have an evening class.

The class will be mounted by the Los Angeles Riding Academy and the "real" beginners will be given instruction in the big indoor quarters of this school. The tuition has been made very low to members of the Y.W.C.A., and a large class is expected.

Plans are being matured by Miss Ella Stevers, head of the athletic and physical culture department of the association, to form a class in fencing shortly.

GOLD LOCKET, SMITH CLEW.

Detectives Find Bauble Worn by Missing Man.

Room-mate Grilled for Hours by Detectives.

Search for Rich Youth's Body to Be Made Today.

A tiny golden locket attached to the watch chain of John William Smith on the day the rich young Englishman mysteriously disappeared from Glendale, was found yesterday in the home of L. S. Jenkins, at No. 720 Glendale avenue, that city.

Lee Jenkins,

Boy friend and room-mate of the missing John William Smith, who was subjected to a rigid examination yesterday by the District Attorney's detectives in an effort to solve the Glendale mystery.

District Attorney's detectives also found that Smith's traveling bag was secreted in the Jenkins home, that various articles of Smith's wearing apparel adorned the person of Lee Jenkins, with whom Smith roomed at the Jenkins home, and that several articles once belonging to Smith are now in the possession of Miss Clara Jenkins, 17 years old.

These curious circumstances were uncovered while Lee Jenkins, 25 years old, was subjected to a six-hour examination by Chief Detective Louis Duni and his associates. Jenkins made many conflicting statements.

While he was still on the grill, detectives rushed to the Glendale home and once more interrogated other members of the family with which Smith had lived prior to his mysterious disappearance on January 26.

MOTHER RECALLS LOCKET.

It was at this time that Mrs. Jenkins recalled that she had in a drawer the locket which once dangled from the watch chain of the missing youth.

Detective Bonner of the District Attorney's staff and Chief of Police George H. Herald of Glendale searched the Jenkins home for evidence, but did not find the locket. It was revealed by Mrs. Jenkins when she was interrogated as to the number of presents Smith had given her daughter.

On the Saturday evening prior to the disappearance of Smith, Mrs. Jenkins said he gave her daughter, Clara, a valuable camera, and a box of candy. On the following day he promised to get the girl the "largest box of candy in Los Angeles," and on Monday, the day of his disappearance, says Mrs. Jenkins, he gave Clara the gold locket.

Notwithstanding that the other gifts were discussed before, the locket was not discovered by detectives until last night. The handbag, which had been in the house for six weeks, was found in a storeroom under a pile of rags, says Chief Herald. In his bag was a small electric stove which Smith used to heat water when he was ill.

CURIOUS GENEROSITY.

The curious impulse of generosity which moved Smith to give away all of his belongings prior to the time he drew $400 from a local bank, and then disappeared, did not add to the possessions of Clara Jenkins alone. Lee Jenkins, her brother, admitted to detectives yesterday that he was wearing a pair of shoes which Smith had given him; that Smith offered him his trunkful of clothes, and that he gave him a pipe on the second day of their acquaintance.

The promiscuous giving by Smith attracted detectives to an investigation that has centered about the Jenkins home.

MORE TROUBLE THAN LOOT.

Thieves poisoned a dog, arranged for four exits to insure escape, fixed ladders to windows, and went through an elaborate preparation to rob the residence of J. T. Berry, No. 3775 Hobart boulevard. They ended by securing $2 and overlooking jewelry worth more than $1000 that was in the room where they concentrated their search.

APPOINTED CHIEF COUNSEL.

Frank Karr Succeeds Former Judge McKinley as Head of Law Department of Pacific Electric.

Frank Karr was appointed chief counsel for the Pacific Electric yesterday, succeeding former Judge McKinley, who was forced to relinquish active connection with that company because of the increasing duties thrust on him as general counsel for the Southern Pacific by the extension of the southern district to include all lines from El Paso to San Francisco and Sacramento.

Karr was assistant to McKinley for a number of years, both as chief counsel for the Pacific Electric and as general counsel for the Southern Pacific. McKinley will be retained by the Pacific Electric in an advisory capacity, while Southern Pacific cases now in charge of Karr will be carried to completion by him.

Railroad officials explain the change by stating that the centralization of Southern Pacific initial power in this city, through the reorganization by which H. V. Platt became assistant general manager, increased the legal duties of McKinley at the same time that the growth of the Pacific Electric made glaringly evident the desirability of divorcing its legal department from that of the parent company.

City and Railroads.

TO RUSH WORK ON THE BIG HARBOR TERMINAL.

THE Harbor Commission and the Pacific Electric and Southern Pacific companies are getting down to bedrock in shaping their plans for a municipal harbor terminal. There is a disposition on all sides to hasten the work and to put the big project into realization at the earliest possible date.

The comprehensive plan is to embrace the railway facilities extending from the municipal dock No. 1, in the outer harbor, to the upper reaches of the inner harbor, extending as far northerly as Thenard, or the junction of the lines to Wilmington and Long Beach. All the terminal facilities within this district owned by the city, the Pacific Electric, and the Southern Pacific, are to be merged into the one municipal terminal.

The way is also left open for the Salt Lake Railroad to enter the terminal agreement at any time it throws open its lines at East San Pedro for the use of the city and the other railroads and pays its proportionate share of the cost of developing the general municipal terminal.

The Harbor Commission yesterday held a conference with President Shoup of the Pacific Electric company, Vice-President Platt of the Southern Pacific, and their attorneys, to advance the municipal harbor terminal project. Most of the time was spent in outlining the actual territory to be included in the scheme, and the points were practically settled. The complete project is to be even more extensive than originally proposed.

A further conference is to be held this forenoon, and it is the intention of the Harbor Commission to use every available means to hasten the work in all possible ways.

The steamer Isthmian of the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company's line, is now loading a cargo in New York for the Pacific Coast. It will make its first stop on this coast at Salina Cruz and will then proceed directly to the port of Los Angeles, where it will be the first vessel of the line to dock at the Mormon Island channel wharf. This is the beginning of a most important addition to the traffic at the municipal wharves. The cargo now being loaded is mainly for the port of Los Angeles, and is simply an earnest of what is to come.

It is expected that the freight transit sheds at the Mormon Island channel wharf will be in readiness for handling this cargo, and the harbor department is having tracks laid so that cars will be directly available for this freight. The city and the Southern Pacific company have entered into stipulations providing for the Southern Pacific laying tracks on lands in litigation to connect with the municipal tracks, without any impairment of the legal claims of either side to the litigation. These tracks will all be in readiness for the arrival of the steamer Isthmian on April 10 at San Pedro.

The next vessel scheduled to arrive at the Mormon Island channel wharf is the Mexican, which it is expected will tie up there on April 16. Every six days thereafter a vessel of the American-Hawaiian line is scheduled to arrive at the port of Los Angeles.

The American-Hawaiian Steamship Company has given notice to John B. Elliott, collector of the port, that the steamer Arizonan will be due in San Diego April 3, and that this will be the last vessel of that line to make San Diego a port of call until the Panama Canal is opened for traffic. This means that all the vessels of this company will be transferred to the port of Los Angeles and will utilize the agreement made with the Harbor Commission for the use of the Mormon Island channel wharf.

Felony Warrant for Favorite Toopious Gumshoeist.

Widow Says He Decamped With Her Money.

Constable Goes After Active "Progressive" Sleuth.

Larry M. Sullivan, "Progressive" politician, E. Toopious Earl's pet gumshoe sleuth, mining man, prize fight promoter, gambler, wanted by the authorities on charges of having swindled Mrs. Laura Rogers, a comely widow he is alleged to have promised to marry, out of $850, was located at the Hotel Manx in San Francisco last night, and Constable Woodbury, with a warrant based on a felony complaint, has gone after him.

According to Mrs. Rogers, who is prostrated at her apartments at the Astoria Hotel, No. 248 South Olive street, Sullivan has treated many other women, especially widows, in the same fashion that he treated her. After gaining the affection of Mrs. Rogers fourteen months ago, Sullivan is alleged to have induced her by trickery and fraud into giving him nearly $2000 in cash and jewelry. He took all the cash Mrs. Rogers had in the bank, she says, and then gained possession of her diamonds, one by one, on various pretexts.

Sullivan is the man who was hired by Earl to "get the dope" on Dist.-Atty. Fredericks at any cost. For several months Sullivan (whose real name is Jack Schultz, according to "Bunko" Kelly, an ex-lifer, who has an old score to settle with Sullivan,) trailed Fredericks and other political opponents of the rebater and daily reported to him.

"STOOLY" WORK.

After drawing a fat salary for "stooly" work for the Great Reformer and failing dismally to "get" the much-wanted dope, because it was not to be found, the spy was canned by E. Toopious. After quitting Earl the alleged purloiner of a widow's money got into trouble with his wife and she was granted a divorce. She has since remarried.

On July 2, last, Sullivan and his pal, "Red Nose Mike," who, by the way, is wanted by the police on a robbery charge, framed up the following scheme to worm a few more dollars out of Mrs. Rogers, according to her story:

Sullivan rushed into her room and crying like a baby, bawled, "the Sheriff of Sacramento county is after me. Save me, save me." Before Mrs. Rogers recovered her breath a man entered the room, threw back his coat, showed a star and said, "I'm the Sheriff of Sacramento county. I want you!"

Sullivan hid behind Mrs. Rogers and asked her to give the Sheriff $444, and "he will not arrest me." Mrs. Rogers asked the alleged Sheriff if such were the case and he said it was. She thereupon wrote out a check for $444 and gave it to the man named "Red Nose Mike" and he departed. Sullivan hung around a few minutes and also departed after thanking "my dear sweetheart for keeping me out of jail."

SWINDLE WIDOW.

He met his pal later in the evening and they were seen carousing about town late that night. Three weeks later he and "Red Nose Mike" worked the same trick on Mrs. Rogers, this time for $350. She gave the fake Sheriff a check for that amount.

Mrs. Rogers has several ardent love missives from Sullivan. In one he pens, "You mean more to me than life itself. If you go back on me I will become a drunken bum. I love you as much as I did my poor old mother. You beautiful darling," etc.

Sullivan or Schultz promoted the Battling Nelson-Joe Gans lightweight battle in Goldfield, Nev., in 1909, for the championship of the world. He is well known in Portland, Or., where, according to Kelly, he conducted a saloon and gambling joint called the "Sailor's Retreat."

Several months ago "Bunko" Kelly was released from the Oregon penitentiary, where he served thirteen years and four months of a life-term for the alleged murder of a man named Sayres. Kelly says Sullivan framed the murder charge against him. A few days before Kelly was released a man named Joe Bryan confessed to the murder of Sayres and Kelly was given his freedom.

SEEKS REVENGE.

"I'm down here to settle with Jack Schultz which is Sullivan's real name," said "Bunko" last night. "He's got to make amends. He got $50,000 out of me."

Sullivan was general manager of the Santa Cruz Mining Company of Mexico and was rated very wealthy at one time. He has mixed in gambling saloon, race horses, politics and gumshoe work since his arrival here five years ago.

Sullivan also gumshoed for Clarence Darrow, labor agitator, who barely escaped conviction on a bribery charge.

Larry M. Sullivan,

Really Jack Schultz, E. Toopious Earl's detective, for whose arrest on a swindling charge a warrant was issued yesterday. An officer has gone to San Francisco after him.

HOUSING LAWS MEREST JOKES.

Los Angeles is the logical location for an epoch-making experiment in bettering housing conditions, preparatory to the great influx of immigration which will follow the opening of the Panama Canal, according to Dr. Carlton H. Parker, secretary of the State Commission of Immigration and Housing.

Parker, who is professor of economics in the University of California, met in the Council chamber yesterday with members of the Housing Commission of this city and others interested. He is scheduled to deliver sundry addresses during the next two weeks to representative Southland civic bodies and schools.

"Los Angeles has a reputation for doing things and for intelligent charity," said Parker. "Therefore I invite it to set a salutary example to the rest of the State in providing, beforehand, arrangements whereby the immigrants from the nations of the world may be provided with housing which will create in them an appreciation of the bountiful opportunities offered by this western world."

Dr. Elbert Wing and Dana W. Bartlett of the City Housing Commission preceded Parker and outlined some of the housing plans in vogue in Germany, England, New South Wales and other countries

"STATE LAWS FARCICAL."

Parker jumped into his subject by stating that the present tenement-house and housing laws are farces. He also saliently pointed out that police court business is on the increase in this State, in spite of a "gooder than good" administration. Mexico was also referred to as a place where a high quality of paternalism is desirable.

"Our present tenement-house law has provisions for twenty square feet of light-well space," said Parker. "Consequently builders can either make the space four by five feet or defeat its purposes by making it one by twenty feet. They can also call their tenements flats and we are checkmated.

FAMILY SHARES BUSCH WEALTH.

Brewer's Will Is Filed Here for Probate.

Local Property Valued at Over Million.

The will of Adolphus Busch, the multi-millionaire brewer of St. Louis, as well known here as he was in St. Louis, and with vast holdings in this county, Missouri and Germany, was filed yesterday for probate by Simpson, Moody & Simpson of Pasadena. The petition, in the name of the widow, Mrs. Lilly Busch, now occupying the Busch home on Orange Grove avenue, Pasadena, states the value of the property, in this county, is $1,070,000.

Of this amount $5000 comprises the personal property. Among the property listed are The Blossoms, with a frontage of nearly one-fourth mile on Madeline drive, and a 500-foot lot on South Orange Grove avenue, Pasadena; a lot on Spring street between Sixth and Seventh streets, this city; the Decatur Hotel site, Santa Monica, and a 1000-acre ranch in Orange county.

Busch died in Germany, October 10, 1913. His will is dated December 16, 1908, and there are three codicils, dated December 8, 1910; December 28, 1911, and June 7, 1912. These codicils relate in the main to keeping under one control Busch's securities in the Manufacturers' Railway Company; his investments in the Diesel engine enterprise, incorporated as the Busch-Sulzer-Diesel Engine Company, and the American Bottle Company.

The executors of the will are Mrs. Busch, Edward A. Faust and Charles Nagel. The trustees named are Mrs. Busch, August Busch, the eldest son, and Charles Nagel.

CHARITY BEQUESTS.

Busch in his will first disposes of $120,000 in sums of $10,000 each to the following charities: German General Protestant Orphans' Home, Home of the Friendless, Protestant Orphans' Home, St. Luke's Hospital, Provident Association of St. Louis, Little Sisters of the Poor, Episcopal Orphans' Home, Sisters of the Good Shepherd, Teachers' Benevolent Annuity Association, St. Louis Childrens' Hospital, St. Louis Protestant Orphans' Asylum of Webster Groves, Mo., Jewish Hospital, $50,000 was bequeathed to the Althenheim, $10,000 to Alvina Clementine Berg, and $10,000 to Anna Schumann.

Mrs. Busch is bequeathed the household property and effects, including paintings, statuary and jewelry.

The Villa Lilly in Germany, named in honor of his wife, and the Gieshuebel estate near by, comprising 1200 acres of terrace and agricultural lands, was given to Mrs. Busch during her natural life. She is also to receive an income not exceeding $50,000 a year.

EIGHT EQUAL SHARES.

The residue of the estate is divided into eight equal shares, Mrs. Busch receiving one-eighth in lieu of a dower and to be hers absolutely. The remainder is to be divided into seven equal shares by the trustees for the benefit of the seven children, namely August A., and Carl Busch, Nellie Loeb, Edmee Reisinger, Anna Louise Faust, Clara Von Gontard and Wilhelmine Scherer.

Two shares are given to August, who is made responsible for the care of his invalid brother, Carl. It is Busch's will that Carl shall live at least as well as he did, that is, to the extent of $12,000 a year. These shall be managed by the trustees for each daughter, who may receive the money at once or installments up to $100,000 in order to secure them incomes.

Busch provides that August shall continue as president of the Anheuser Busch Brewing Association and his father pays him this tribute:

"Because I believe his management will promote the interests of the Association and thereby will serve to secure the full interests in the association, which I bequeath by the terms of this will."

IOWA GATHERING TODAY.

Set speeches will not be in order, but informal remarks from these sons of Iowa will follow the picnic dinner.

Music is to furnished by the Grinnell College male quartette.

Visitors will register by counties, and reunions will be held by students and former students of all of the colleges and universities of Iowa, thirty in number. The hour between 3 o'clock and 4 o'clock, will be devoted to these reunions and to registering of the college people.

WILL CENSOR MOVIES.

Women's Million Club Names Committee to Pass on the Films Exhibited Here.

Censorship of motion picture films shown in this city was undertaken last night by the Women's Million Club, in the naming of a committee of ten, which will see and criticise every reel exhibited by each of the ten "first run" houses in Los Angeles. Results will be given publicity, as a safeguard against children viewing picture dramas considered undesirable for their growing minds and morals.

The committee, named by Mrs. Clara Shortridge Foltz, will act with the co-operation of the owners of motion picture houses. The members will see films each Monday and Thursday, the days on which programmes are changed. In this work they will co-operate with Mrs. Fowler of the Child's Welfare Department of the San Diego Exposition.

Members of the committee are: Mrs. C. Russ (chairman,) Mrs. J. Hutchason, Mrs. A. Sanders, Mrs. D. Holmes, Mrs. T. Mason, Mrs. L. L. Roome, Mrs. Pearl Morrison, Mrs. de Walt Payne, Mrs. H. Youngblood and Miss Louise Wharton.

Reports from committees at the recent Food and Home Products Exposition were read, and a resolution from the Southern Retail Grocers' Association, thanking the club for its work at the exposition and in boosting home products.

FUNDS INTACT, SCHOOLS GOOD.

LOCAL EDUCATIONAL PRIDE IS IMPELLING FACTOR.

High and Intermediate Schools Not Boosted at Expense of the Elementary Grades — Superintendent Explains Misconception on Part of Public.

Superintendent of Schools Francis, replying to the charge that the elementary schools of Los Angeles have been crippled to build up the intermediate and High Schools, states that a misconception has arisen and that the assertion that the elementary school funds have suffered is pure folly.

"There are three funds recognized by law," said Francis yesterday. "They are the kindergarten, elementary and High School funds, all separate and governed by separate laws. They must be neither transferred nor confused.

"In the elementary school fund a special tax levy of not to exceed 30 cents is allowed by law. In the High School fund this levy may reach 75 cents. Los Angeles city this year asked for and received the full 30-cent levy for her elementary schools. According to the decision of the County Superintendent of Schools and county counsel, this city had no power to secure more elementary school money for the operating expenses of the elementary schools.

"The folly of the assertion, therefore, that the elementary schools have suffered from the robbing of funds will be clearly seen.

"Teachers in the seventh and eighth grades of the intermediate schools are paid from the elementary school funds at a rate no higher than seventh and eighth grade teachers outside of intermediate schools receive. The balance of their salaries is paid from the High School funds for their services as ninth grade teachers. If there have been any favors shown, they have all been to the credit of the elementary schools. More has been done for the elementary schools of Los Angeles in the last five years than is realized by many. No other twenty years of previous history can show as much progress."

Supt. Francis enumerated thirty separate benefits which elementary schools enjoyed.

"The tendency to more nearly equalize the difference in cost between the elementary and High Schools is marked," said the superintendent. "This is being accomplished not by pulling down the cost of our High Schools, thereby crippling their efficiency, which surpasses that of any other city in America, but by raising that of the elementary schools.

"There is no doubt but that Southern California during the last ten years has developed her High Schools proportionately faster than her elementary schools. This was due to several causes, the most prominent being local pride in one educational institution, which naturally became the High School. People are just beginning to realize the importance of the elementary-school child, and we are entering an educational era that will be marked by a greater emphasis placed upon the fuller and saner development of the elementary schools."

THE OLD OAKEN BUCKET.

A Famous Song and Its Composer.

Samuel Woodworth, the son of a modest Massachusetts farmer, was born in Scituate, that State, January 13, 1785. While the family were poor and had no luxuries, their lot was no worse than that of the ordinary New England family, and they lived in comparative comfort.

Young Samuel received the usual education of the country boy of his time, began writing verse at an early age—and was apprenticed at the age of 15 to the printing trade.

While his life was a succession of ambitions, attempts and failures, his fame rests secure on his faithful portrayal of the old-fashioned well and weather-beaten well-sweep, universally to be found in the farms of that day.

While living in New York City, on Duane street, he came home one July day nearly overcome with the heat, and with nothing to drink but the tepid water of the city—ice being unknown in those days in the summer months—he exclaimed to his wife: "What would I not give this moment for a long draught from the old oaken bucket hanging in my father's well!"

"Samuel!" replied his wife, "wouldn't that be a good subject for a poem?" Forthwith he sat down—the thronging recollections of his childhood crowded thick upon him—and that charming idyl of bucolic New England sprang into deathless life and fame. The music is said to have been adapted from an ancient Scottish melody by Frederick Smith. Woodworth died in 1852.

This song, like so many of the heart lyrics of an elder day, is found in the famous song collection called "Heart Songs"—which this paper is offering nearly free of cost to its readers.

We recommend them to look at the Heart Songs coupon, to be found elsewhere in The Times today—and learn the terms upon which this remarkable book can be had.

Cake Day.

"THE TIMES" SCHOOL OF DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

ONE can never get too much of the sweet things of life, so this afternoon is to be another cake day at The Times School of Domestic Science. The last cake day was such a popular one that from all sides Mrs. Haffner-Ginger, who conducts the class in cooking, has been besieged with requests for more of her splendid cake recipes.

The cakes she bakes are always light, always tasty, and just the kind of cakes the housewives want to learn to bake, hence the many requests.

One of the cakes Mrs. Haffner-Ginger has promised for today is a Lenten cake, one without butter. She smiled when she said this cake would be one of the many surprises she had in store for the class.

There will be many different kinds of cake baked this afternoon and each kind will be carefully explained to the class, and if the time should not allow for icing each kind, Mrs. Haffner-Ginger will tell the class the sort of icing that will go best with each different cake, and just how this filling is best made.

FOR FULL-COURSE DINNER.

Thursday the yellow table displayed by Bullock's was greatly admired and proved a help to more than one present. The table was set completely with silver and glassware for a full-course dinner. Of course it wouldn't do to say the dinner table would serve as a copy for any dinner party, as one set, slender glasses with hollow stems, placed close to each plate, showed that for this dinner at least, wine was to be served, but it was a splendid example of just how such a dinner table should be set, and if wine were not served the hollow-stemmed glasses could easily be omitted.

The yellow candles, with their Dresden shades, were most attractive and were such a splendid hint.

COMFORT TO LOOK ON.

It is such a comfort to watch Mrs. Haffner-Ginger cook, for she never seems to hesitate and her hands move steadily and surely among the ingredients. She never minds questions and her quick, witty answers keep the class in a happy state of mind.

This afternoon come prepared to ask all the questions you like regarding cake baking, and if you have any recipes that have "stumped" you, bring them along and Mrs. Haffner-Ginger will tell you just what the trouble was.

It has taken years of study, but she is now master of her art. There isn't a step in the science that she is not so familiar with that she could take it blindfolded, so it is a pleasure to consult her, just as it is satisfying to consult any specialist. What she tells you will be right to the point and it may prove of inestimable value to you. You may not want to decorate cakes in the elaborate way Mrs. Haffner-Ginger usually trims hers, but it is a lot of satisfaction to know how, and to be able to add a few fancy touches to your cookery if ever the occasion should arise when you need to.

A GOOD HINT.

The fashion show windows are attractive, even if one is not in a position to spend a lot of money on a new gown, and one may only get a hint how to make over an old dress, but it will be a hint worth while, and so it is with Mrs. Haffner-Ginger's marvelously-decorated dishes. You may not have the time for such decorating as you watch her do, but if you are a bit ingenious you can apply the same principle of decoration to other dishes.

The cooking class meets at 2 p.m. in the auditorium on the second floor of the Times Building at First and Broadway, and is free to all. Class meets every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons.

DRINKS POISON.

Crawling into a dark doorway at Third and Spring streets, yesterday, Jacob Iselhard, supposed to have been a secretary in the adjutant's department of the United States army in the Philippines, took his life yesterday by drinking poison. The body was identified by Fred Jackson, No. 352 Manchester avenue.

TAKE EVERYTHING.

More polish was added to the art of burglary yesterday by two raiders who looted the grocery store of H. E. Long, No. 3160 West Tenth street, and then stole his horse and buggy to transport the materials to their rendezvous. Hundreds of cigarettes, great quantities of canned goods and several sacks of beans were included in the stolen goods. No trace of the stolen horse has been found.

Dr. Carlton H. Parker,

Secretary of the State Commission of Immigration and Housing, who outlined ways and means to meet the immigration needs of California yesterday.

should be aroused to a demand for a correction of these glaring inconsistencies. Now, I don't believe in fraternalism, nor in such other Utopian dreams, but I do believe that we have the broken-hearted and broken-willed among us.

"Think, the women, the men, that are least able to bear the confinement between four walls and a ceiling are those that will be confined therein unless we get busy. For instance, 96 or 97 per cent. of the Russian women that come to us are illiterate. They look out on a circumscribed lightwell or against the blank wall of an adjoining building and find themselves little able to resist the depressing influence which comes even to the best of us at some times.

"Paternalism is a good thing. Britain and Germany extended it to Brazil and other South American countries, to their benefit, and, without going into the Mexican situation, something of the same kind might be valuable here. But politics are not my realm. I am here to tell you that paternalism towards less fortunate brothers is a desirable condition of mind."

LOOKS TO THIS CITY.

Continuing, Dr. Parker stated that his object in the trip here was twofold. For one thing, he desires to interest Los Angeles in a plan to make itself an example of better housing conditions, for, as he said: "Immigration to Southern California will be exceptionally heavy. Also, much of the State looks to this city for a good example."

Parker concluded by stating that at present there is "no housing law, worthy of the name, to enforce, and Los Angeles must take the lead in getting a stronger and higher law."

Representatives of many civic organizations, including members of the City Council, and many business men were present. Parker is investigating housing conditions here and yesterday morning covered the portion of the city east of the river.

"On Avenue 18," he said, "I found eight little houses on a double lot that rent for from $9 to $12 monthly. This condition is good. I also found other low-priced rental property of high standard. "More of these," he said, with emphasis, "will keep out the tenements."

COURT ORDERS PAINTINGS HELD.

Question of Ownership of Collection of Oils Entitled "The Industry and Idleness Series" to Be Decided—Pictures Exhibited in New York Before Coming West.

The question of the ownership of $500,000 worth of oil paintings, alleged to be from the brush of William Hogarth, and known as "The Industry and Idleness Series," involved in the action brought by Frank M. McKey of Chicago, trustee in bankruptcy of the estate of Tomlinson-Humes, Incorporated, against Eli P. Clark and the Los Angeles Warehouse Company, has been temporarily disposed of so far as possession of the pictures is concerned, by Judge Wellborn.

Yesterday the court allowed the temporary injunction enjoining the defendants from selling, or otherwise disposing of, the works of art, pending the final disposition of the contest for their possession as part of the estate of the bankrupt firm. The paintings were brought here from the residence of William Clark in New York, and are now stored with the Los Angeles Warehouse Company.

The list of pictures is as follows: "The Two Apprentices," "The Industrious Apprentice Sunday Morning," "The Idle Apprentice Sunday Morning," "The Industrious Apprentice Appointed Overseer," "The Idle Apprentice Sent to Sea," "The Marriage of the Industrious Apprentice," "Thomas Idle Returns from Sea," "Frank Goodchild Appointed Sheriff," "Tom Idle Betrayed by His Mistress," "Tom Idle Brought Before Alderman Goodchild," "The Execution of Tom Idle," "Frank Goodchild Lord Mayor of London."

The pictures were originally the property of Thomas Myers of Buffalo, but were afterward transferred to the bankrupt firm, and from them to Clark. It is alleged that the pictures were on exhibition at the residence of William Clark in New York, and the charge in the petition is that they were brought West and delivered to Clark without any authority. This is denied by Clark, who has a bill of sale from the bankrupts.

May Apple Root

Oldest Known Medicine Mentioned in Genesis and Songs of Solomon

"Mandrake" is the Biblical name of what we call May Apple. Of the May Apple, Encyclopaedia Britannica defining the word Podophyllin says: "Mandrake or May Apple Root, a popular remedy much used by those averse to calomel or other mercurial preparations, hence has been called 'Vegetable Calomel.'"

Our grandsires used May Apple Root, tea or powder as a Liver Regulator. It has survived by virtue of its merit as a starter of Bile. Our forefathers said: "It makes the Liver act"—which is true in the sense that it releases the Bile from the Liver.

Bile is the one natural germicide that overcomes germ growth in the intestines. A free normal flow of Bile is essential to immunity from germ infection and intestinal disorders.

For years chemists have labored to overcome the only objection ever raised to Podophyllin—the griping—and at last have succeeded and offer to the world a new formula called "PoDoLax"—"PoDo" from Podophyllin and "Lax," meaning laxative or gentle in action as contrasted with its former cathartic or purging effect.

PoDoLax is good to taste and is taken by children from a spoon or glass without the usual resistance. Best results are had by a single dose when a bad taste, or bad breath, or coated tongue are first noticed. Ask for PoDoLax and be sure to get PoDoLax.

We take the risk of its being abused: we ask the grocer to return a dissatisfied customer's money if she doesn't like Schilling's Best; let her keep the goods; and sell her again.

So long as he thinks she is honest, he is to hand-over the money. We trust him to do for us as he'd do for himself if he were we and himself too.

LAST DAY OF FASHION SHOW'S PRETTY PARADE.

BY OLIVE GRAY.

THIS, the last day of the Los Angeles United Fashion Show, has in store for visitors as many features of interest as any during the great opening. In fact, many have waited until the final day to make the rounds and as Saturday is so generally conceded to be "downtown day," some of the finest models have been reserved for a showing at this time.

The parades of living models will be continued in several of the big stores and the parade of well-dressed women will continue the full length of Broadway. And, let us add, many will, as heretofore, be accompanied by their husbands. Truly, I believe as many men as women have given their time and attention to this especial Fashion Show. This is true not only upon the streets, but inside the stores. If any came to scoff, they in most instances remained to pay; for interested though the visitors to the garment departments were in the parades, they were even more interested in purchasing their spring wardrobes.

In several of the stores, it was almost impossible to find enough girls to robe the fair models, so great was the demand from customers for the attention of their favorite saleswomen. There has been, in fact, almost a stampede for spring clothes, partly owing, perhaps, to the unexpected warmth of the weather. Then, too, the styles are particularly attractive, particularly wantable. It takes a woman but an instant to decide when she sees exactly what she knows will serve her purpose and will become her, and the garments and fabrics brought into the city for this occasion are such as fill to a nicety the wants of the general run of women.

I predict that the coming season will find Los Angeles women better dressed for every hour in the day and for each occasion than they have ever been before, and this is very largely due to the sensible buying which has taken place by those sent East for this purpose. It is not so much the occasional party dress or the wrap worn to the opera which constitutes good dressing, as it is the suit worn when one goes shopping, or to the theater, or for a promenade. Everyday dress is more to be considered than is that for occasional wear. Thousands see us, too, in street dress where but a favored few behold us in festal array; and it is from the fact of the excellent stocks of all-the-time wearables that I predict exceptionally good dressing for the Los Angeles women during the coming spring and summer.

RICHNESS OF WHITE.

The favor given to all white in handsome gowns was happily illustrated in a lovely white evening dress shown in Terrill's window. A model by Cheruit, this striking one was characterized less by any ornateness of trimming, than by its wondrously beautiful lines brought out by means of artistic draping. Lace formed, of course, the flouncings and an especially handsome lace it was, filmy, and of that creamy tint which gives the impression that it may have been handed down for generations.

Each garment and each costume brought over by Terrill comes here for the reason that it is especially characteristic of some fine French maker and that is why those who are fond of French dressmaking—and are there any women who are not?—make this house their Mecca when buying handsome clothes.

WASHABLE GLACE.

A novelty in gloves seen in one of the big Broadway stores is a line of washable glace gloves. As pretty, as excellent in shape as are any of the glace gloves, these are no higher in price than are the ordinary washable articles, which do not fit well when purchased and fit still less after they have been washed. It seems almost too good to be true; but I am told, 'pon honor, that just plain soap and water will transform them, when they are soiled, into a good-as-new pair of nicely-fitting gloves.

NO WINDS CAN WHISTLE.

If you drive a motor car you are well aware how the chilly wind loves to whistle up your wrists as you spin along; and yet you may have tried the ordinary gauntlet gloves and discarded them as clumsy. You will hail the new soft-leather gauntlets, which protect without encumbering. The palms are ridged so that the wheel cannot slip, as you handle it, and—a point never to be overlooked when motoring—these gauntleted gloves make the hands look smaller than do the ordinary kind.

FOR YOUR HAIR?

Have you selected the color which you will have your hair for the coming season? It may match your suit, or it may correspond with the touch of color in your girdle, or be in contrast to the color scheme of your clothes.

I remember hearing grandmother tell about a girl friend who tried to darken her hair and when she arose in the morning after applying some chemical she found to her unspeakable horror that her hair was green. And now—every day proves that the subject of worry of yesterday is the matter of congratulation of today.

FASHION SHOW DEDUCTIONS.

Instead of lacing in your waist line you lace out your hips. The lace-flounced hip tunic is a feature of the present mode. Every dress skirt is now a petticoat, and a petticoat of lace. The merest touch of silk is sometimes used to form a hip pannier and to carry the color scheme of the frock from skirt to blouse.

Many gown draperies give one the impression that the skirt was made too long and was caught up haphazard to hold it from the ground; and yet draping is an art.

The millinery of the season adds to woman's stateliness. Few styles there are which do not turn up high on one side or directly in the back, thus giving the impression of towering heighth which is still further carried out by the long antenna of ostrich fancies or other stick-ups.

Sleeves long, sleeves scant, sleeves full, sleeves none at all; this is the season's verdict.

MARRIES; DISAPPEARS.

Miss Cecelia Payne, 14 years old, who startled her circle of acquaintances recently by disappearing from her home, No. 704 Hillvale place, after having left the house to turn on a hose, further shocked them yesterday by announcing she was married. She had gone to a neighboring town and secured a license to wed. Her husband, she said, was Frank Martin, 18 years old. She announced to her mother that she intended to remain away, and the mother immediately sought the assistance of the police in finding her.

WOMAN TO THE RESCUE.

Capt. Joaquin B. Alcalde, adventurer of war, who is alleged to have being implicated with Didier Masson in a sensational aeroplane invasion of Mexico, was rescued in more colorless strife recently by a woman. He was in a hand-to-hand conflict with Ben Cahn in a downtown rooming-house at the time, according to testimony offered in Police Court yesterday during the trial of Cahn on a charge of battery. Cahn was found guilty, and will be sentenced today.

Cahn was accused of having disturbed the peace of the Misses Annie and Louise Baker, joint conductors of a rooming-house at No. 610½ South Spring street. There Alcalde and Cahn met. They were not amiable. They had words, then differences, then blows. Alcade was no match for Cahn. The intrepid aviator and soldier was being bested, he related to the court, when Miss Louise Baker came to his relief, with a regiment of strong arms and stinging blows. She saved him defeat, he admitted.

BACK ON THE JOB.

Rapidly now approaches the season when he that knocketh a home run is greater than he who taketh a city.

TROUBLES ABROAD.

Mars is suffering from a late frost. Before the year is over Boston or Chicago may have the same trouble. In the meantime all nature smiles upon California with nothing to fear from the weather now.

UNCOMFORTABLE.

A German at San Bernardino has suddenly forgotten his own language without remembering any of the other languages that he never knew. He does not even remember what tongue he has forgotten and he has to rely on a little broken English to give the doctors any idea of his peculiar sickness. A man forgets that he is married now and then, or that he owes money, but a lapse of memory that is a complete lapse of lingo has no compensation.

AN UNUSUAL CONCERN.

The United States Express Company has never had a stockholders' meeting since 1862. It is now closing its business without debt or obligation and with $20,000,000 in cash and assets to distribute among those who own its shares. It blames the parcel post system for putting it out of commission. If the United States can run a business as well as this namesake the people will have no cause to complain, but the postal authorities have yet to prove their ability as expressmen.

THE SEAMEN'S BILL.

A committee of leading shippers from San Francisco and Los Angeles are in Washington opposing before the House Committee on Merchant Marine the passage of La Follette's seamens bill, which has passed the Senate and is pending in the House.

It is claimed, and not without reason, that the bill is oppressive, that if it should pass and be enforced, the limited amount of international trade that we now have under the American flag would come to an end, especially on the Pacific Ocean, where it is impossible to run steamers without crews composed in part of Japanese.

PLENTY OF FOOD.

The people of London will not be hungry for lack of meat and dairy products, even if the supplies from Canada and from the United States are reduced. There was scheduled to arrive in London between February 26 and March 9 five steamers from New Zealand carrying 5,436,700 pounds of mutton and lamb, 4,085,500 pounds of beef, 5,807,500 pounds of butter, 7,310,500 pounds of cheese and 163,250 pounds of rabbits.

Armour and Swift are not to be caught asleep. Their representatives are in Australia and in Argentina preparing to establish great packing-houses in those countries.

COMBINATION OF CREAMERY AND LAUNDRY.

The University of Wisconsin, which for years has conducted a successful creamery, is now putting in a community laundry plant, to be run in conjunction with the creamery, with a view of introducing laundering as a side line in the creameries and cheese factories of the State.

It is to be hoped that this combination of industries will not find its way to California. The imparting of a dairy odor to one's linen might not be altogether objectionable. But how about giving an undershirt and soiled-stocking flavor to the butter and cheese?

THE GREEK BRIDE.

We have in Los Angeles something like a hundred Greek bachelors to one who is married. Yet they remedy this evil as fast as their savings will let them send for the girl back home. After she has crossed the seas, leaving her sunny Greece for our brighter Southern California, the groom's friends give her a royal wedding. They crown her with blossoms of the real orange and drive her in a carriage through the city. They make a procession of four or five carriages with the United States flag over one lamp and the Greek flag over the other. Laughter rings from every vehicle throughout the drive. They show the little beauty the city as a proud young husband might show his beloved each chamber of the new home. It is to them as if they had built Los Angeles for her.

Blessed little Greek bride—brown-eyed or fair—undisturbed by eugenics, not distressed about suffrage, nothing to say for or against the government or the conditions of society; glad to be alive, trusting in the strength of the man at her side, being sure of love and willing to risk everything else for it! They will be great children, the sons and daughters she will bear this dogged, silent man at her side, now glowing shyly under her prettiness; and the children of these children will be even better. Some of them will speak the names of the women in this city and this State that the rest of us know so well today. They will bespeak them with the respect of history and the conviction of epoch-making; but the big women of our kind, who are trying to do the big things for the State today, are no more necessary to the State now or to its future than is the little Greek bride in her cheap white finery and her orange blossoms. Oh, mothers, give us sons as well as laws!

The fleeing attorney, C. V. Riccardi, had in him the making of a perfectly good Bull Moose statesman.

THE FREE TOLLS BUGABOO.

The Democratic Congress will illustrate neither the courage nor the patriotism of the American people if it shall yield to the proposition of President Wilson to purchase the "good offices" of Great Britain by repealing the clause in the Panama Canal bill allowing American coastwise ships to pass through the canal free of toll.

We do not need the good offices of Great Britain in Mexico any more than Great Britain needs ours there, and if Japan is hunting trouble with us because of discrimination against her people in the matter of acquiring title to land in California, she will not be apt to forego her purpose on account of any influence that Great Britain may exert.

President Wilson reiterates the prating of the shipping and railroad combine to the effect that the Panama Canal tolls exemption act is a violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty that is dishonorable on our part. He makes no answer—for he can make no answer—to the reply that has been repeatedly made to this talk of "dishonorable violation" of a treaty.

There are two elementary principles of international law which have been repeatedly sustained by the highest courts in Europe and America. One is that a commercial treaty may be abrogated by the legislative power of either party to it. (Horner vs. U. S., 143 U. S. 570, 6 Op. Atty.-Gen. 291; Thomas vs. Gay, 169 U. S. 264.)

The other is that when the conditions under which and in consequence of which a treaty was made have radically changed, the treaty ceases to be binding on either party to it. (12 Pet. 438, 8 Fed. Rep. 462; Vattel Law of Nations, bk. 2C.17.)

The Hay-Pauncefote treaty related to the construction of a canal through alien territory (Nicaragua) in which Great Britain had some jurisdiction (on the Mosquito Coast) that might have been injuriously affected by the construction of a canal without a treaty. The canal was not built there. It was built hundreds of miles distant from there, through a territory purchased by the United States from the republic of Panama and which belongs to the United States as absolutely as Alaska or Hawaii. The consent of Great Britain, or any treaty with Great Britain, was unnecessary to warrant the United States in constructing a canal through its own territory.

The reason assigned by Sir Edward Grey for asking the repeal of the coastwise ship toll exemption clause is pitiable in its smallness. The repeal of the law would not add a ton of freight to any British ship, for foreign ships are precluded by law from trading between American ports. If our coastwise ships paid toll it would add a trifling amount to the canal revenues and, as tolls will be based upon revenues, the tolls paid by coastwise ships might reduce by a few cents per ton the toll charges levied on British ships. It is a cheeseparing reason that Sir Edward Grey assigns for his demand.

For President Wilson to urge Congress to comply with the demand is dishonest in that it assumes that we violated honor in enacting the exemption law, and is cowardly in assuming that we need the help of Great Britain in order to protect ourselves against Japan and Mexico and cannot obtain such help unless we buy it and pay for it.

Since when have we fallen so low that we need the "good offices" of Great Britain to "protect" us against Japan or Mexico or any nation or combination of nations? Have we not a moral and legal right to declare by law what people or race of people shall own land and acquire citizenship among us? If the lawful exercise of that right shall be deemed a casus belli by Japan, or China, or Turkey, or Morocco, or any country of Hindostan, do we need the help of Great Britain to protect our soil from foreign invasion and our ships from being driven from the seas?

And, if we should ever need such help, is there any assurance that we would get it? If the American eagle should sneak between the paws of the British lion for shelter, is it certain that the shelter would be afforded? If we sell our birthright for a mess of pottage, may we not be cheated out of the pottage?

The Pacific Coast has a special interest in the non-repeal of the coastwise ship exemption law. Its repeal would diminish by $1.20 per ton the amount paid to our farmers and orchardists and vineyardists for their products, and it would add $1.20 per ton to the cost of every article imported from the East, whether such exportations and importations were sent through the canal or by rail, all of which would amount to many millions of dollars per annum.

The transcontinental railroad companies appear to have captured the Princeton schoolmaster utterly. It is to be hoped that their purchases have not taken in a majority of Congress.

INTERNATIONAL INTERVENTION.

The suggestion of The Times that there be co-operative international intervention in Mexico is meeting with approval, both in this country and in Europe. When the Mexicans of all parties are assured, as they should be, that such intervention will not despoil them of any territory, that it will have no object except to put an end to the rule of bandits whose murders and robberies have devastated their country, and that the sole object of the powers will be to establish a provisional government in the republic, restore order, disarm and dissipate the bandits, whether followers of Carranza, of Villa, of Zapata, of Orosco, or masquerading as Federals, and keep the provisional government in power until these objects are accomplished, intervention for such purposes will be welcomed by the better class of Mexicans.

Such a provisional government should be maintained in power until a supervised general election should result in the choice of a President and Congress by all the people, and order be restored, industry resumed, and claims of foreigners for indemnity for property seized and destroyed shall be adjusted. The allied forces could then be withdrawn, although a military police force might be maintained by the powers for a while.

The assent of Carranza and of Huerta might be obtained to this kind of co-operative international intervention. If not, the nations could proceed without such consent, for the conditions entirely warrant intervention, and indeed imperatively warrant it.

Between Villa and Carranza it seems to be a case of before-me-my-dear-Alphonse.

THE LAW OF EMPLOYER AND EMPLOYEE.

O. B. Coppage, a locomotive fireman employed by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, was discharged by William Adair, a master mechanic in the employ of the road. Coppage was discharged because he was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen. For his action in discharging Coppage, Adair was indicted, charged with violating the tenth section of the Erdman law, an act passed by Congress June 1, 1898, which made it illegal "to threaten any employee with loss of employment," or to "discriminate against any employee because of his membership in a labor corporation, association or organization." The lower court held that this section was constitutional (152 Fed. 737.) It convicted Adair and fined him $100. The case was appealed to the United States Supreme Court, which reversed the judgment on the ground that the tenth section of the Erdman act was repugnant to the Fifth Amendment of the Federal Constitution, which declares that "no person shall be deprived of liberty or property without due process of law;" that "such liberty and right embraced the right to make contracts for the purchase of the labor of others, and equally the right to make contracts for the sale of one's own labor."

In making this decision the Supreme Court said: "It is not within the functions of government—at least in the absence of contract between the parties—to compel any person, in the course of his business and against his will, to accept or retain the personal service of another, or to compel any person, against his will, to perform personal service for another. The right of a person to sell his labor upon such terms as he may deem proper is, in its essence, the same as the right of the purchaser of labor to prescribe the conditions upon which he will accept such labor from the person offering to sell it. In all such particulars the employer and employee have equality of right, and any legislation that disturbs that equality is an arbitrary interference with the liberty of contract which no government can legally justify in a free land."

This decision of the Supreme Court has been followed in many cases.

In Citizens' Light, Heat and Power Company vs. Montgomery Light and Water Power Company (U. S. Circ. Ct., Ala.) it was held that a trader to get other men's customers could use any means not involving violation of the criminal laws, or amounting to fraud, duress or intimidation, or the wrongful inducing of the breach of contract.

In Boyer et al. vs. Western Union Telegraph Company (U. S. Circ. Ct., E. D. Wis.) it was held that "in the absence of contract relations any employer may legally discharge his employees without notice at any time. It is not unlawful in the absence of contract relations to the contrary to discharge them for belonging to the union or for any other reason or for no reason at all."

In Iron Molders' Union vs. Allis-Chalmers Company (U. S. Circ. Ct. App.) the defendants, who were on strike, procured iron molders in other foundries, who were also members of the Iron Molders' Union, to refuse to make the castings of the Chalmers company. These molders notified their employers that, unless the latter canceled his contracts with plaintiffs, they (the employees) would strike. It was held that such action was legal. The court declared: "If appellee (the employer) had the right (and we think the right was perfect) to seek the aid of fellow-foundrymen to the end that the necessary element of labor should enter into appellee's product, appellant (the employee) had the reciprocal right of seeking the aid of fellow-molders to prevent that end. To whatever extent employers may lawfully combine and co-operate to control the supply and conditions of work to be done, to the same extent should be recognized the right of workmen to combine and co-operate to control the supply and the conditions of the labor that is necessary to the doing of the work. In the fullest recognition of the equality and mutuality and their restrictions lies the peace of capital and labor, for so they, like nations with equally well-drilled and equipped armies and navies, will make and keep treaties of peace, in the fear of the cost and consequences of war."

In the case of the Goldfield Con. Mines Co. vs. Goldfield Miners' Union (U. S. Circ. Ct., Nev.) the rights of striking employees were tersely but completely defined in a sentence. It was held "that workers can persuade men to quit employment, but cannot use threats or compel them to listen to arguments against their will."

There are 296 adjudicated cases by the Federal and the State courts as to the rights of employers and employees, and the gist of them all is that the right of free contract and the right to perform contracts must be mutually respected. The employer has a right to hire the employee on whatever terms the latter will accept, and the employee has a right to accept employment on whatever terms he can obtain. The employer has a right to discharge the employee whenever he chooses, and the employee has a right to leave his employment whenever he chooses. And neither employer nor employee may lawfully invoke violence or menaces of violence to obtain his ends.

UNCLAIMED.

The new novel called "Home," published this year by the Century Company, must have had some kind of an author, but it carries the name of none. It is not so bad that he need have concealed his identity nor so good that he would become famous by revealing it. In style it is one of those old-fashioned stories where three sets of people live three parts of the tale in three different communities, so that the characters have to take turn about in the chapters, and the reader rides through the volume on a sort of mental whirligig. We are glad this way of writing is mostly out of style.

"Home" offers a very good picture of some parts of South America, although most women will not forgive Gerry for what he did there. He ran away from his wife because he thought she had left him when she hadn't. After he rides a horse to death to save his brown woman and their man child, the two are drowned before his eyes and their plantation is wiped out by an overflow of the ditch he had digged. Thus everything of the new life is completely effaced and he goes back to his wife and his white baby that they may be happy ever after.

The book has one point which is good, but it drags us through a lot of mire to get to it. In it is a quaint character who is always looking for a purple city. Suddenly he remembers the way the purple haze hangs over his little ranch in New Mexico and how a purple light lies over the home of a girl back there. So he knows where to find his purple city and he tells Gerry about it. When Gerry gets back to New York State he knows that what he has looked for everywhere was in the good heart and sweet face of his wife, and that the labor he craved could best be performed on a little farm he owned. He begins from the ground up by planting potatoes, wisely deciding that the good life must root itself in the soil of simple endeavor and be satisfied with clean returns. Many lives get badly mixed before they find the light and this is probably the reason that a story of so much confusion is being widely read in spite of its faults.

Austria's Income Tax Law.

The taxing of incomes is not a new thing in Austria, but the revised law just enacted, while favoring the poor man, is expected to produce an increased revenue by raising the rate of taxation all around. The new burdens fall heaviest upon the bachelors and persons without children and persons with incomes of more than $2000 a year.

The bachelor tax requires that such persons having nobody depending upon them will have to pay 15 per cent. additional on the amount of their income tax. Also persons having only one other to provide for, such as married persons without children, will be required to pay an additional 10 per cent.

The fight in Parliament over the new bill was almost entirely upon the amount of the minimum annual income liable to taxation. Under the old law the tax began upon incomes as small as $240 a year. The Social Democrats, or Socialist party, urged that it was a great injustice to subject wage-earners with such small incomes to the tax, even though it amounted to $1.50 a year, especially in view of the enormous increase which has taken place in the cost of living since the present scale of income taxation was fixed seventeen years ago. The Socialists demanded that the minimum income should be fixed at $360. A compromise was finally reached establishing the minimum income liable to taxation at $320.

In addition to the half million or more taxpayers who will escape assessment altogether, the new law also will benefit the working classes generally, since it provides where wife and children are working their earnings will not be reckoned in with those at the head of the family for assessment, except in case the wife and children earn more than $320 a year.

An instance of the increase which will affect the wealthier classes may be studied in the case of a merchant with an income of $10,000 now paying a tax amounting to $352. The new law puts him up to $421, and if he happens to be a bachelor he must pay $480, an increase of 40 per cent. on his former taxation.

Professional men and business men with incomes of more than $2000 are liable to a special industry tax which in some cases may mean that 9 or 10 per cent. of the total income is paid away in taxes.

Marriage Age in Japan.

[Westminster Gazette:] According to the statistics of the last Japanese Blue Book, there are very few Japanese women who do not marry. The majority of Japanese girls marry at 21 years of age. The men usually marry at 26, but marriage at the age of 15 is not unknown, and 4000 marriages at the age of 17 were registered in the case of men last year, while 7000 girls of the age of 16 were married. The number of women who married at 30 was only 1000 more, but the number of men who set up house for themselves at 30 was 18,000. The decline in the figures after this is rapid; only 3700 men and 1600 women of the age of 40 married last year in Japan. Practically every Japanese man who does not join a Buddhist monastery marries. The old bachelor and the old maid are almost unknown in the land of the chrysanthemum.

Promoting German Loyalty.

[New York World:] The Emperor William has taken another step in his policy of distributing his sons throughout Germany. It is officially announced that Prince Eitel Friedrich is to be appointed in the autumn commander of the King's Mounted Rifles at Posen, where he will be the first resident of the Imperial Palace.

Royal Investments in Canada.

[New York Times:] The proposition that the Prince of Wales visit Canada during the present year is likely to have for its determining factor the purchase of real estate for the prince in the Dominion. There is considerable money awaiting investment for the Prince of Wales, representing the accumulated funds saved from the Duchy of Lancaster. This is being administered in trust for the Prince until he shall be 21.

The purchase of real estate in Canada for the Prince is a form of investment that has been under consideration by the King for some time. A plan proposed several years ago, which had the approval of the late King Edward, was to buy an estate in Norfolk adjoining the Sandringham property, but this idea has been abandoned, largely because of the prospects of immediate legislation inimical to big land owners. Apart from this, the purchase of land in the Dominion is regarded as a far better investment.

If this plan is carried out, the Prince will almost certainly visit Canada this year or early next. Meanwhile, however, arrangements may have to be made for the Prince to visit at least two European courts in connection with matrimonial arrangements, but much secrecy is being preserved in this matter.

Pen Points: By the Staff

Good morning, how are you getting on with your Lenten duties?

Opening a can of shillelahs is no way to celebrate St. Patrick's Day.

Skeletons have been found in a cave near Stockton. Anybody miss them from your closet?

Earthquake shocks are reported in Virginia, but they had no effect in the "Solid South."

Old Dobbin was not so fast, but no spur-line was required to make him go and he never turned turtle.

It is now claimed that the mustard trust is controlled by a trust. Which will be called "hot stuff."

What has become of the old-time British lion that used to let out a roar when things did not go to suit him?

A Swiss boy has been found with a well-developed stomach. And there's no turkey in that country, either.

What ho, there! Berry jumped the Federal League! But it was Chief Catcher, and not Hen, the purse-proud Mata.

San Francisco gets the Pacific National bank. If Los Angeles had been in the field, well, the result might have been different.

Gov. Colquitt of Texas is on the remain. Where does the fiery executive hide dead? He'll catch the Mexican if he don't watch out.

Teacher Wilson read his lecture on the Panama Canal toll question to the class yesterday, and those who disobeyed were kept after school.

The local baseball teams have shown much speed in the practice season, but are likely to develop a stone bruise when the season opens.

It remains to be seen whether F. K. Griffith, chief examiner and secretary of the Civil Service Commission, will be able to qualify as a Hill climber.

The new stepless street cars just introduced in Los Angeles are a slap at the Indians, who did a thriving business when high steps were in vogue.

The payment to Col. Roosevelt of $2000 for a lecture in Rio Janeiro has led that he is not traveling in South America for purely hygienic reasons.

Secretary Redfield is coming to Los Angeles. Redfield is the member of the Cabinet who proposed punishing any business man who complained of hard times.

Orville Wright cares not who crosses the ocean in an aeroplane just so the passenger has sense to use the machine is paid to. Dayton-Orville is a purely commercial aviator.

Rudyard Kipling has gone to a Canadian health resort, suffering from nervous prostration. Now he can appreciate what some of the folks who read his poetry have endured.

Blue dress suits are the latest in fashion. The man who has an overcoat that he considers a permanent part of it would worry. Why not a groom or a bride in dress suit?

Somebody pricked the bubble of Samuel Amar, the "Wolf of Wall Street," and all the gas has escaped from his chest. The United States Steel Corporation received $75,000,000 in rebates.

Their former colleagues in the Old Guard will be interested in seeing how Buck White and Long Tom Hughes will perform on the local diamond this season. Harris and Tom were at the stage-door Pietopol.

The Democrats point with pride to the things accomplished by President Wilson during the first year of his administration. Let not him that girdeth on his armor boast himself as he that putteth it off. Read up your Kings.

DREAMS AS BURGLAR WORKS.

Thinks He Hears the Roar of Battle When Awakened by Crash of Breaking Glass.

It was a grand old battle scene that M. Sherer was witnessing in his dream. Batteries of artillery were whirling into action. Legions were rushing into the fray. The small-arm fire became more and more intense, and suddenly came the crash of the cannons, and the battle roar reached a crescendo right at his ears when a huge shell dropped near him and exploded.

Then he turned over in bed and listened. It was the sound of a burglar throwing a rock through a plate-glass window at No. 750 South Hill street, where the I. Shepard Company was looted of jewelry valued at $100. Sherer, who manages a clothing company in the same storeroom, was sleeping in the balcony of the store when the roar of glass announced the entry of the thieves.

The reason he didn't notify the police, he said, was that he thought he was dreaming about war and failed to put any particular importance to the sound.

GOT YOURR ED NUMBER?

Time Limit Has Expired and Unless Your License Is Displayed Look Out for Police.

It was a motorless day yesterday for the persons with automobiles who failed to secure the new State license which the Supreme Court recently upheld.

The time limit on the license to parade under the old tag until the courts could reach a decision on the moot question, came to an end yesterday morning, and all motorists appearing under the old license did so at peril of prosecution and a fine.

More than 150 called by telephone Traffic Lieutenant Butler of the Police Bureau, and asked what the penalties might be. He made the prospects sufficiently alarming to keep all off the streets, as not an arrest was made of a motorist using an expired license number.

Then, too, Foulards are suitable for morning or afternoon, for shopping or traveling, for home wear, for the matinee, for the seashore or mountains. They are practical and economical. Their durability is something to wonder at. ## FROM DARKNESS TO SWEET LIGHT

BY HENRY C. WARNACK.

Then might we see through darkness, pain and dole,
God drawing to Himself, Himself the goal,

Twenty years ago Hannah Parker Kimball wrote the above lines. They were published in Harper's Weekly, then in its prime, and for the first time in all those years they floated to me up through the dim-lit halls of memory as I looked into the face of Helen Keller at the Auditorium last night with the unspoken prayer in my heart that God might send to the eyes of all children the light that is in this woman's soul.

She stood there with that beauty of spirit that has burst asunder bonds that are like unto death, clothed with a victorious consciousness, having about her something of that radiance belonging to the faith that looks beyond the tomb. Sure of the love that rose to her, she stood facing the sea of faces to which her heart responded, but which her blind eyes could not see, as she spoke the words of courage, assurance and love her deaf ears could not hear.

For she is one who, though alive, entered the grave to return with yet more life, saying to the blind, "There is no darkness," to the deaf, "There is no silence," and to the dumb, "There is no veil."

Best of all, her message to the world of color and of tone is that we who rejoice in natural faculties shall not cease to give thanks for the melodies of life and for the glory of the sun. We have taken the red of the rose and the gold of the stars for granted; we have failed to treasure the bird's note and the laughter of children; we have not understood what it means to listen to the wounds or the caress of our own speech. This glorious woman who kept the windows of her soul alight has put to shame each moment of ingratitude, each misspent opportunity.

One can imagine an angel, given its choice of work, choosing such a path of pain that it might gather together the broken threads of what seemed hopelessness that from the depths of such despair it might bring to life a chain of golden weave to bind the hearts of men with a new strength.

If it be the privilege of the great to suffer for mankind, how doubly blest is that mind which, through a divine self-comprehension, illumines its own way that its light may shine for others. It is a lifting up that it may draw other men unto itself, a tragic burial that its resurrection may be known of men.

When Helen Keller spoke last night I wished that she had only been introduced after the beautiful explanation of her offered by her great teacher, Mrs. Macy, who, before her marriage was Anne M. Sullivan. Beautiful as are the thought Miss Keller endeavors to express, I regret that she attempts articulation, and wish that her friends and managers would be satisfied to present her and would leave her expression to her bright writings.

Speech with her is painfully unfair and places her too much in the role of an exhibit. Indeed, I wonder that people do not shrink from this. It places her vast audiences in a morbid light, suggesting a curiosity about the abnormal which is in itself gross abnormality.

Having never heard human speech since remote infancy, Miss Keller's voice is not a natural organ, and to hear it excites the sympathies to a point of unfortunate strain. The audience held for me a tensity I could ill bear. Surely this cannot be pleasant for sensitive women and excitable children.

That many could understand much that Miss Keller said was proved by the frequent periods of applause, but I cannot imagine that any considerable number of persons could possibly have enjoyed the experience. Had we listened only to her teacher and had the pleasure of looking into the face of the lovely girl who forced her way through a great college and earned a university degree in spite of an incomprehensible combination of difficulties, the effect would have been as satisfactory and much more agreeable. We would have received the information we sought and have avoided what to most of us must surely have proved a shock.

I am aware that such criticism must seem ungrateful if the young woman is willing to sacrifice herself to this effort, and that she is by no means to be classed as an entertainer of the stage, yet her prices are similar to those of many theaters and to that degree her offering invites an unprejudiced opinion in behalf of the public. Therefore, I do not hesitate to suggest that, to my thinking, both she and the public would be gainers if she did not speak, and that her popularity would then be as great as it is now.

Miss Keller was normal at birth and until 19 months of age. Then a veil descended upon her to shut out the light, music died to her ears and the little tongue forgot to speak. Mrs. Macy was herself 18 years old when she went to be Helen Keller's teacher. She had been educated in a school for the blind, having only the slightest vision until an operation restored her to sight.

It was in his efforts to evolve a system of communication with Helen Keller that Dr. Bell discovered the magic secret of the telephone. Hence it is partly to this young woman's heavy affliction that the world owes one of its most amazing conveniences. How like the hand of Providence this must seem to many!

"After the child learned that things have names the meaning of life's tuition rapidly forced itself upon her recognition and the response of her intelligence was marvelous.

The steps of her wonderful information were delicately and beautiful traced by Mrs. Macy in her address. What she had to say contained many touches of poetry and gentle humor and was blessedly clear. One fell in love with the girlhood she portrayed.

As far as I could understand her this was the spirit and largely the verbiage of Helen Keller's message:

"My friends, I greet you with love. Through others I have learned of others, of myself and of God. I say to you, 'Love one another,' for we do not live to ourselves or for ourselves alone. I rejoice in obstacles overcome. My life has taught me to trust in God and his right hand shall uphold me. Sometimes we think we can do little for others and yet we can always do much. We need to believe more in our powers.

"I appeal to you to use your senses. Look for miracles and you will find them. Put thought into your senses and you will wonder at the glories that will be revealed to you through your eyes, your ears and your sense of feeling. Oh, I cannot think of the fiery stars in Heaven without trembling with joy! For me there is no darkness for in my mind and soul there is light. I was blind, but now I see; I was deaf but now I hear; I was dumb, but now I speak."

Symphony Concert.

LOVING CUP FOR HERR TANDLER.

BEST INSTRUMENTAL CONCERT IN YEARS.

BY HECTOR ALLIOT.

For the first of its sixth pair of concerts, the Symphony Orchestra gave yesterday afternoon a public rehearsal, preceding the official concert that will long remain a type of such musical productions.

Soloists were omitted from the programme and justly so, for an orchestral organization worthy of occupying the leading position in any metropolis should be able to retain the attention of its auditors for the brief period of two hours, unassisted by vocalists.

But the feature of the sixth concert was the thoughtful attention given by its conductor to selections, wherein practically every division of his orchestra could be heard to advantage in what might well be called group solos of brasses, wind instruments and others.

In no instrumental concert was one ever placed in better position to fully appreciate the difficulty, importance and meaning of each division of a full orchestra, and the relation of one part to the other as well as the value of ensemble work. The rehearsal yesterday was one of the most educational concerts given here in many a year.

The so-called "Academic Festival" of Brahms was the opening number offered. The first part is stately, austere and solemn, being based upon the "Wir hatten gebauet ein stattliches Haus," a student song especially suited to university ceremonies. It gives, however, a most brilliant opportunity to the brass division of the orchestra, a marvel of orchestral composition with the joyful ending of "Gaudeamus," which possesses some reminiscent features of the "Star Spangled Banner."

"Esquisses Caucasiennes," a series of musical sketches written by the veteran director of Moscow, Michael Ippolitow-Ivanow, when years ago he was the director of the Symphony Orchestra in Tiflis, capital of Caucasia, was the next number. This work is of fascinating interest, because it brings to us a musical picture of the life and natural expression of the little known, free—and for the lack of better word—barbaric Georgians.

While at first, this composition strikes one as primitive, because modern methods of existence have veiled and blunted normal and spontaneous expression in most of us, the sketches gradually grip the most unconcerned by the truth and force of natural instincts, powerfully depicted. "Dans le defile," a swirling movement of dramatic quality, describes the passing of a band of these fearless cavaliers through the Georgian gorges. The danger of attack passed, the horsemen break into a melody. "Dans l' Aoule" the warriors are at rest, in comfort and their war spirit appeased, they turn to love at the camping place. (Aoule is the combination of the bivouac and the market place of the Caucasian tribes.)

"Dans la Mosquee," another characteristic sketch, is given. In the united oboes and bassoons, the call of the muezzin to prayer is heard and the Moslem religious atmosphere portrayed.

If the strings, the wood winds and the percussion parts are well represented in the sketches the flute comes into its own in Bach Suite No. 2 in B minor. In its three movements, of which the first, "La Bouree," is probably the most attractive, strings and especially the flute have full sway. Tust, master flutist of the symphony, acquitted himself so well of his arduous task that he had to bow his acknowledgments repeatedly.

And then came Herr Adolf Tandler's symphony in A minor, which had yesterday its first production in America.

When this work was composed, in 1903, Herr Tandler was about 28 years old. He was deeply impressed by the beauty of the Austrian mountains and the folk-songs of a village where he was spending a vacation, he wrote this work and produced it on the Emperor's birthday. Because it was given on the 18th of August at the Vienna Concert Verein, it was baptized "Die Geburtstag," later it was received with favor in Munich, Frankfort and Graetz in Austria.

In its main features, it follows a strictly classical method of composition, the basic theme reappearing clearly in three movements, the "andante" departing from the general scheme.

While it is written in strict accordance with academic canons, it is interesting to note that in the third movement, the young and restless spirit, while respecting melody and theme, shows his desire for freedom in the "scherso" inclines toward Strauss and the modernists: a fascinating picture of the struggles between academic training and the compelling influences of the modern school.

Sigmund Beal, at the end of the concert, was seen to approach the conductor with a grand loving cup, which he proceeded to present to Herr Tandler on behalf of himself and his fellow-members of the orchestra "in appreciation of his devoted services and true musicianship."

Herr Tandler, much surprised and overcome, briefly answered, "I thank you all; I shall always try to be a true musician and a worthy citizen of Los Angeles."

So ended one of the best symphonic concerts ever given here, one of high artistic merit. It is a pity to be compelled to state that the audience, which thoroughly appreciated the performance, was the smallest which has attended a public rehearsal this season.

TETRAZZINI ILL.

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, March 6.—Suffering from acute laryngitis with inflammation of the trachea, Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini is today confined to her apartments in the Fairmont Hotel unable to speak above a whisper. The attack came on her suddenly about 5 o'clock last night, but despite the illness she appeared at her concert in the Tivoli and sang through her entire programme.

She will not be able to appear again for several days and the matinee concert, which was to have been given tomorrow in the Tivoli, has been postponed one week. The diva is under the care of Dr. J. A. Black, a throat specialist.

BOARD IS GROWING.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OXNARD, March 6.—An increase of more than 50 per cent in one month is the remarkable showing of the Oxnard Board of Trade. This increase in number of members, too, has been accomplished without any special effort, and indicates the business growth of the town and the increase of the spirit of co-operation among business men of the town.

NEWS BRIEFS.

That the Conejo route shown on the new maps of the automobile clubs of Southern California is inaccurate, being much too tortuous, is the opinion of local motorists who are familiar with this route.

Propositions looking toward the paving or surfacing of every street in Oxnard, comprising about ten miles, are under consideration by the Trustees. Oiled macadam is favored, but the estimated cost, $267,000, is considered too high at this time, a gravel surface being estimated at only $112,000.

Because a city surveyor made a mistake of one foot in the grade of D street, one of Oxnard's best residence streets, it is probable that the grade of the street will have to be raised, necessitating the rearranging of sidewalks, curbing and lawn grades of many fine residences. Water stood in this street for some time after the recent rains, when other streets throughout the city were dry.

Communication other than by train between Oxnard and Ventura, and other points north, has not been restored since the recent rain. Many motorists using the coast highway are forced to have their machines loaded on flat cars and taken across on the railroad bridge. A few started the practice of crossing the Santa Clara River, where the bridge is out, by going over the Southern Pacific Railroad bridge, which runs parallel to the Montalvo bridge. To stop this dangerous practice, the Southern Pacific has stationed a watchman at each end of the bridge. The company has ruled that doctors answering calls may cross the bridge in their machines, preceded by a flagman. Repairs on the other bridge have been arranged for, but the work will take some time.

The big fog horn from Hueneme wharf is the latest noise maker for a charivari at Hueneme. Mr. and Mrs. O. G. Whitted were entertained with solos, obligatos and oratorios on the horn, with the accompaniment gently played on a big plow disk, on their return to Hueneme after their honeymoon. The charivari could be heard for several miles.

Six hundred feet of piling is being erected to form a dyke on the McGrath and Leonard estates, to turn the Santa Clara River back into its original channel, which was deserted during the recent high water. The water so turned back runs across several other ranches, and some steps will have to be taken to protect these also.

WANTS HEAVY DAMAGES.

CORONA, March 6.—H. Bishevsky has commenced suit against Arthur L. Taber for $10,000 damages. The suit is the outcome of severe burns that Bishevsky received from what he terms a defective gas heater.

The plaintiff states that on November 22, 1913, he was rooming at the Mission rooming-house on Sixth street, which is owned by A. L. Taber and leased by Mrs. D. V. McBride, and that he was about to take a bath when the gas stove, which is used to heat the water and which has no vent pipes to carry the fumes from the room, caused him to be overcome by these fumes and he fell against the stove and was severely burned about the face and neck.

The plaintiff states that Taber agreed to pay the doctor's bill at the time of the accident and when the bill, which was for $94.50, was presented to Taber the latter thought it was far in excess of what it should be and remonstrated, and when plaintiff handed him a bill for $136 representing seven weeks' wages, which he lost on account of the accident, Taber refused to settle either of them. Hence the suit for the amount above mentioned.

AUTOS COLLIDE.

What might have been a very serious accident ended luckily for Howard Glass and H. E. Spanogle this morning when their two machines collided at the corner of Seventh street and Victoria avenue. Glass was driving west on Seventh street and Spanogle south on Victoria and when the machines hit Glass's Buick pushed the Overland more than fifty feet west on Seventh street, but neither of the occupants were hurt. Glass is understood to have been making some adjustment on his machine and did not see the approaching car driven by Spanogle.

MUST USE CUSTOM PORTS.

The Bureau of Navigation, a branch of the United States Treasury Department, has laid down the dictum that the big tank steamers of the Standard Oil Company can only clear at points designated as customs ports, thus deciding the contention that has existed between Collector of Customs Elliott and the Standard Oil Company, ever since that official fined the captain of an oil tanker $500 for clearing from the port of Gaviota, that is not designated as a customs port.

The steamer Adorna is now coming up the coast from a South American port for a cargo of oil, and the issue was precipitated when the officials of the Standard Oil Company evinced a disposition to pay no attention to the orders of the Collector. The matter was taken up by the Bureau of Navgation and thrashed out, and the result is the issuance of an order that no tank steamer shall clear, except as indicated by the provisions of the navigation law, at customs ports.

"WE CAN IF WE WILL."

Motto Breathing Spirit of Teacher and Student Alike Emblazoned on Schoolroom Wall.

Spread through thirty rooms, the exhibition of educational work at the Monte Vista school yesterday showed everything from George Washington's historic hatchet, to cooking done by the boys of the school. A special feature was the practical nature of the students' creations. Useful articles of wear, made by the needlework classes, and numerous pieces of small furniture and handy articles from the woodshop, were scattered throughout the immense building.

An innovation was introduced by having each pupil act as host to his or her parents throughout the afternoon. The spirit of teacher and student alike was contained in the short motto, "We can, if we will," emblazoned in red and green chalk on the board of the fifth-grade room.

At 2:30 o'clock a programme was enjoyed by the members of the Parent-Teacher Association in the kindergarten room.

People who make bald asser have an inherent contempt for ures—it's too much trouble to them up.

It may astound the church-k to learn that the denominatio the old orthodoxy have steadil creased year by year, throughou United States, at the same rate the population has increased.

In the year 1913 those adherit the time-honored tenets of the left the column, while fads ems slid backward.

Los Angeles has done he proud. Her growth has run from the national record to suc extent that it is almost past be ing, and the orthodox churches kept pace.

The combined increase in Me ist, Baptist, Lutheran, Presbyte Disciples of Christ, Episcopal Congregational denominations, in United States, was 3 per cen 1913. They are the leaders in census, in the order named, and the only denominations that ha membership exceeding 500,000, kept the Roman Catholics, who

In Los Angeles during the year, the same denominations, churches included, actually ac vished five times as much, increa at the rate of 106 per cent. in a da, while the increase in the p tion of the country is but 20 ent. in a decade. The member of these seven denominations in ity is approximately 50,000, an rease of about 5000 over 1912. gures actually secured from var ources, all being estimated, were follows: Membership, 52,075; rease, 4995.

The same denominations, churches included, have a total m bership of 21,000,000. In the Un ates: Roman Catholics, 13,000, during but 3,000,000 for the m bership of all other denominat of sects in the country.

The figures are from Dr. H. Darrell of Washington, D. C., st ician for the Federal Council churches, representing a member over 14,000,000. He was in ch of the government census of chur 1890. Is thoroughly familiar the subject and has kept close it since his official connection census.

In connection with a discussion the relative merits of big and churches, which appeared in this Sun recently, the following pa graph from Dr. Carroll's report read with interest:

"A surprising feature of 1913 the extraordinary number of churches. It came near bearing greatest advance of any year. It is said, to the enterpris any bodies in going after and gaining scattered communicants, to the realization of the econo that small churches, save in p ing cases in centers of large ci to be preferred to large, in t atively they reach and inte ger numbers of people at less maintenance."

In closing, he says that a final esting fact shown by the statis that "few fads or isms are mak adway, and very few gain any lowing that lasts beyond four years. ## MOUNTAIN CAMP IS ISOLATED.

Trail to Switzer's Hotel Is Still Impassable.

Possibility of Famine Remote, but Yet Possible.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, March 7.—Not one packload of provisions have the inhabitants at Switzer's Camp in the Arroyo Seco been able to get up the trail since the storm. A few days ago the forest rangers and others who were engaged in hacking their way through the debris with which the canyon is littered, succeeded in opening the trail to the camp, and before they had done this others had been into the camp over the Mt. Lowe trail; but it will probably still be several weeks, if not a month, before a burro can be got over the Arroyo Seco trail there.

There is also as yet no telephone communication with the camp. The poles were washed out and the wires are down. The service now only extends to the Pasadena city forest ranger's cabin, near the mouth of the canyon. Even the government forest ranger, two miles up the canyon, is without telephone communication.

The road has been opened about half a mile up the canyon and from there on there is only a very narrow and difficult trail.

Those at Switzer's Camp, however, were fortunately well stocked, with provisions and they believe they will be able to hold out until the trail is restored. Some provisions can be taken to them by the way of Mt. Lowe, if necessary, though the trail that way is long and difficult.

A new hotel had just been constructed at Switzer's and its opening twice delayed on account of storms, when the big storm came and wiped out the trail.

The forest rangers are losing no time in getting their narrow foot and horse trails reconstructed so as to patrol the mountains. They are confident that all will be repaired by the time the rainy season closes and the danger of the long dry summer comes on.

The Arroyo Seco looks as if a cyclone had struck it. Nine of the houses there are gone completely, six others are in ruins and many of the others are little less than dams, piled high with the wreckage of the canyon.

CIGARETTE LAW PLANNED.

An ordinance which would prohibit the sale of cigarettes within 500 feet of any school building is under consideration by the City Commission. It will probably be passed on first reading within the next few days. As the ordinance would carry a penalty clause it can only be enacted this month, the end of which the City Charter designates as the limit of the time for the adoption of ordinances providing for police enforcement.

Some of the commissioners are in favor of barring the sale of tobacco in any form in the neighborhood of schoolhouses, but others declare there is no necessity for such a measure, except as regards cigarettes. There is, of course, a State law prohibiting the sale of cigarettes to minors.

CANDY STORE IS DANGEROUS.

George A. Bellamy, commissioner of playgrounds of Cleveland, O., spoke yesterday at a luncheon given jointly by the Board of Trade and the Public Athletic League at the Hotel Green. He is one of the most enthusiastic advocates of playgrounds in the country.

"Streets," he said, "are not wholesome places for children to grow up in. The trouble with the American people is that they have sent their children into the streets to play and then passed laws against their playing there. You are contributing to the welfare of posterity if you will use well the leisure time of your people.

"I wish to congratulate you Pasadenans on your beautiful city and tell you that you have made a good beginning."

"In large cities," he said, "the candy store does more harm to the child than the saloon does to the men. The children go there in idleness, their digestions are wrecked and they are ripe for crime. From the candy stores they go to the poolrooms and from there to the saloons."

The luncheon was largely attended and was one of the most enjoyable that has been given here this winter.

WON'T TALK BUSINESS.

Samuel Insull of Chicago, one of the best-known electric light men in the country, and who is connected with several large Chicago corporations, arrived in Pasadena yesterday and is staying at the Hotel Green. He declined to discuss business last night.

"I have nothing to say," he said. "I am trying to get away from business for awhile. My trip on the Pacific Coast is merely a pleasure trip and I want to forget all about business until I return. I intend to go on to San Francisco in a day or two."

Insull has long been intimately associated with Edison, and knows much of the early struggles of the great inventor. He also declined to discuss Edison and his works last night.

"I have not seen Mr. Edison for a year," he said, "and, really, there is nothing that I could say which would be of interest."

CITY BRIEFS.

The outcome of the meeting of the East Colorado street property owners last Thursday night to consider the proposition of offering the city a free City Hall site, is that an organization to be known as the Pasadena Civic Center Association has been formed with J. B. Coulston as president. No proposed site for a city building has yet been determined on.

A conference between the City Commissioners and James A. Culbertson and Arthur H. Fleming, members of the board of trustees of Throop College of Technology, was held yesterday and the commissioners notified the others that, since the people of Pasadena have voted down the proposed purchase of the old Throop Institute property for a City Hall site and civic center, the city cannot buy it.

The fancy dress mask ball to be given at the Hotel Maryland tonight will be one of the enjoyable society affairs of the winter. The decorations are to be unique. Many unusual costumes are planned and there will be a large attendance.

A testimonial exhibition of paintings will be given Benjamin Chambers Brown by the Pasadena Music and Art Association at the Throop College of Technology this afternoon.

One of the most enjoyable gatherings of the winter was the annual midwinter luncheon of Pasadena chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at the Hotel Green yesterday afternoon. The decorations were elaborate, the color scheme being carried out in the national red, white and blue. The guest of honor was Mrs. Maynard Force Thayer. She and others spoke. The luncheon was preceded by a business meeting.

WANT IMPROVED SERVICE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, March 6.—Mayor Dudley and other city officials conferred with Supt. Annabel of the Pacific Electric Company yesterday in regard to better local service along the beach front and in the city. As was forecast some time ago, the railroad officials show a willingness to accede to the wishes of the citizens.

The Mayor and Councilmen declare that they will keep after the railroad company until a radical improvement is shown in service. On the other hand Annabel told the city fathers that the road is exerting every means to get its washed-out bridges and culverts repaired on other lines and that the road will not be in normal condition for several weeks.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Gustave Parret, or Parrot, was given a thirty-day sentence for vagrancy in the Police Court today. This will give the detectives ample time in which to look up the man's past record. Chief of Police Sebastian has been asked to furnish the local police with the police history of the person suspected of placing obstructions on the Redondo line with a view of wrecking a train. The prisoner denies that he is responsible for the placing of the obstructions upon the track.

STILL UNSETTLED.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTH PASADENA, March 6.—Transportation problems are still in an unsettled condition in South Pasadena on account of the recent rains. The trouble arises over the failure of the Pacific Electric Company to put its bridges over the Arroyo Seco in a condition for travel. Residents of Lincoln Park are inconvenienced, but the patrons going from Pasadena or South Pasadena to Garvanza or Highland Park suffer the most, as their only recourse besides walking the bridge, is to go by Anderson street, which takes almost an hour longer. Lincoln Park people patronize the Short Line, although the company refuses to honor their commutation books, as the residents of that section get a 6-cent fare, while from Fair Oaks it is a 7-cent fare.

Suggestions that the Salt Lake bridge over the Arroyo be used have been made and it seems that this arrangement could be made satisfactorily. This bridge was only slightly damaged by the recent rains, and as the tracks of the Salt Lake Railway cross the Pacific Electric tracks at Avenue 64, and approach within fifty feet of it at the South Pasadena end of the bridge, the cost of the change would be extremely small. The Salt Lake trains run so seldom they would not interfere with the schedule of the Pacific Electric cars.

The arrangement would only be temporary to relieve conditions until the building of the shorter Short Line, which the Pacific Electric Company has promised. Work on the latter line has been indefinitely suspended and the company has not yet applied for a franchise, although it is promised within the year.

On next Sunday evening will occur a union mass meeting of the South Pasadena churches in the auditorium of the Methodist Church, which will be addressed by Attorney W. Maxwell Burke of Los Angeles, in the interests of the State-wide movement for prohibition in California in 1914. This movement will be featured on the fall ballot and all should become intelligently informed. Music will be furnished by a great union chorus choir, led by Ernest G. Hesser. Everybody is invited.

Protesting strongly against yellow journalism, the members of the Lincoln Park Study Circle passed resolutions condemning the policy of newspapers in bringing personalities mentioned in which bitter personal attacks were made on public officers not agreeing in politics with the newspaper, and in which the charges were without foundation. Influence of politics on the news was also discussed. A movement to have all the clubwomen unite to improve the press along these lines will be made. The meeting of the study circle was held at the home of Mrs. E. E. Thompson, No. 335 Monterey road, and the discussion of the newspapers came up under the topic of "current events." Other important matters were discussed, but definite action was postponed until the next meeting, which will be with Mrs. Charles Yielding, No. 248 Pasadena avenue.

SAN DIEGO, March 6.—Scott Palmer, manager of the Savoy Theater, this city, was shot and seriously wounded at 1:30 o'clock this morning in his rooms in the theater building by Clara Dowd, a candy girl employed in a confectionery store. The girl was taken to the police station, Palmer to a hospital, where it was expected he would recover. Jealousy is said to have been the cause of the shooting.

REPRIEVE AT HOUR OF DEATH.

San Bernardino Boy Still in Death's Shadow.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, March 6.—An eleventh-hour reprieve of fifteen days was granted today by the Canadian Cabinet at Ottawa to Herman Behrends, local boy, and Frank Davis of Toronto, who were sentenced to hang on the gallows at sunrise this morning for the murder of policeman James Archibald at New Westminster, B. C., last May.

The case has been bitterly fought by the relatives of Behrends and local people, who believe that Davis and not Behrends is responsible for the three shots that killed the policeman, and it was anticipated from Davis's action that he would confess on the scaffold and thus exonerate Behrends, who was held equally guilty by the Canadian courts, in that each declared that the other committed the crime. The two were originally sentenced to hang on January 15, but a stay of execution was granted to March 6 owing to legal technicalities that developed after the trial.

Appeals to the Governor-General and the Minister of Justice failed, and up to a short time before the pair was scheduled to die, all hope for Behrends had been given up.

CAMPAIGN OPENED.

Superintendent J. H. Francis of the Los Angeles schools and Norman F. Marsh of Los Angeles tonight opened the campaign for the support of the coming Polytechnic High School bond election on March 19, with a mass meeting at the operahouse.

Supt. Francis talked on "Polytechnic Education" and Architect Marsh illustrated the lecture with stereopticon views showing the new poly groups in Los Angeles, San Diego, Santa Ana, Pasadena and other cities of the southern end of the State. Opponents of the bond issue held a meeting in the southwest section, where the residents are said to be preparing to defeat the proposed issue on the grounds that the San Bernardino Board of Education did not first attempt to form a union district with Colton as the first step toward securing a bigger union school.

SHORT NEWS STORIES.

Charles Rouse has been named president of the City Board of Water Commissioners, vice E. J. Gilbert, resigned, whose place was filled with the appointment of James F. Hamilton, local contractor. Gilbert, who it is charged resigned his office in order to hold the State inheritance tax appraisal job, was named general manager of the commission, a specially created berth, at a salary of $1200 a year.

The police are looking for one Joseph Goldstone, salesman of two days at the White Front store, who is said to have left the place hurriedly while M. Kubelsky, the proprietor, was out, taking with him about $150 from the cash till and a gold watch from the stock. Goldstone left on a pretense of going to breakfast, and it was not discovered that the money was missing until several hours afterward.

Members of the senior class of the High School today held the annual Arbor Day exercises at the proposed Polytechnic High School on North E street, and several hundred people witnessed the tree planting, the first to occur on the site purchased by the district several years ago as a new school site, for which a $250,000 bond election will be voted upon on March 19.

PHILLIPS TRIAL SET.

SANTA BARBARA, March 6.—George A. Phillips, a wealthy young business man of this city, entered a plea of not guilty to the charge of contributing to the dependency of 18-year-old Neva Benedict, when his case was called before Judge Crow this morning. The trial was set for March 31.

Attorney J. J. Squier attacked the information on the ground of a misjoiner of offense, his argument being opposed by Dist.-Atty. Schauer and Attorney B. F. Thomas, who appears as special counsel to assist the prosecution. The demurrer was overruled.

Mr. Squier made a request for time in fixing the trial date, saying that an attorney of State-wide prominence would be retained to aid in the defense and as it was intended to go out of the State for evidence more than ordinary time would be required. Mr. Schauer urged that the hearing be set for March 17, but that date is filled by the Elizalde estate contest and Judge Crow suggested that March 24 be set. This conflicted with Mr. Schauer's engagements and the court finally settled the matter by setting the hearing for the last day in the month.

The case promises to be hard-fought. It is expected that witnesses from the girl's former home will be brought here to testify. Phillips is married and very prominent here.

VENTURA BRIEFS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENTURA, March 6.—Mrs. F. R. Hardy and child of the Santa Ana yesterday had a narrow escape from death in a runaway. The Hardy team was loading when a passing motorcycle frightened the horses and they dashed down Main street. At the corner of Ventura avenue the wagon upset and mother and babe were thrown out. Mrs. Hardy suffered a broken ankle and a severe nervous shock. The child was uninjured.

The annual luncheon of the Tuesday Club, the pioneer woman's club of this city, was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. D. S. Blackburn.

GALA DAY AT COLLEGE.

CLAREMONT, March 6.—The installation of the Gamma Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, an honor fraternity, will be celebrated at Pomona College on Saturday by the granting of a holiday, the holding of special exercises, and the entertainment of delegates from nearly every high school south of the Tehachepi.

The event is considered important in that Pomona is the only college west of the Rockies whose standards are so recognized by the fraternity. The University of Washington, the University of California and Stanford University are the only other holders of charters on the Coast.

After the academic procession, Prof. Charles A. Noble, Ph.D., of the University of California, will present the charter in the public assembly at the Claremont Church at 3 o'clock. President Blaisdell will accept the charter for Pomona College. The oration of the afternoon will be given by Prof. George Herbert Palmer, LL. D., of Harvard, who is a temporary member of the Pomona College faculty.

Following the address, honorary degrees will be conferred, the degree of doctor of laws upon David P. Barrows, recently acting president of the University of California, and the degree of doctor of divinity upon the Rev. James M. Campbell of Avalon. These are the only honorary degrees ever conferred by Pomona College, excepting the degree of doctor of laws given to the Rev. Charles B. Sumner, one of the founders of the college.

At 6:30 p.m. the members of Phi Beta Kappa will attend a banquet at the Claremont Inn, at which time the new members will be initiated, and there will be after-dinner addresses. Visitors and delegates from high schools will be met by students, and will be entertained at dinner at the inn. Special addresses of welcome will occupy most of the time before the academic procession.

The lectures by Dr. Palmer on Friday and Saturday will be given in the church, and will be free to the public. On Friday evening his subject is "Wordsworth," and at 11 o'clock on Saturday the lecture is one of the series on "Duty."

CLUB WOMEN DECLARE FOR A NAVAL HOLIDAY.

President—Mrs. H. A. Cable of Los Angeles.

Corresponding secretary—Mrs. Shipman of San Pedro.

The Nominating Committee last night selected the ticket, and the choice met with unanimous approval in the balloting. The election was carried through with the ease of a smoothly-running machine, and the graceful speeches which followed proved a source of thorough enjoyment and indicated that the federation has again the fortune to be placed for another term under skilled leadership.

A naval holiday for one year, that's what the delegates of the federated clubs voted this afternoon, in placing their indorsement upon the resolution that the President and Congress withhold action for one year on all bills looking to additional appropriations for naval purposes.

"Let the guns rust and the sabers hang idly on the wall; let the battleships tug at anchor while the olive branch of peace sprouts and spreads its genial shade over the nations," urged one earnest voice, and when the resolution was put to a vote, it carried with a rush which emphasized the enthusiasm for peace which pervaded the sessions of the federation.

The waterways programme was discussed and a note of warning sounded when one speaker declared that we should hesitate before placing our indorsement upon a measure which would not benefit us, but, on the other hand, engage us to meet a portion of an expense of $30,000,000. The speaker moved that the matter be referred to the legislative committee for expert consideration, which was done.

The indorsement of the Palmer child-labor bill also was given, though there was no discussion, the members generally understanding thoroughly the import of the bill, which aims to throw the strong arm of the law about little children and protect them from the slavery of the factory.

The closing hours of the afternoon were given over to discussions of various topics of uppermost importance. Wit, wisdom and eloquence featured the afternoon.

INCENDIARY IS SUSPECTED.

Planing Mill Objectionable to Neighboring Residents.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, March 6.—A [illegible] inquiry is being conducted by the police and fire department [illegible] into the destruction by fire early this morning of the Bedford planing mill at Tenth and Coronado streets in the Zaferia section. It is believed that the fire was of incendiary origin, set by persons in the vicinity who objected to the presence of the mill.

The Bedford mill and lumber yard adjoining was established in the former city of Belmont Heights [illegible] before it was disincorporated and became part of the city of Long Beach. This city has but one industrial district, adjoining the harbor. The Bedford mill has not been affected by any of the bitter controversies over the establishment of factories.

However, many of the residents of that section objected to the mill. When the fire department [illegible] arrived at the end of a three-mile run, the place was beyond saving. It was reported at one time that the fire was caused by defective electric wiring, but Fire Chief Shreve, after an investigation, cast out this theory as untenable. He placed responsibility for the cause of the fire on the [illegible] official report, the words "unknown" being used. The loss was $4500, partially covered by insurance.

CANADIANS ORGANIZE.

For the purpose of welcoming and making at home Canadians who come to Long Beach either permanently or for the winter only, a permanent organization of the Sons of the North was formed today, called the Canadian Club of Long Beach. Regular meetings will be held in St. George Hall. One of the vice-presidents and one of the directors will be permanent residents here, so that the work of establishing a "little Canada" in Long Beach may be forward without intermission. Their rendition of Canadian and British airs was well appreciated by the day.

Residents of Signal Hill are to have a large and well-appointed clubhouse, if the plans of members of the Signal Hill Club do not go astray. C. O. ## REDWOOD PRICE TO BE RAISED.

Producers Favor Twenty Per Cent. Increase.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, March 6.—A general increase in the price of redwood lumber, of approximately 20 per cent. is scheduled to take effect at the different mills on the north coast in the near future.

The announcement may come as a surprise to many retailers, who have noted the gradually declining quotations for the last year. The past increases in the price have been exceeded by the lumber journals as due to production, and the fact that most of the mills were running double shifts in the face of a market that could not stand the output forced upon it.

The reasons for the proposed increase is given by the wholesalers, is the demand. Charles R. Hanford of the Union Lumber Company said today:

"We look to see the price of redwood lumber go up in the near future. This is not due to any understanding among producers, but because there is a greater appreciation of the value. The reason for the increase comes from the outside in the form of a growing demand."

The present price on redwood at the mills in question was $11 per 1000 feet "clear" and $9 for "common." The intimation is that these prices will be raised $2. In September last the prices were $1 per 1000 feet above that quoted for March 1.

The total output of the mills of Eureka, Humboldt and Del Norte counties in 1913, was 404,585,279 feet, of which 236,646,755 feet were delivered at the San Francisco Bay. The output of these mills here run from 10,000,000 feet to 10,000,000 feet, while the weekly output of the mills run from 5,000,000 to 25,000,000 feet.

With an increase of $2 per 1000 in the price would consequently mean an increase of from $10,000 a month in the receipts of the mills, which should go to the industry on a more substantial footing.

The city took possession December 31, when the company's franchise expired. In addition, it has in view the Geary-street line from the ferry to the ocean shore and is considering extensions to the new ball park and the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Chief White explained today that the raid had been given permission to hold what is known as a "Forty-Niners' Camp," a phrase coined to mean reproductions of the pioneer days of unrestrained license, but that there had been no intention to conduct a genuine gambling hall, under the personal management. Detectives, however, looked the entertainment over, decided that it was questionable and retired to ask for orders before the raid followed.

TWO KILLED ON TRESTLE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

OROVILLE, March 6.—Two men were instantly killed and two others were hurled off a trestle 150 feet high to the bottom of Spanish Creek and seriously injured this morning when eastbound Western Pacific passenger train No. 4 struck a hand car in the middle of the bridge. The locomotive was upon them before they realized their predicament and they were caught like rats in a trap. The two who were killed were mangled by the engine. It is thought the others may recover. The men were Greek section hands.

It is thought they either made a mistake as to the time the train was due or else thought they would be able to get across the trestle before it came.

There is a turn in the track just before it reaches the trestle and the engineer was unable to see the Greeks until the locomotive was nearly upon them. Although he applied the brakes, he was unable to stop the heavy train before it hit the hand car.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENICE, March 6.—A new species of "tramp" reached Venice today. He was not detained by force, but in fact was extended every courtesy. He called at the Police Station, where Captain of Police Cavanaugh received him with open arms. The tramp is Walter Sanderson, who reached here on foot from San Francisco. He is making a walking hike over the world and he believes his expenses will be very moderate except for steamship fares and occasional rides on the railroads, where walking proves to be dangerous if not impracticable.

Unlike many of the pedestrians, Sanderson says he is not walking on a wager; good health and a close view of unbeaten paths are the two leading motives in making the long trail. Leaving here he proposes to follow the Sunset route to New Orleans and from there will take the easiest roads to New York. He is amply provided with credentials and money and plans to consume several years on his journey.

Though born in Porterville, Senator Williams has resided in Illinois for eighteen years. He says he expects to return here some day and reside somewhere on the bay district. He has a brother, R. D. ## Your Bible Lesson.

have continued in exactly the same words as those which He made use of in reply to the inquiry. In that second part He made it clear that His parable was for stewards, that is, for those whose supreme business it is to seek the kingdom by selling in order to be able to give. The one work of the steward is to give the members of the Lord's household their portion of food in due season.

THE TEACHING.

It is important that we should most carefully notice that all this particular teaching of our Lord followed immediately upon His condemnation of false anxiety, and revelation of the necessity for earnest seeking of the kingdom of God. The true disciple of Jesus is brought into an entirely new relationship with the world. He no longer desires to gain out of it that which will enrich himself, but rather to bring it into such relationship with God as will give to God His own right, and thus to the world its highest good. Now, in order to fulfill this ideal, it is most important that the disciple should have a true understanding of the tenure of his office. In this parable our Lord revealed the fact that the time of opportunity is always at hand. We have no contract as to time. There is no call to service tomorrow. We are to have our loins girt, and our lamps burning, and thus to be perpetually in the service of the King, all the while expecting to be interrupted by the completion of all our tasks in the coming of the King Himself. The kingdom which we are to seek and for the coming of which we are to pray, will come when the King comes. That will be the hour in which the Father will give the kingdom to the little flock. While therefore, we are to seek the kingdom, we shall never establish it by our own seeking. It is equally true that in the mystery of the divine economy, He will only be able to establish His kingdom when we have, under His direction, rendered the service which He asks. When the King returns, He will serve those who have served Him. Then they will have their perfect satisfaction.

Till then we are to expect and to seek, and our seeking is to be that of perpetual selling and giving, so preparing the way for His coming, and for our own final rest.

It is equally important that we should understand the nature of the responsibility that devolves upon us. We are to feed the flock which is presently to possess the kingdom. Of course, there are other phases of service not dealt with in this parable, but with these we have not now to deal. The teaching of our Lord here has to do with stewardship within the household, and it is most clear and emphatic that to ill-treat in any way those who appear to be the lowliest within that household, and to seek merely our own satisfaction, will be to be excluded from the kingdom when the King returns. On the other hand, to fulfill our service will be to enter into fellowship with the King in His reign, for those who are faithful He will set over all that He hath.

Thus our present responsibility is that of being ready for the coming of the King and kingdom, such readiness finding its expression in service.

THE GOLDEN TEXT.

The golden text fastens our attention centrally upon the astonishing declaration that when the Lord comes He will make the servants whom He finds watching, sit down to meat, while He girds Himself to serve them. Today we are to gird ourselves and serve Him by serving others. In the tomorrow of His victory, He will gird Himself to serve those who are obedient. These words fill the heart with a sense of the exceeding grace of the King, and inspire the soul with an earnest desire to serve in response to such love.

Simple as the declaration is, it is nevertheless sublime in its suggestiveness; and the high satisfaction of that hour when fidelity is thus rewarded throws all earthly honors and advantages into the shadow.

INGLEWOOD HAS MANAGER.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

INGLEWOOD, March 6.—An ordinance creating the office of city manager has just been passed by the Board of Trustees of the city of Inglewood. The ordinance was drafted by City Attorney Clyde Woodworth and is the first of its kind to be adopted by any municipality of California.

Under this ordinance the Board of Trustees appoint the manager, and his duties and powers are prescribed and limited in the ordinance. Paul E. Kressley, the present City Engineer of Inglewood, has the distinction of being the first city manager in the State, having been appointed to that office by the Board of Trustees after the passage of the ordinance. Under the ordinance the manager virtually becomes the chief administrative officer of the city and directs the work of all departments.

He has power, subject, however, to the control of the Board of Trustees, to see that city ordinances are enforced; to superintend the construction of all public work; to employ and dismiss city employees; to supervise all purchases made on behalf of the city, and direct the work of all appointive officers. It is made his duty to attend all meetings of the Trustees and to keep the board fully advised as to the financial condition of the city, and to make such recommendations to the board as he may deem necessary and expedient for the proper and efficient government of the city.

The idea of a city manager is one which is finding great favor among the larger municipalities of the country, but Inglewood appears to have taken the initiative among the smaller cities in the adoption of this scheme. Inquiries are already beginning to pour in regarding the wording and operation of the ordinance.

INCOMPETENCY ALLEGED.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, March 6.—At the instigation of Mayor Wheelton tonight, the City Council asked Auditor Harvey Durkie to resign. It was alleged that Durkie was aged and untrained in the work and was incompetent. The Mayor said complaints of citizens against the Auditor were piled high in his office.

The Auditor was regularly elected and cannot be removed, except by recall. He will probably refuse to resign and will call to his aid members of the G.A.R., as he is a veteran of the Civil War. Eva Bibeau, chief deputy, has virtually quit her job. She went home on sick leave Monday, piqued evidently at the failure of the Council to give the Auditor more help.

MORE CLAIMS FILED.

Alleged victims of the collapse of the Auditorium on May 24, filed damage claims aggregating $225,000 with the City Council tonight. The largest claim by one man, that of Frank Matthews, for $100,000, was handed in, others were Rosa Gabrin, $25,000; Louisa E. Rice, $50,000; Margaret Drought, $10,000; F. W. Lyon, $30,000. The presentation of demands is merely a matter of form, as the claimants are to file suit for the various amounts in the Superior Court.

"If we have unexpected company, she telephones me to stop at one of the stores for an ice-cream brick and some French pastry.

"If she gives a card party, we get the most unique favors there—and order some of their individual moulds (of ice cream, you know), and they certainly give a finish to a dinner. The fruits look like fresh fruit—we will have either 'harps' or 'little Paddies' for St. Patrick's day.

"And their regular Sunday bricks are the most delicious cream, and expensive creams, too—notice the combination for this coming Sunday,

Big Piano House Must Close Out!

Sale to Continue Until Every Piano, Player Piano and Grand Piano in This Vast Stock Is Sold

I have pianos here now that I shall sell for as little as $85. I have elegant $700 player pianos for which I will take $320. I have brand new pianos of warranted makes for $135, $115 and $95. Even the most expensive and fanciest $900 and $1000 player pianos are reduced way below the cost of making them.

There are Deckers, Kimballs, Stegers, Knabes, Fischers, Hallet & Davis, Knabe-Angelus, Weber pianos and pianola pianos, famous bungalow player pianos, and the best of all the Player Pianos de Luxe.

There are Steinways, Ivers & Ponds, Hardman, and Kranich & Bach instruments for $85. Old style pianos for only $35 to $50. The prices on these are so low that we shall have to ask cash for them. On all other pianos you can make terms to suit your convenience.

I Must Get Away—Quick!

I fully intended to make my permanent home here, and to build up in Southern California the greatest musical organization that had ever been seen here. Conditions have arisen, however, which compel my return to Oregon right away, and in consequence, I am closing out all of these pianos and all of the fixtures and furnishings in this store for what I can get—quickly.

I could ship these pianos to one of our Northern houses, but that would only mean added expense, freight charges and a risk of damage and even then they would still have to be sold. So I'll take my loss and sell them here, where they stand, hundreds of them, remember, for even less than maker's cost.

An Apology to Dealers

I hate to make prices on these beautiful instruments of the highest grade which will temporarily disturb and disrupt the piano trade of Southern California. I wish that I could ask higher prices in order to protect the trade generally. But I am right up against the absolute necessity of selling pianos regardless of the sacrifice involved and while other piano houses may suffer, you, the individual buyers, are certainly getting the benefit.

STOCKS YIELD TO PRESSURE.

RAILROAD ISSUES ARE THE CHIEF SUFFERERS.

Chesapeake and Ohio Keeps on the Downward Path and St. Paul Drops Over Four Points Consequent to Washington Reports of Its Manipulation of Accounts.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 6.—Decided weakness developed today in the stock market. Railroad stocks were the chief sufferers. Chesapeake and Ohio, which was acutely weak yesterday, following announcement of the terms of the $23,000,000 note issue, again lost ground rapidly. As outburst of selling toward the close began with a slump in St. Paul, following announcement from Washington that an examiner of the Interstate Commerce Commission had charged that St. Paul's accounts had been improperly manipulated. That stock dropped more than four points. Rock Island preferred touched a new low record at 7½ and the Kansas and Texas and Denver and Rio Grande issues also yielded rapidly. Steel was the bulwark of the market, holding up well most of the day. In the last hour it gave way. Bonds were under steady pressure. Total sales, par value, $2,450,000.

NEW YORK LETTER.

NEW YORK, March 6.—The market was feverish and unsettled throughout the session. The action of Chicago and Ohio influenced the trading during the greater part of the day. In last hour, however, an aggressive selling movement induced by an article published by Dow, Jones & Company. The article in effect quoted a Washington dispatch as stating that serious irregularities were found in the accounts of the St. Paul and the principal stockholders, according to a report filed by an examiner and made public by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The report to say the least was disturbing. If verified it will doubtless have an adverse effect on Europeans, whose state of mind is not over too cheerful at this period, owing to the Friedland-Rhein Island affairs. Therefore, it was not unnatural that the street, taken by surprise as it was, should liquidate long stocks freely. Judging by the appearance of things at the close further declines will probably be recorded unless aggressive support is tendered. The Washington political news and the Mexican advices were construed in a favorable light, but the action of the stock list appears to be governed in large part by the operations of the professional element, which faction has been for some time bearishly inclined. It may develop upon close examination and after explanations offered that the St. Paul matter is not as alarming as the reports indicate.

New York Curb Stocks.

NEW YORK, March 6.—There was little of particular interest in the market on the curb today. Biker was the most prominent issue with 2500 shares traded in. Brisk gains were made in many of the Standard Oil issues and the market for them was generally active and strong. Standard Oil of Kansas opened at an advance of 20 points and sold up to 530 ! athe late trading. The Boston market opened firm but narrow. Arcadian showed the effects of good buying, advancing fractionally, with large orders in sight just under 6. Arizona Commercial was less active and lost a fraction on profit-taking. The rest of the market was very quiet but strong and closed with a good undertone.

LOS ANGELES STOCK EXCHANGE.

Union Oil Gradually Receding Owing to Lack of Buying Orders. Little Stock Sold.

With the falling off in the demand for Union Oil stock which has been apparent during the past ten days or so, there has come a slight steady recession in the stock. Yesterday it closed at $68, with a show of firmness. There has been no apparent liquidation on the downward movement; the many buying orders which were lately in evidence seem to have been filled.

The market as a whole was easy. The activity is still at a minimum. Los Angeles Investment declined a little. Amalgamated and Associated were soft. National Pacific was about the same. The assessment of ¾ cent a share is payable April 15. The date set for the sale of delinquent stock is May 14.

Public Service: City Hall, Courts.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

The City Council yesterday as the committee of the whole visited the properties included in the Board of Public Works' award of damages for the improvement of Sunset boulevard, from Main to Marion streets, and decided to sustain the board in its action. This clears the way for speedy beginning of work on this much-needed improvement. Samuel Storrow has agreed to take all the bonds on this project.

The Board of Public Works yesterday approved the plans of the City Engineer for an extension of the Avenue 60 bridge at the Arroyo Seco, and will at once advertise for bids for construction.

The Councilmen were aroused yesterday over alleged abuse of automobiles owned by the city. Councilman Conwell proposes that where cars are injured by the carelessness or abuse of the chauffeur, the cost of their repair shall be deducted from his wages.

The City Council decided yesterday that only persons who expect to address the Council shall be admitted within the rail in the Council chamber.

The legal wife of James H. Billings, who attacked his will on the ground that he had been influenced in executing it by the woman he married unknown to wife No. 1, lost the fight, Judge Finlayson holding that Billings was competent to make a will and could leave his property where he saw fit.

At the City Hall.

COUNCILMEN INDORSE ACTION ON SUNSET DAMAGE CLAIMS.

Believe Adjustment Is Just and Will Not Reopen Case—Way Now Clear for Completion of Northwest Boulevard's Improvement, Desired for Many Years.

At last, after weary years of effort, the improvement of Sunset boulevard, the great artery of the city to the northwest and Hollywood, is in a fair way of being carried through. The last obstacles are being cleared away. The award of damages made by the Board of Public Works will stand. Arrangements for the sale of the bonds have been made, and there is every reason to hope that within a few weeks the contractors may begin the actual work of paving Sunset boulevard, on the new grade, from Main street to Marion street. This will give a complete paved highway at easy grade from the city's center to Hollywood.

The City Council as a committee of the whole went out to the district where damage claims have been made yesterday morning and made a personal inspection of the properties and the street to be improved.

Upon their return they instructed Council Clerk Carroll to prepare a report recommending that the awards of damages made by the Board of Public Works be approved, and that the work proceed on the lines laid down by the City Engineer.

The Board of Public Works spent several weeks in hearing testimony on damage claims, and on October 14 of last year it made the awards on twenty-three claims, totaling $69,949.57. A few days thereafter the Barber Asphalt Company was awarded the contract for the improvement, at $150,-886, and was allowed 120 days within which to complete the work, after it has been notified by the City Treasurer that all the assessments have been paid into the treasury. The work is to be done under Hammon Act proceedings, and this requires the collection of all assessments in advance of the beginning of work.

In connection with these damage awards, and also the ones made on the proposed lowering of the floor of the Broadway tunnel and change of grades in adjacent streets, the City Attorney was asked to advise the Council as to whether the Council has the right to reopen cases after the Board of Public Works has made its final announcement of awards, and to raise or lower the awards if desired.

The City Attorney holds that the Council does have this right of review, but as it coincides with the action of the board, there is no doubt that the awards will stand and the work will proceed as soon as the assessments are collected.

Samuel Storrow, a member of the Municipal Advisory Committee on Tunnels, has agreed to take all the bonds for this proposed improvement as soon as they are ready for delivery, so there appears to be nothing now standing in the way of an early start on this important improvement.

SLAPS COMPANY.

ECHOES OF THE STORM.

The Board of Public Works gave its approval yesterday to the recommendation of the City Engineer that the Los Angeles Stone Company be served with a notice to discontinue the practice of discharging the debris from its plant in Brush Canyon into the ditches; also that the company be held jointly responsible with the street department for the cleaning up of streets and ditches within the city where sand, gravel and other material have washed down the canyon from the company's works onto the streets. An account of the expense is to be kept, and the stone company will be billed for its equitable share.

In reference to the protest of property owners on South Alvarado and Rampart streets concerning storm water conditions on Rampart street, just south of Sunset boulevard, wherein the mouth of culverts had become clogged, the City Engineer reports that the debris comes from private property in the immediate vicinity, and that otherwise there would have been no trouble. The culverts are large enough to carry the run-off, says the City Engineer, and "the attention of the property owners is called to the fact that it is largely their own back yards' rubbish that has caused the stopping of the culverts."

The City Engineer submitted to the Board of Public Works yesterday plans and specifications for extending the Avenue 60 bridge across the Arroyo Seco, a distance of 250 feet easterly, to span the new channel. He estimated the cost at $3000, stating that the work will involve some extra expense for wet excavation, as the arroyo bed is now saturated with water. The board will at once advertise for bids on this bridge extension.

STRIKE FIRE.

AS TO CAR UPKEEP.

The Humane Animal Commission recently asked the City Council for permission to have its auto repairs made at private garages instead of at the municipal garage, declaring that the work cost more than it could be done for at private places and the commission's car came out of the municipal shop worse than it went in.

This roused the ire of the Councilmen. A detailed report of work on the car was made, showing that it was in such a condition when turned into the garage that it had to be completely overhauled. It was also shown that the car was constantly overloaded.

Councilman Bryant declared that an investigation ought to be instituted to determine to what extent the commission is abusing city property, and Councilman Snowden wanted the Council to send the commission a reprimand for its careless use of the auto.

Councilman Conwell stated that he is preparing a plan that will require the inspection of machines by experts when they go into the municipal garage after use, and that if injuries have been caused by the abuse of the chauffeur, he shall be charged therefore. Conwell declared that this is the only method whereby the city can get proper care given to its cars.

Traffic Relief Soon.

The Board of Public Utilities was informed by Pacific Electric Railroad officials yesterday that within a week or ten days the company will be prepared to use the route by way of Seventh street and San Pedro street for the re-routing of cars operated over its northern division. This will give immediate relief to the traffic congestion on Main street. It is probable four car lines will be transferred to this route at the start and more may be added when it is determined what service can be worked out.

They Would Come Inside.

Thomas Hughes yesterday presented to the City Council a petition for an election on the subject of annexing The Palms, a portion of La Cienega and of Sawtelle district, to the city of Los Angeles. The petition was sent to the City Clerk for checking the signatures. Members of the Council expressed themselves as pleased over this movement, declaring that the territory is a valuable one for the city to acquire.

Keep Outside Railing.

Numerous minutes of the valuable time of the City Council were used yesterday in discussing a stricter enforcement of Council rule No. 22, providing as to who shall be admitted to the floor of the Council chamber.

Councilman Snowden took the over-crowded and intolerable condition that prevailed at the West First-street widening hearing on Wednesday as his text and declared that he should insist that only those persons who intend to address the Council or its committees be allowed within the railing during sessions. He moved that the sergeant-at-arms be instructed to strictly enforce the rule. Snowden also strenuously objected to the habit that has prevailed of citizens stepping in and talking to Councilmen during sessions, and while he was making his address a man marched in and button-holed a Councilman. Immediately after he sat down another man came over and began to talk to Snowden himself.

The Color Line.

For some time past the complaints of negroes alleging discrimination against them on account of their color at picture-show houses, restaurants, soda fountains, etc., has been before the Public Welfare Committee of the Council. Two ordinances were presented with the request that they be adopted, the last one providing for a fine of from $50 to $500 or six months' imprisonment, or both, for conviction of such discriminations. The committee yesterday framed its report, the recommendations saying:

"Your committee held public hearings and gave the matter much consideration. The remedy for the abuses complained of are covered by a State law by which any aggrieved person may recover damages to the extent of $100 for each discrimination. We believe these laws should be State wide rather than local, and for that reason we report adversely on the proposed ordinance.

Municipal News Notes.

The City Council yesterday discussed the need of a better lighting system for the First-street viaduct and instructed the City Electrician to prepare a plan for more lights.

A communication was sent to the City Council yesterday objecting to the closing of a portion of the Alisostreet bridge across the Los Angeles River, while at the same time the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation is allowed to anchor its heavy machinery in the river bed to this structure. Objection was also raised to the pollution of the water and violation of the smoke ordinance by the gas plant. The subject was referred to the Public Works Committee.

The City Council yesterday provided for the purchase of 150 tons of hay for the fire department, to replace the feed that was destroyed in a recent fire at the fire department stables at Avenue 19.

The Hollywood Board of Trade has filed with the Board of Public Works a protest against the steam roller being removed from repair work on Sunset boulevard, between Normandie avenue and the western city limits. Hollywood brought to the city two steam rollers when it came into the municipal fold and the board insists that at least one of these be kept on the job.

The Public Utilities Committee of the City Council has postponed until next Friday forenoon a consideration of the request of the Independent Civic League that an election be called to vote on the question of transferring to the State Railroad Commission the power to fix rates for public utilities. A public hearing on the subject is desired by the league.

President Whiffen of the City Council stated yesterday that he will introduce a resolution today instructing the Public Safety Committee to make an investigation of alleged immoral conditions at Griffith Park, through invasion of automobile parties. It is probable that a special patrol of the park will be provided for.

ACCUSED OF BIGAMY.

Frank Hepburn is wanted by the District Attorney's office on a complaint charging him with bigamy. He is said to have married Eva Spiers in Los Angeles, on March 12, 1912, and on January 22, 1913, to have married Ethel May Downing.

WILL'S UNBROKEN BY BLIND WIDOW.

Court Shows that Deceased Was Mentally Sound When Instrument Was Made—Realty Agent in Danger of Losing Commission Because He Fell Off Water Wagon.

Mrs. Mamie A. Billings of Chicago, the almost blind wife of James H. Billings, and her attractive young daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Englebaugh of this city, who learned with sorrow that Billings had taken another wife without their knowledge, lost the fight to break his will in Judge Finlayson's court yesterday.

The will was filed for probate by Mrs. Litta Heiman, who had married Billings believing he was divorced, and who receives his fortune of $10,000, consisting of the stock of the California Shoe Factory at Venice.

Mrs. Billings set up that Billings, who had lived apart from her for nine years, was influenced by Mrs. Heiman in executing the will. The court found that he was perfectly competent to make a will, had not been unduly influenced and that the will is entitled to be admitted to probate.

The case presented most unusual features which, however, could not be considered as to Billings's right to give his property to any one he pleased. He stated in his will that he had provided for his wife and that his two daughters had not treated him as children should.

It was shown during the trial that he had written home frequently, dating his letters from Alaskan points, while all the time he was living in this city and at Venice, and for several years with Mrs. Heiman, whom he had married at Richmond, this State.

ASKS NON-SUIT.

INVOLVES COMMISSION.

A contract covering a 2300-acre land deal and containing a water-wagon provision figures prominently in the suit of E. K. Backus, assignee of E. C. Proctor, against G. C. Prentice for a commission of $15,000, now on trial before Judge Myers.

The deal involves the purchase of the Oaks, a ranch at Escondido, for $115,000, and Prentice set up that one of the inducements to buy the ranch was that Proctor, who negotiated the deal, should aid in subdividing the land and reselling.

The deal was under way, but the testimony shows that Proctor met Prentice at San Diego, and being under the influence of liquor, as Prentice stated, he made himself obnoxious to him. He abandoned the deal, refusing to carry it through, and Proctor sued for damages.

The parties entered into a compromise, however, the modified contract providing among other things that Proctor should complete the purchase, the $15,000 commission not to be paid until he resold $125,000 worth of the land, and that he should stay on the water wagon. If he fell he was to lose the commission.

Proctor got a grip on the vehicle during the completion of the deal, but in a moment of abstraction or exhilaration arising from his success he lost his hold. He admitted he fell, but contends that Prentice would not go through with the contract for the sale of the subdivision.

Prentice argued yesterday for a non-suit.

MUST PAY FEE.

SUCCESS, BUT HE DIES.

An interesting suit involving a surgical fee of $500 was tried by Judge Works yesterday. As the suit developed it appeared that Dr. C. P. Thomas and Dr. E. H. Southworth operated April 7, 1913, on Henry Caystile, the brother-in-law of Fred L. Boruff, the wealthy San Fernando ranchman. The agreement, according to the doctors, was that Boruff would pay the surgical fee if the operation was successful.

Caystile died thirty-two hours after the operation and Boruff refused to pay the fee. Dr. Thomas, assignee of Dr. Southworth, brought suit to collect it.

Boruff defended the suit on the ground that the contract to pay was not in writing and that he was asked to pay another man's debt. The court held that the original promise was not to pay his brother-in-law's debt, but a promise to pay if the operation was successful. The operation was found to be a success, and judgment was given for Dr. Thomas.

SUIT REVERSED.

SECOND TRIAL DIFFERENT.

A promise to make a gift cannot be enforced in law, and because Margaret R. Rose, a fashionable dressmaker, could not prove she was to receive $5000 for accompanying Mrs. Frances L. Moores, a wealthy widow, now deceased, to Europe as her companion, Judge Morrison yesterday gave judgment in favor of the Southern Trust Company, administrator of Mrs. Moores's estate.

The court found that there had been great love and affection between Mrs. Rose and Mrs. Moores and that unquestionably Mrs. Rose had gone to Europe with Mrs. Moores as her companion and friend. Mrs. Moores had plainly intended to recompense her at some time and possibly had told the dressmaker and her friends of her intention. But unfortunately the fact was not proven that there had been a contract.

At the previous trial of the suit Mrs. Rose obtained judgment. A new trial was asked for and granted, and this time she lost.

INSANE BUT RICH.

COURT ORDER ASKED.

Mary L. Fleming, a heavy stockholder of the Security Trust and Savings Bank, and also interested in the California Sewer Pipe Company, is an inmate of the insane asylum at Auburn, N. Y., and for the purpose of maintaining her George D. Peck of Ontario, N. Y., petitioned the Probate Court yesterday for an order to remove the personal property to New York.

The petition for guardianship states that the incompetent woman has $107,000 on deposit in Los Angeles banks; notes worth $7600; 100 shares of stock of the California Sewer Pipe Company, worth approximately $6000; thirty-two shares of Security stock; 467¼ shares standing in the name of another person as trustee, and an interest in 459 shares, totaling in value $368,022.50, and real estate worth $122,250.

BOTH ARE GUILTY.

DECREE MAY NOT ISSUE.

The Dillingham divorce suit, tried before Judge Morrison Thursday, had an unexpected conclusion. While the judgment will not be given until Monday afternoon, when the property question will be considered, Judge Morrison stated his finding would be that W. C. Dillingham, head of the Dillingham Printing Company, misconducted himself with Miss Anna McCaslin, then in his employ as a solicitor, and that Mrs. Dillingham deserted her husband.

Thus Mrs. Dillingham won on her complaint, naming Miss McCaslin as co-respondent, and Dillingham scored on his cross-complaint, alleging desertion. Both suits being a stand-off under the law, the court can deny parties to the suit and keep them husband and wife in name.

COURT PARAGRAPHS.

PROCEEDINGS IN BRIEF.

BROUGHT TO A HEAD. S. J. Anderson, an English waiter, got an inkling that his wife, Frances, intended to have him arrested for failing to provide for her and the two children, and, taking time by the forelock, so to speak, he called at her home and she says threatened to kill her. Mrs. Anderson was so badly frightened that she called for help and Anderson was arrested and taken to the City Jail, where he will meditate until he appears before Judge Monroe on Wednesday for a hearing.

FIVE YEARS FOR TALKING.

Had Mail Car Robber Kept Mouth Shut, He Could Not Have Been Convicted of the Crime.

An instance of the truism that it is the part of discretion, if not of valor, for a man charged with a crime to keep his mouth closed, was evidenced in Judge Rudkin's United States District Court, yesterday, when J. P. Barry, alias Burke, alias Lavelle, a former vaudeville singer, pleaded guilty to assisting in the robbery of the mail car attached to the Sunset Limited out of Los Angeles on the night of January 10 last, and was given a sentence of five years in San Quentin.

In passing judgment, Judge Rudkin took occasion to say that the recommendation of leniency made by Duke Stone, Assistant Unted States District Attorney, was a good turn for the defendant, for in the opinion of the court, a man pleading guilty to the crime charged against Barry, ought to be confined for life.

Barry had nothing to say, and was evidently pleased, as he fully expected to get ten years. His companion in the hold-up, Jean la Banta, is serving a term of twenty-five years at San Quentin, for robbing the mail car at San Jose, a few days before the local job.

Barry was afrested in Bakersfield with La Banta, on the charge of passing bad checks, and a confession was wrung out of him by Postoffice Inspectors Ranger and Jarvis. Barry was under suspicion, but nothing more, and if he had not broken down after a twelve-hour siege, when the third degree was worked, he would have avoided conviction, for it is now acknowledged that the Federal authorities had nothing but suspicion against him. His confession sealed his fate. His pal, La Banta, could not have been used against him, as he had pleaded guilty to a felony and is now in San Quentin.

The facts show that it was La Banta who held up Mail Clerks Adolph Wendland and Dwight Perry, while Barry was on the bumpers on the outside of the car, keeping watch. La Banta took a number of letters from the mail clerks, and secured $40, which he afterward divided with Barry, according to his confession.

HONEYMOON TERMINATES.

Avonca Trobitz, who came here from Austria four months ago, is perplexed. Thursday she was married, and Friday the police took her husband. She can speak no English and things are very much muddled in her mind.

The truth is that the bridegroom is insane, having become demented on the first day of his marriage to Avonca. He had courted her for four months, and being a blacksmith with a good income, the match was in every way desirable. Avonca, working in a laundry at a wage far greater than any she had ever dreamed of in Austria, thought the new land was treating her very well indeed, until the police called at the house and took her husband away.

She is Mrs. Frank Zagorac by the records of the marriage license bureau, and was wedded in the Austrian settlement. Her happiness was supreme until the police called for the husband. He went with them, muttering strange things. Also he saw strange visions. It bothered Avonca, who didn't understand the queerness of his remarks.

She stood about the Police Station in hopeless bewilderment, trying to understand that her husband had lost his mind. The surgeons cannot decide whether or not the mental weakness is perpetual.

CITY. Arthur Fleming and associates of Pasadena have leased unsold portions of the Rancho Santa Monica. The purchase price was one and one-half million dollars and covers 22,000 acres.
